PREFACE.

AT the time of the death of the late Rev. Richard Shilleto, in 1876, it was known to us that there existed a large number of pieces of composition in Greek and Latin which were attributed to him, and which were in common use among old pupils and others engaged in tuition; and, though it was not considered advisable to attempt a collection and publication of those in our own possession at that time, the idea of doing this in the future was always in our thoughts. Some few years ago, however, it was strongly represented to us that it was the opinion of a well-known public school master—an opinion which was entitled to serious consideration—that a really authentic collection of Mr Shilleto's compositions would be of distinct benefit to the cause of education; whilst we ourselves had always felt that there was no guarantee for the genuineness of those pieces which were floating about in various schools and colleges, but which were yet credited with being his actual work. We therefore determined to take the matter in hand ourselves, and to make a collection of all those which were in our possession, of the authenticity of which there could be no reasonable doubt. Most of these, indeed almost all of them, were in Mr Shilleto's own handwriting; and we satisfied ourselves, in regard to the few exceptions, that they also were really genuine. We had determined from the first that we would not apply to former pupils, who would no doubt have been pleased to assist us, but that we would content ourselves with such pieces of composition as we found amongst the papers which he left behind him. It is only right, however, for us to state that nothing was written with any idea of publication ; and that, therefore, as these pieces had been composed by him merely as models for the benefit of his pupils during a period extending over more than forty years, we felt that, in justice to his memory, we could publish nothing until it had been critically examined by some competent scholar. In preparing this volume for publication it should be added that no changes have been made beyond a few necessary verbal alterations ; and the several pieces appear practically as Mr Shilleto left them.

It had been our intention, on the completion of our task, to approach the Syndics of the University Press at Cambridge—where almost the whole of Mr Shilleto's life was spent from 1828 to 1876—with a view to the publication of the work. But in this we were anticipated by the Syndics themselves, who intimated to us their willingness to publish a suitable selection from those compositions which we had in our possession—as the total amount of pieces would form a volume too bulky for publication. This offer was gladly accepted ; and the duty of examination and selection was most kindly undertaken by the Rev. C. E. Graves, Fellow and Tutor of St John's College, a former pupil of Mr Shilleto, and a friend of the family from his undergraduate days.

Mr Graves, with whom we have been in constant correspondence, is not only responsible for this selection, but he has also been good enough to see the work through the press ; and, whilst our thanks are first due to the Syndics of the University Press, we wish also to express our hearty and grateful acknowledgements to Mr Graves, as well as to all who may have associated themselves with him out of an affectionate regard for our father's memory and admiration for his scholarship.

TRANSLATIONS
INTO GREEK VERSE

Alcides thus his race began,
O'er infancy he swiftly ran ;
The future god at first was more than man :
Dangers and toils, and Juno's hate,
Even o'er his cradle lay in wait,
And there he grappled first with Fate :
In his young hands the hissing snakes he press'd ;
So early was the deity confess'd :
Thus by degrees he rose to Jove's imperial seat ;
Thus difficulties prove a soul legitimately great.

Mir. Alas, now, pray you,
Work not so hard : I would the lightning had Burnt up those logs that you are enjoind to pile !
Pray, set it down and rest you : when this burns,
'Twill weep for having wearied you. My father
Is hard at study ; pray now, rest yourself ;
He's safe for these three hours.

Fer. O most dear mistress,
The sun will set before I shall discharge
What I must strive to do.

Mir. If you'll sit down,
I'll bear your logs the while ; pray, give me that ;
I'll carry it to the pile.

Fer. No, precious creature ;
I had rather crack my sinews, break my back,
Than you should such dishonour undergo,
While I sit lazy by.

Mir. It would become me
As well as it does you : and I should do it
With much more ease ; for my good will is to it,
And yours it is against.

Pros. Poor worm, thou art infected !
This visitation shows it.

Mir. You look wearily.

Fer. No, noble mistress ; 'tis fresh morning with me
When you are by at night. I do beseech you—
Chiefly, that I might set it in my prayers—
What is your name ?

Mir. Miranda :—O my father,
I have broke your hest to say so !

Fer. Admired Miranda !
Indeed the top of admiration ; worth
What's dearest to the world.

And when the dead by cruel tyrant's spite,
Lie out to rav'nous birds and beasts expos'd,
His yearnful heart pitying that wretched sight,
In seemly graves their weary flesh enclos'd,
And strew'd with dainty flow'rs the lowly hearse;
Then all alone the last words did rehearse,
Bidding them softly sleep in his sad sighing verse.

So once that royal maid fierce Thebes beguil'd,
Though wilful Creon proudly did forbid her;
Her brother, from his home and tomb exil'd,
(While willing night in darkness safely hid her)
She lowly laid in Earth's all covering shade:
Her dainty hands (not us'd to such a trade)
She with a mattock toils, and with a weary spade.

Yet feels she neither sweat, nor irksome pain,
Till now his grave was fully finished;
Then on his wounds her cloudy eyes 'gin rain,
To wash the guilt painted in bloody red:
And falling down upon his gored side,
With hundred varied 'plaints she often cry'd,
'Oh, had I died for thee, or with thee might have died!'

Bel. A goodly day not to keep house, with such Whose roof's as low as ours ! Stoop, boys ; this gate
Instructs you how to adore the heavens, and bows you
To a morning's holy office : the gates of monarchs
Are arch'd so high that giants may jet through
And keep their impious turbans on, without Good morrow to the sun. Hail, thou fair heaven !
We house i' the rock, yet use thee not so hardly
As prouder livers do.

Gui. Hail, heaven !

Arr. Hail, heaven !

Bel. Now for our mountain sport : up to yond hill ;
Your legs are young ; I'll tread these flats. Consider,
When you above perceive me like a crow,
That it is place which lessens and sets off :
And you may then revolve what tales I have told you
Of courts, of princes, of the tricks in war :
This service is not service, so being done,
But being so allowed : to apprehend thus,
Draws us a profit from all things we see ;
And often, to our comfort, shall we find
The sharded beetle in a safer hold
Than is the full-wing'd eagle. O, this life
Is nobler than attending for a check,
Richer than doing nothing for a babe,
Prouder than rustling in unpaid-for silk :
Such gain the cap of him that makes 'em fine,
Yet keeps his book uncross'd.

Const. A wicked day, and not a holy day !
What hath this day deserved ? what hath it done,
That it in golden letters should be set
Among the high tides in the calendar ?
Nay, rather turn this day out of the week,
This day of shame, oppression, perjury.
Or, if it must stand still, let wives with child
Pray that their burthens may not fall this day,
Lest that their hopes prodigiously be cross'd :
But on this day let seamen fear no wreck ;
No bargains break that are not this day made :
This day, all things begun come to ill end,
Yea, faith itself to hollow falsehood change !

K. Phi. By heaven, lady, you shall have no cause
To curse the fair proceedings of this day :
Have I not pawn'd to you my majesty ?

Const. You have beguiled me with a counterfeit Resembling majesty, which, being touch'd and tried,
Proves valueless : you are forsworn, forsworn ;
You came in arms to spill mine enemies' blood,
But now in arms you strengthen it with yours.

Cyriack, this three years' day these eyes, though clear,
To outward view, of blemish or of spot,
Bereft of light, their seeing have forgot;
Nor to their idle orbs doth sight appear
Of sun, or moon, or star, throughout the year,
Of man, or woman. Yet I argue not Against Heaven's hand or will, nor bate a jot
Of heart or hope, but still bear up and steer
Right onward. What supports me, dost thou ask?
The conscience, friend, to have lost them overplied
In Liberty's defence, my noble task,
Of which all Europe rings from side to side.
This thought might lead me through the world's vain mask
Content, though blind, had I no better guide.

Do you think Such arrogance, or usurpation rather,
Of what is proper and peculiar
To every private husband, and much more
To him an emperor, can rank with the obedience
And duty of a wife? Are we appointed
In our creation—let me reason with you—
To rule or to obey? or, 'cause he loves me
With a kind impotence, must I tyrannize
Over his weakness, or abuse the strength
With which he arms me, to his wrong? Shall I
His vassal, from obscurity raised by him
To this so eminent light, presume to appoint him
To do or not to do this or that?

Casca. But wherefore did you so much tempt the heavens?

It is the part of men to fear and tremble,
When the most mighty gods by tokens send
Such dreadful heralds to astonish us.

Cas. You are dull, Casca, and those sparks of life
That should be in a Roman you do want,
Or else you use not. You look pale and gaze,
And put on fear, and cast yourself in wonder,
To see the strange impatience of the heavens:
But if you would consider the true cause
Why all these fires, why all these gliding ghosts,
Why birds and beasts from quality and kind,
Why old men, fools and children calculate,
Why all these things change from their ordinance,
Their natures and preformed faculties
To monstrous quality,—why, you shall find
That heaven hath infused them with these spirits,
To make them instruments of fear and warning
Unto some monstrous state.
Now could I, Casca, name to thee a man
Most like this dreadful night,
That thunders, lightens, opens graves, and roars
As doth the lion in the Capitol,
A man no mightier than thyself or me
In personal action, yet prodigious grown
And fearful, as these strange eruptions are.

Commend me to them,
And tell them that, to ease them of their griefs,
Their fears of hostile strokes, their aches, losses,
Their pangs of love, with other incident throes
That nature's fragile vessel doth sustain
In life's uncertain voyage, I will some kindness do them:

I'll teach them to prevent wild Alcibiades' wrath.

First Sen. I like this well; he will return again.Tim. I have a tree, which grows here in my close,

That mine own use invites me to cut down,
And shortly must I fell it: tell my friends,
Tell Athens, in the sequence of degree
From high to low throughout, that whoso please
To stop affliction, let him take his haste,
Come hither, ere my tree hath felt the axe,
And hang himself. I pray you, do my greeting

Flav. Trouble him no further; thus you still shall find him.Tim. Come not to me again: but say to Athens,

Timon hath made his everlasting mansion
Upon the beached verge of the salt flood;
Who once a day with his embossed froth
The turbulent surge shall cover: thither come,
And let my grave-stone be your oracle.

Bind up your hairs.

Const.

Yes, that I will; and wherefore will I do it?
I tore them from their bonds and cried aloud
‘O that these hands could so redeem my son,
As they have given these hairs their liberty!’
But now I envy at their liberty,
And will again commit them to their bonds,
Because my poor child is a prisoner.
And, father cardinal, I have heard you say
That we shall see and know our friends in heaven:
If that be true, I shall see my boy again;
For since the birth of Cain, the first male child,
To him that did but yesterday suspire,
There was not such a gracious creature born.
But now will canker-sorrow eat my bud
And chase the native beauty from his cheek;
And he will look as hollow as a ghost,
As dim and meagre as an ague’s fit,
And so he’ll die; and, rising so again,
When I shall meet him in the court of heaven
I shall not know him: therefore never, never Must I behold my pretty Arthur more.

Pand.

You hold too heinous a respect of grief.

Const.

He talks to me that never had a son.

K. Phi.

You are as fond of grief as of your child.

Give me my robe, put on my crown ; I have Immortal longings in me : now no more
The juice of Egypt's grape shall moist this lip :
Yare, yare, good Iras ; quick. Methinks I hear
Antony call ; I see him rouse himself
To praise my noble act ; I hear him mock
The luck of Cæsar, which the gods give men
To excuse their after wrath ; husband, I come :
Now to that name my courage prove my title !
I am fire and air ; my other elements
I give to baser life. So ; have you done ?
Come then, and take the last warmth of my lips.
Farewell, kind Charmian ; Iras, long farewell.
Have I the aspic in my lips ? Dost fall ?
If thou and nature can so gently part,
The stroke of death is as a lover's pinch,
Which hurts, and is desired. Dost thou lie still ?
If thus thou vanishest, thou tell'st the world
It is not worth leave-taking.

Great honours are great burdens ; but on whom
They're cast with envy he doth bear two loads.
His cares must still be double to his joys
In any dignity ; where, if he err,
He finds no pardon ; and for doing well
At most small praise, and that wrung out by force.
I speak this, Romans, knowing what the weight
Of the high charge you have trusted to me is.
Not that thereby I would with art decline
The good or greatness of your benefit ;
For I ascribe it to your singular grace,
And vow to owe it to no title else,
Except the gods, that Cicero's your Consul.
I have no urns, no dusty monuments,
No broken images of ancestors,
But for myself I have prepared this strength.

BEN JONSON.

Ἀρχῆς μὲν αἰὲν δεινὸν ἄχθος ἂν λέγοις,

Go where thou mean'st. The ports are open ; forth.
The camp abroad wants thee, their chief, too long.
Lead with thee all thy troops out. Purge the city.
Draw dry that noisome and pernicious sink,
Which left behind thee would infect the world.
Thou wilt free me of all my fears at once,
To see a wall between us. Dost thou stop
To do that now commanded, which before
Of thine own choice thou art prone to? Go. The Consul
Bids thee, an enemy, to depart the city.
Whither, thou'lt ask, to exile? I not bid
Thee that. But ask my counsel, I persuade it.
What is there here in Rome that can delight thee?
Where not a soul, without thine own foul knot,
But fears and hates thee. What domestic note
Of private filthiness, but is burnt in
Into thy life? What close and secret shame
But is grown one with thine own infamy?
What lust was ever absent from thine eyes?
What lewd fact from thy hands?

He's gone ; and on his finger bears my signet,
Which is to him a sceptre. He is stern
As I am heedless ; and the slave deserves
To feel a master. What may be the danger,
I know not : he hath found it, let him quell it.
Must I consume my life—this little life—
In guarding against all may make it less ?
It is not worth so much. It were to die
Before my hour, to live in dread of death,
Tracing revolt ; suspecting all about me,
Because they are near ; and all who are remote,
Because they are far.

BYRON.

Glorious and bright ! lo, here we bend
Before thy throne, trembling attend
Thy sacred pleasures : be pleased then
To shower thy comforts down, that men
May freely taste, in life's extremes,
The influence of thy powerful beams.

Jes. I am never merry when I hear sweet music.

Lor. The reason is, your spirits are attentive :

For do but note a wild and wanton herd,
Or race of youthful and unhandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing and neighing loud,
Which is the hot condition of their blood ;
If they but hear perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any air of music touch their ears,
You shall perceive them make a mutual stand,
Their savage eyes turn'd to a modest gaze
By the sweet power of music : therefore the poet
Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones and floods ;
Since nought so stockish, hard and full of rage,
But music for the time doth change his nature.
The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems and spoils ;
The motions of his spirit are dull as night
And his affections dark as Erebus :
Let no such man be trusted.

Fortuna loquitur.

I come not here, you gods, to plead the right
By which antiquity assign'd my deity,
Though no peculiar station 'mongst the stars,
Yet general power to rule their influence;
Or boast the title of omnipotent,
Ascrib'd me then, by which I rival'd Jove,
Since you have cancell'd all those old records:
But confident in my good cause and merit,
Claim a succession in the vacant orb.
For since Astraea fled to heaven, I sit
Her deputy on earth; I hold her scales,
And weigh men's fates out, who have made me blind
Because themselves want eyes to see my causes;
Call me inconstant, 'cause my works surpass
The shallow fathom of their human reason:
Yet here, like blinded Justice, I dispense
With my impartial hands their constant lots:
And if desertless impious men engross
My best rewards, the fault is yours, you gods,
That scant your graces to mortality.

Lucio. Give't not o'er so: to him again, entreat him,
Kneel down before him, hang upon his gown:
You are too cold; if you should need a pin,
You could not with more tame a tongue desire it:
To him, I say!

Isab. Must he needs die?

Ang. Maiden, no remedy.

Isab. Yes; I do think that you might pardon him,
And neither heaven nor man grieve at the mercy.

Ang. I will not do't.

Isab. But can you, if you would?

Ang. Look, what I will not, that I cannot do.

Isab. But might you do't, and do the world no wrong,
If so your heart were touch'd with that remorse
As mine is to him?

Ang. He's sentenced; 'tis too late.

Lucio. You are too cold.

Isab. Too late? why, no; I, that do speak a word,
May call it back again. Well, believe this,
No ceremony that to great ones 'longs,
Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword,
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe,
Become them with one half so good a grace
As mercy does.
If he had been as you and you as he,
You would have slipt like him; but he, like you,
Would not have been so stern.

Done to death by slanderous tongues
Was the Hero that here lies :
Death, in guerdon of her wrongs,
Gives her fame which never dies.
So the life that died with shame
Lives in death with glorious fame.
Hang thou there upon the tomb,
Praising her when I am dumb.

SONG.

Pardon, goddess of the night,
Those that slew thy virgin knight ;
For the which, with songs of woe,
Round about her tomb they go.
Midnight, assist our moan ;
Help us to sigh and groan,
Heavily, heavily :
Graves, yawn and yield your dead,
Till death be uttered,
Heavily, heavily.

Hastily rose our guide,
Leaving us at the board; awhile we lingered,
Then paced the beaten downward way that led
Right to a rough stream's edge, and there broke off;
The only track now visible was one
That from the torrent's further brink held forth
Conspicuous invitation to ascend
A lofty mountain. After brief delay
Crossing the unbridged stream, that road we took,
And clomb with eagerness, till anxious fears
Intruded, for we failed to overtake
Our comrades gone before. By fortunate chance,
While every moment added doubt to doubt,
A peasant met us, from whose mouth we learned
That to the spot which had perplexed us first,
We must descend, and there should find the road,
Which in the stony channel of the stream
Lay a few steps, and then along its banks;
And that our future course, all plain to sight,
Was downwards, with the current of that stream.

Paulina.

I am sorry for't :

All faults I make, when I shall come to know them,
I do repent. Alas ! I have show'd too much
The rashness of a woman : he is touch'd
To the noble heart. What's gone and what's past help
Should be past grief : do not receive affliction
At my petition ; I beseech you, rather
Let me be punish'd, that have minded you
Of what you should forget. Now, good my liege,
Sir, royal sir, forgive a foolish woman :
The love I bore your queen—lo, fool again !—
I'll speak of her no more, nor of your children ;
I'll not remember you of my own lord,
Who is lost too : take your patience to you,
And I'll say nothing.

Leontes.

Thou didst speak but well

When most the truth ; which I receive much better
Than to be pitied of thee. Prithee, bring me
To the dead bodies of my queen and son :
One grave shall be for both : upon them shall
The causes of their death appear, unto
Our shame perpetual. Once a day I'll visit
The chapel where they lie, and tears shed there Shall be my recreation : so long as nature
Will bear up with this exercise, so long
I daily vow to use it. Come and lead me
Unto these sorrows.

Have I so far lost
A father's power, that I must give account
Of my actions to my son? or must I plead
As a fearful prisoner at the bar, while he
That owes his being to me sits a judge
To censure that which only by myself
Ought to be questioned? Mountains sooner fall
Beneath their vallies, and the lofty pine
Pay homage to the bramble, or what else is Preposterous in nature, ere my tongue
In one short syllable yield satisfaction
To any doubt of thine—nay though it were
A certainty disdaining argument!
Since, though my deeds wore hell's black livery,
To thee they should appear triumphal robes,
Set off with glorious honour, thou being bound
To see with my eyes, and to hold that reason,
That takes or birth or fashion from my will.

Look, what I speak, my life shall prove it true ;
That Mowbray hath received eight thousand nobles
In name of lendings for your highness' soldiers,
The which he hath detain'd for lewd employments,
Like a false traitor and injurious villain.
Besides I say and will in battle prove,
Or here or elsewhere to the furthest verge
That ever was survey'd by English eye,
That all the treasons for these eighteen years
Complotted and contrived in this land
Fetch from false Mowbray their first head and spring.
Further I say, and further will maintain
Upon his bad life to make all this good,
That he did plot the Duke of Gloucester's death,
Suggest his soon-believing adversaries,
And consequently, like a traitor coward,
Sluiced out his innocent soul through streams of blood :
Which blood, like sacrificing Abel's, cries,
Even from the tongueless caverns of the earth,
To me for justice and rough chastisement ;
And, by the glorious worth of my descent,
This arm shall do it, or this life be spent.

So forth they rowed ; and that Ferryman
With his stiffe oares did brush the sea so strong,
That the hoare waters from his frigot ran,
And the light bubbles daunced all along,
Whiles the salt brine out of the billowes sprong.
At last far off they many Islandes spy
On every side floting the floodes emong :
Then said the knight ; ‘ Lo ! I the land descry ;
Therefore, old Syre, thy course doe thereunto apply.’

‘ That may not bee,’ said then the Ferryman,
‘ Least wee unweeting hap to be fordonne ;
For those same Islands, seeming now and than,
Are not firme land, nor any certain wonne,
But stragling plots which to and fro doe ronne
In the wide waters : therefore are they hight
The Wandring Islands. Therefore doe them shonne ;
For they have ofte drawne many a wandring wight
Into most deadly daunger and distressed plight.’

Since what I am to say must be but that Which contradicts my accusation, and
The testimony on my part no other
But what comes from myself, it shall scarce boot me
To say 'not guilty': mine integrity
Being counted falsehood, shall, as I express it,
Be so received. But thus: if powers divine
Behold our human actions, as they do,
I doubt not then but innocence shall make
False accusation blush and tyranny
Tremble at patience. You, my lord, best know,
Who least will seem to do so, my past life
Hath been as continent, as chaste, as true,
As I am now unhappy; which is more
Than history can pattern, though devised
And play'd to take spectators. For behold me
A fellow of the royal bed, which owe
A moiety of the throne, a great king's daughter,
The mother to a hopeful prince, here standing
To prate and talk for life and honour 'fore
Who please to come and hear.

Nay, said I not—
And if I said it not I say it now,
I'll follow thee through sunshine and through storm,
I will be with thee in thy weal and woe,
In thy afflictions, should they fall upon thee,
In thy temptations, when bad men beset thee,
In all the perils which must now press round thee,
And, should they crush thee, in the hour of death.
If thy ambition, late-aroused, was that
Which pushed thee on this perilous adventure,
Then I will be ambitious too—if not,
And it was thy ill-fortune drove thee to it,
Then I will be unfortunate no less.
I will resemble thee in that and all things
Wherein a woman may; grave will I be,
And thoughtful, for already is it gone,
The boon that Nature gave me at my birth,
My own original gaiety of heart.
All will I part with to partake thy cares,
Let but thy love my lesser joys outlast.

Mother,

What is done wisely is done well. Be bold
As thou art just. 'Tis like a truant child,
To fear that others know what thou hast done,
Even from thine own strong consciousness, and thus
Write on unsteady eyes and altered cheeks
All thou wouldst hide. Be faithful to thyself,
And fear no other witness but thy fear.
For if, as cannot be, some circumstance
Should rise in accusation, we can blind
Suspicion with such cheap astonishment,
Or overbear it with such guiltless pride,
As murderers cannot feign. The deed is done,
And what may follow now regards not me.
Consequence, to me,
Is as the wind which strikes the solid rock,
But shakes it not.

O my love ! my wife !

Death, that hath suck'd the honey of thy breath,
Hath had no power yet upon thy beauty :
Thou art not conquer'd ; beauty's ensign yet
Is crimson in thy lips and in thy cheeks,
And death's pale flag is not advanced there.
Tybalt, liest thou there in thy bloody sheet ?
O, what more favour can I do to thee,
Than with that hand that cut thy youth in twain
To sunder his that was thine enemy ?
Forgive me, cousin ! Ah, dear Juliet,
Why art thou yet so fair ? shall I believe
That unsubstantial death is amorous,
And that the lean abhorred monster keeps
Thee here in dark to be his paramour ?
For fear of that, I still will stay with thee ;
And never from this palace of dim night
Depart again : here, here will I remain
With worms that are thy chamber-maids.

SHAKESPEARE.

ὦ φίλτατῆς δάμαρτος ὦραϊον δέμας,

Now give me leave,
My hate against thyself and love to him
Freely acknowledged, to give up the reasons
That made me so affected. In my wants
I ever found him faithful: had supplies
Of men and money from him, and my hopes,
Quite sunk, were by his grace buoyed up again:
He was indeed to me as my good angel
'To guard me from all dangers. I dare speak,
Nay, must and will, his praise now, in as high
And loud a key, as when he was thy equal.
The benefits he sowed in me met not Unthankful ground, but yielded him his own
With fair increase, and I still glory in it.
And tho' my fortunes, poor compared to his,
And Milan weighed with France appear as nothing,
Are in thy fury burnt, let it be mentioned
They served but as small tapers to attend
The solemn flame at this great funeral,
And with them I will gladly waste myself,
Rather than undergo the imputation
Of being base or unthankful.

She dwelt among the untrodden ways
Beside the springs of Dove,
A Maid whom there were none to praise
And very few to love :

A violet by a mossy stone
Half hidden from the eye !
Fair as a star, when only one
Is shining in the sky.

She lived unknown, and few could know
When Lucy ceased to be ;
But she is in her grave, and, oh,
The difference to me !

WORDSWORTH.

Ἀβάτων οἴμων παρθένος ᾧκει

Look on the Vestals,
The holy pledges that the gods have given you,
Your chaste, fair daughters. Were 't not to upbraid
A service to a master not unthankful,
I should say these, in spite of your prevention,
Seduced by an imagined faith, not reason
(Which is the strength of nature), quite forsaking
The Gentile gods, had yielded up themselves
To this new-found religion. This I cross'd, Discover'd their intents, taught you to use,
With gentle words and mild persuasions,
The power and the authority of a father,
Set off with cruel threats; and so reclaim'd them :
And, whereas they with torment should have died
(Hell's furies to me, had they undergone it !),
They are now votaries in great Jupiter's temple,
And, by his priest instructed, grown familiar
With all the mysteries, nay, the most abstruse ones,
Belonging to his deity.

Sure, we thank you.

My learned lord, we pray you to proceed
And justly and religiously unfold
Why the law Salique that they have in France
Or should, or should not, bar us in our claim :
And God forbid, my dear and faithful lord,
That you should fashion, wrest, or bow your reading,
Or nicely charge your understanding soul
With opening titles miscreate, whose right
Suits not in native colours with the truth ;
For God doth know how many now in health
Shall drop their blood in approbation
Of what your reverence shall incite us to.
Therefore take heed how you impawn our person,
How you awake our sleeping sword of war :
We charge you, in the name of God, take heed ;
For never two such kingdoms did contend
Without much fall of blood ; whose guiltless drops
Are every one a woe, a sore complaint
'Gainst him whose wrong gives edge unto the swords
That make such waste in brief mortality.

Duarte. You have bestowed on me a second life,
For which I live your creature, and have bettered
What nature framed imperfect : my first being
Insolent pride made monstrous ; but this later,
In learning me to know myself, hath taught me
Not to wrong others.

Doctor. Then we live indeed,
When we can go to rest, without alarum
Given every minute to a guilt-sick conscience
To keep us waking, and rise in the morning
Secure in being innocent : but when,
In the remembrance of our worser actions,
We ever bear about us whips and Furies,
To make the day a night of sorrow to us,
Even life's a burden.

Duarte. I have found and felt it ;
But will endeavour, having first made peace
With those intestine enemies, my rude passions,
To be so with mankind.

BEAUMONT.

A. Ἄνθ' ὧν ἔνειμας δευτέραν ἐμοὶ ζόην

ἀνστῇ δ' ἐῷ εὐσεβεῖ χαίρων φρενί·
εἰ δ' αὖ τις αἰσχροῶν ἐργμάτων μεμνημένος

Cleo. The climate's delicate, the air most sweet,
Fertile the isle, the temple much surpassing
The common praise it bears.

Dion. I shall report,
For most it caught me, the celestial habits,
Methinks I so should term them, and the reverence
Of the grave wearers. O, the sacrifice!
How ceremonious, solemn and unearthly
It was i' the offering!

Cleo. But of all, the burst
And the ear-deafening voice o' the oracle,
Kin to Jove's thunder, so surprised my sense,
That I was nothing.

Dion. If the event o' the journey
Prove as successful to the queen,—O be 't so!—
As it hath been to us rare, pleasant, speedy,
The time is worth the use on 't.

Cleo. Great Apollo
Turn all to the best! These proclamations,
So forcing faults upon Hermione,
I little like.

Dion. The violent carriage of it
Will clear or end the business: when the oracle,
Thus by Apollo's great divine seal'd up,
Shall the contents discover, something rare
Even then will rush to knowledge. Go: fresh horses!

The land which warlike Britons now possesse,
And therein have their mighty empire raysd,
In antique times was salvage wilderness,
Unpeopled, unmannurd, unprovd, unpraysd ;
Ne was it Island then, ne was it paysd
Amid the ocean waves, ne was it sought
Of merchants farre for profits therein praysd ;
But was all desolate, and of some thought
By sea to have bene from the Celticke maynland brought.

Ne did it then deserve a name to have,
Till that the venturous Mariner that way
Learning his ship from those white rocks to save,
Which all along the Southerne sea-coast lay
Threatning unheedy wrecke and rash decay,
For safëty that same his sea-marke made,
And namd it Albion : But later day,
Finding in it fit ports for fishers trade,
Gan more the same frequent, and further to invade.

Pul. Still in his sullen mood? no intermission
Of his melancholy fit?

Tim. It rather, madam,
Increases than grows less.

Pul. Did he take
No rest, as you could guess?

Chry. Not any, madam.

Like a Numidian lion, by the cunning
Of the desperate huntsman taken in a toil,
And forced into a spacious cage, he walks
About his chamber; we might hear him gnash
His teeth in rage, which open'd, hollow groans
And murmurs issued from his lips, like winds
Imprison'd in the caverns of the earth
Striving for liberty; and sometimes throwing
His body on his bed, then on the ground,
And with such violence, that we more than fear'd,
And still do, if the tempest of his passions
By your wisdom be not laid, he will commit
Some outrage on himself.

You might have lived in servitude and exile,
Or safe at Rome, depending on the great ones ;
But that you thought these things unfit for men,
And in that thought you then were valiant.
For no man ever yet changed peace for war,
But he that meant to conquer. Hold that purpose.
There's more necessity you should be such
In fighting for yourselves, than they for others.
He's base that trusts his feet, whose hands are armed.
Methinks I see Death and the Furies waiting
What we will do, and all the Heaven at leisure
For the great spectacle. Draw then your swords ;
And if our destiny envy our virtue
The honour of the day, yet let us care
To sell ourselves at such a price, as may Undo the world to buy us.

To be thus is nothing ;
But to be safely thus.—Our fears in Banquo
Stick deep ; and in his royalty of nature
Reigns that which would be fear'd : 'tis much he dares ;
And, to that dauntless temper of his mind,
He hath a wisdom that doth guide his valour
To act in safety. There is none but he Whose being I do fear : and, under him,
My Genius is rebuked ; as, it is said,
Mark Antony's was by Caesar. He chid the sisters
When first they put the name of king upon me,
And bade them speak to him : then prophet-like
They hail'd him father to a line of kings :
Upon my head they placed a fruitless crown,
And put a barren sceptre in my gripe,
Thence to be wrench'd with an unlineal hand,
No son of mine succeeding. If 't be so,
For Banquo's issue have I filed my mind ;
For them the gracious Duncan have I murder'd ;
Put rancours in the vessel of my peace
Only for them ; and mine eternal jewel
Given to the common enemy of man.

Timol. We wrong ourselves, and we are justly punish'd,
To deal with bondmen, as if we encounter'd
An equal enemy.

Archid. They fight like devils ;
And run upon our swords, as if their breasts
Were proof beyond their armour.

Timag. Make a firm stand.
The slaves, not satisfied they have beat us off,
Prepare to sally forth.

Timol. They are wild beasts,
And to be tamed by policy. Each man take
A tough whip in his hand, such as you used
To punish them with as masters : in your looks
Carry severity and awe ; 't will fright them
More than your weapons. Savage lions fly from
The sight of fire ; and these, that have forgot
That duty you ne'er taught them with your swords,
When, unexpected, they behold those terrors
Advanced aloft, that they were made to shake at,
'T will force them to remember what they are,
And stoop to due obedience.

Thou seest this with a lovelorn maiden's eyes.
Cast thine eye round, bethink thee who thou art.
Into no house of joyance hast thou stepped,
For no espousals dost thou find the walls
Decked out, no guests the nuptial garland wearing,
Here is no splendour but of arms. Or think'st thou
That all these thousands are here congregated
To lead up the long dances at thy wedding?
Thou seest thy father's forehead full of thought,
Thy mother's eyes in tears: upon the balance
Lies the great destiny of all our house.
Leave now the puny wish, the girlish feeling,
O thrust it far behind thee.
Not to herself the woman must belong
Annexed and bound to alien destinies.
But she performs the best part, she the wisest,
Who can transmute the alien into self,
Meet and disarm necessity by choice,
And what must be, take freely to her heart,
And bear and foster it with mother's love.

The world had never taken so full note
Of what thou art, had'st thou not been undone ;
And only thy affliction hath begot
More fame, than thy best fortunes could have done :
For ever by adversity are wrought
The greatest works of admiration ;
And all the fair examples of renown
Out of distress and misery are grown.

How could we know that thou could'st have endur'd,
With a reposed cheer, wrong and disgrace ;
And with a heart and countenance assur'd
Have looked stern Death and horreur in the face ?
How should we know thy soul had been secur'd
In honest counsels, and in way unbase ;
Had'st thou not stood to show us what thou wer't,
By thy affliction that descry'd thy heart ?

It is not but the tempest that doth show
The seaman's cunning ; but the field that tries
The captain's courage : and we come to know
Best what men are, in their worst jeopardies.

Agam. They have both deserved
For their great service in this expedition,
We should with calm and most impartial soul
Hear and determine : therefore, if you please,
Because the hours are precious, I shall Desire them lose no time.

Diom. We all submit,
And shall obey your prudence.

Agam. You honour much
Your Agamemnon. Princes, then to you.
I hope you have brought hither with your persons
Nothing but what your honours may consent to :
Speak yourselves freely then ; these are your judges,
Who are not only great in birth and titles,
And therefore bring no thoughts to stain their honour,
But bound by obligation of one country,
Will love and do your name and valours justice.
There lies your great reward, Achilles' arms,
Forged by the subtle art of him, that framed
Jove's thunderbolts, pride of Cyclopiian labours :
He that is meant by his kind stars to have
The happy wearing of them next, may write
Himself a champion for the gods and heaven,
Against a race of giants that would scale it.

What a true mirror
Were this sad spectacle for secure greatness !
Here they that never see themselves but in
The glass of servile flattery might behold
The weak foundation upon which they build Their trust in human frailty. Happy are those,
That knowing in their births they are subject to Uncertain change, are still prepared and armed
For either fortune : a rare principle
And with much labour learned in wisdom's school.
For as these bondmen by their actions shew
That their prosperity, like too large a sail
For their small bark of judgement, sinks them with
A foreright gale of liberty, ere they reach
The port they long to touch at ; so these wretches,
Swoll'n with a false opinion of their worth,
And proud of blessings left them, not acquired,
That did believe they could with giant arms
Fathom the earth, and were above their fates,
Those borrowed helps that did support them vanished,
Fall of themselves, and by unmanly suffering
Betray their proper weakness, and make known
Their boasted greatness was lent, not their own.

What, my young master? O my gentle master!
O my sweet master! O you memory
Of old Sir Rowland! why, what make you here?
Why are you virtuous? why do people love you?
And wherefore are you gentle, strong and valiant?
Why would you be so fond to overcome
The bonny priser of the humorous duke?
Your praise is come too swiftly home before you.
Know you not, master, to some kind of men
Their graces serve them but as enemies?

SHAKESPEARE.

Dr. Yes; you have blown his swoln pride to that vastness,
As he believes the earth is in his fathom.
This makes him quite forget his humble being.
And can I hope that he, that, only fed
With the imagined food of future empire,
Disdains even those that gave him means and life
To nourish such desires, when he's possessed
Of his ambitious ends (which must fall on him,
Or your predictions are false), will ever
Descend to look on me?

De. Were his intents
Perfidious as the seas or winds, his heart
Composed of falsehood, yet the benefit,
The greatness of the good he has from you,
Must make him firm and thankful.

You shall no more be lodg'd beneath the trees,
Nor chamber underneath the spreading oaks.
Behold ! I have devised you forms for tools
To square out timber, and perform the art
Of architecture, yet unknown till now ;
I'll draw you forms of cities, towns and towers,
For use and strength : behold the models here.

See, here, a second art of husbandry,
To till the earth, to plough, to sow, to plant,
Devised by Saturn. Here is gold, refined
From grosser metals ; silver, brass, and tin
With other minerals extract from earth.
I likewise have found out to make your brooks,
Rivers, and seas, by practice navigable.
Behold a form to make your crares and barks
To pass huge streams in safety, dangerless.

The last, not least, this use of archery ;
The stringed bow and nimble-feather'd shaft.
By this you may command the flying fowl
And reach her from on high : this serves for war,
To strike and wound thy foemen from afar.

HEYWOOD.

It is not so ; thou hast misspoke, misheard ;
Be well advised, tell o'er thy tale again :
It cannot be ; thou dost but say 'tis so :
I trust I may not trust thee ; for thy word
Is but the vain breath of a common man :
Believe me, I do not believe thee, man ;
I have a king's oath to the contrary.
Thou shalt be punish'd for thus frightening me,
For I am sick and capable of fears,
Oppress'd with wrongs and therefore full of fears,
A widow, husbandless, subject to fears,
A woman, naturally born to fears ;
And though thou now confess thou didst but jest,
With my vex'd spirits I cannot take a truce,
But they will quake and tremble all this day.
What dost thou mean by shaking of thy head ?
Why dost thou look so sadly on my son ?
What means that hand upon that breast of thine ?
Why holds thine eye that lamentable rheum,
Like a proud river peering o'er his bounds ?
Be these sad signs confirmers of thy words ?
Then speak again ; not all thy former tale,
But this one word, whether thy tale be true.

SHAKESPEARE.

Οὐκ ἔστιν· εἰπὼν ἡ κλύων παρεσκόπεις·

All good people,
You that thus far have come to pity me,
Hear what I say, and then go home and lose me.
I have this day received a traitor's judgement,
And by that name must die: yet, heaven bear witness,
And if I have a conscience, let it sink me,
Even as the axe falls, if I be not faithful!
The law I bear no malice for my death;
'T has done, upon the premises, but justice:
But those that sought it I could wish more Christians:
Be what they will, I heartily forgive 'em:
Yet let 'em look they glory not in mischief,
Nor build their evils on the graves of great men;
For then my guiltless blood must cry against 'em.
For further life in this world I ne'er hope,
Nor will I sue, although the king have mercies
More than I dare make faults. You few that loved me,
And dare be bold to weep for Buckingham,
His noble friends and fellows, whom to leave
Is only bitter to him, only dying,
Go with me, like good angels, to my end;
And, as the long divorce of steel falls on me,
Make of your prayers one sweet sacrifice,
And lift my soul to heaven.

Thy grave reproof,

If what thou dost desire were possible
To be effected, might well argue it
As wise as loving ; but if you consider,
With what strong guards this tyrant is defended,
Ruffians and malcontents drawn from all quarters,
That only know to serve his impious will ;
The citadels built by him in the neck
Of this poor city ; the invincible strength
Nature, by art assisted, gave this castle ;
And above all his fear—admitting no man
To see him, but unarmed, it being death
For any to approach him with a weapon ;
You must confess, unless our heads were cannons
To batter down these walls, our weak breath mines,
To blow his forts up, or our curses lightning
To force a passage to him, and then blast him,
Our power is like to yours, and we like you
Weep our misfortunes.

Exton. Great king, within this coffin I present
Thy buried fear : herein all breathless lies
The mightiest of thy greatest enemies,
Richard of Bordeaux, by me hither brought.

Boling. Exton, I thank thee not ; for thou hast wrought
A deed of slander with thy fatal hand
Upon my head and all this famous land.

Exton. From your own mouth, my lord, did I this deed.

Boling. They love not poison that do poison need,
Nor do I thee : though I did wish him dead,
I hate the murderer, love him murdered.
The guilt of conscience take thou for thy labour,
But neither my good word nor princely favour :
With Cain go wander thorough shades of night,
And never show thy head by day nor light.
Lords, I protest, my soul is full of woe,
That blood should sprinkle me to make me grow :

Come, mourn with me for that I do lament,
And put on sullen black incontinent :
I'll make a voyage to the Holy Land,
To wash this blood off from my guilty hand :
March sadly after ; grace my mournings here ;
In weeping after this untimely bier.

Romont. You much weaken
The strength of your good cause, should you but think
A man for doing well could entertain
A pardon, were it offered : you have given
To blind and slow-paced Justice wings and eyes,
To see and overtake impieties,
Which from a cold proceeding had received
Indulgence or protection.

Charalois.

Think you so ?

Romont. Upon my soul ! nor should the blood you challenged,
And took to cure your honour, breed more scruple
In your soft conscience, than if your sword
Had been sheathed in a tiger or she-bear,
That in their bowels would have made your tomb.
To injure innocence is worse than murder :
But when inhuman lusts transform us, then
As beasts we are to suffer, not like men
To be lamented. Nor did Charalois ever
Perform an act so worthy the applause
Of a full theatre of perfect men
As he hath done in this.

Luc. Better forbear till Proteus make return.

Jul. O, know'st thou not his looks are my soul's food?
Pity the dearth that I have pined in,
By longing for that food so long a time.
Didst thou but know the inly touch of love,
Thou wouldst as soon go kindle fire with snow
As seek to quench the fire of love with words.

Luc. I do not seek to quench your love's hot fire,
But qualify the fire's extreme rage,
Lest it should burn above the bounds of reason.

Jul. The more thou damm'st it up, the more it burns.
The current that with gentle murmur glides,
Thou know'st, being stopp'd, impatiently doth rage;
But when his fair course is not hindered,
He makes sweet music with the enamell'd stones,
Giving a gentle kiss to every sedge
He overtaketh in his pilgrimage.

How yet resolves the governor of the town ?
This is the latest parle we will admit :
Therefore to our best mercy give yourselves ;
Or like to men proud of destruction
Defy us to our worst : for, as I am a soldier,
A name that in my thoughts becomes me best,
If I begin the battery once again,
I will not leave the half-achieved Harfleur
Till in her ashes she lie buried.
The gates of mercy shall be all shut up,
And the flesh'd soldier, rough and hard of heart,
In liberty of bloody hand shall range
With conscience wide as hell, mowing like grass
Your fresh-fair virgins and your flowering infants.
What is it then to me, if impious war,
Array'd in flames like to the prince of fiends,
Do, with his smirch'd complexion, all fell feats
Enlink'd to waste and desolation ?
What rein can hold licentious wickedness
When down the hill he holds his fierce career ?
We may as bootless spend our vain command
Upon the enraged soldiers in their spoil
As send precepts to the leviathan
To come ashore. Therefore, you men of Harfleur,
Take pity of your town and of your people,
Whiles yet my soldiers are in my command ;
Whiles yet the cool and temperate wind of grace
O'erblows the filthy and contagious clouds
Of heady murder, spoil and villany.
If not, why, in a moment look to see
The blind and bloody soldier with foul hand
Defile the locks of your shrill-shrieking daughters ;
Your fathers taken by the silver beards,

And their most reverend heads dash'd to the walls,
Your naked infants spitted upon pikes,
Whiles the mad mothers with their howls confused
Do break the clouds, as did the wives of Jewry
At Herod's bloody-hunting slaughtermen.
What say you? will you yield, and this avoid,
Or, guilty in defence, be thus destroy'd?

SHAKESPEARE.

I must commend
Your choice. The godlike son of the sea-goddess,
The unshorn boy of Peleus, with his locks
As beautiful and clear as the amber waves
Of rich Pactolus (roll'd o'er sands of gold, Softened by intervening crystal), and
Rippled like flowing waters by the wind,
All vow'd to Sperchius as they were—behold them!
And him—as he stood by Polixena,
With sanction'd and with soften'd love, before
The altar, gazing on his Trojan bride,
With some remorse within for Hector slain
And Priam weeping, mingled with deep passion
For the sweet downcast virgin, whose young hand
Trembled in his who slew her brother. So
He stood i' the temple! Look upon him as Greece looked her last upon her best, the instant
Ere Paris' arrow flew.

I see a man's life is a tedious one :
I have tired myself, and for two nights together
Have made the ground my bed. I should be sick,
But that my resolution helps me. Milford,
When from the mountain-top Pisanio show'd thee,
Thou wast within a ken : O Jove ! I think
Foundations fly the wretched ; such, I mean,
Where they should be relieved. Two beggars told me
I could not miss my way : will poor folks lie,
That have afflictions on them, knowing 'tis
A punishment or trial ? Yes ; no wonder,
When rich ones scarce tell true. To lapse in fulness
Is sorer than to lie for need, and falsehood
Is worse in kings than beggars. My dear lord !
Thou art one o' the false ones. Now I think on thee,
My hunger's gone ; but even before, I was
At point to sink for food. But what is this ?
Here is a path to't : 'tis some savage hold :
I were best not call ; I dare not call : yet famine,
Ere clean it o'erthrow nature, makes it valiant.
Plenty and peace breeds cowards : hardness ever
Of hardness is mother. Ho ! who's here ?
If any thing that's civil, speak ; if savage,
Take or lend. Ho ! No answer ? Then I'll enter.
Best draw my sword ; and if mine enemy
But fear the sword like me, he'll scarcely look on't.

SHAKESPEARE.

Μακρός τις (ἔγνω δ' ἀρτίως) ἄρσην βίος.
 κόπῳ παρείμαι, καὶ χαμαικοίτης δυοῖν εἵληχα νυκτῶν τῶν παρελθουσῶν λέχος·
 τὸ μὴ νοσεῖν δὲ καρτεροῦς' ἐπήρκεσα.
 λιμήν, σὺ δ' ἐγγύς, ἐξ ἐποψίου πάγου
 Πεισάνορος δεικνύντος, ἦσθ' ἀπ' ὀμμάτων.
 φεῦ· δοκοῦσιν οἴκων τοὺς ταλαιπώρους φυγεῖν κρηπίδες, οὗ γε χρῆν ἀποστροφῆς τυχεῖν.
 πτωχῷ γε μὴν δύ' εἰπέτην ὡς τῆς ὁδοῦ
 οὐκ ἔσθ' ἀμαρτεῖν· κατ' ἂν ὁ πτωχός, λαχὼν ἀλγήματα, ψεύδοιτ' ἄν, ἐξειδὼς ὅτι
 ἢ προσβολὴ τάδ' ἐστὶν ἢ ἄλεγχος τρόπων;
 καίτοι τί θαῦμα; τοὺς γε πλουσίους ὀρώ παύρους ἀληθεῖς· τὰμπλακεῖν δ' ἐξ ἀφθόνου βίου κάκιον τοῦ μετ' ἐνδείας δόλου, ψύθη τ' ἄνακτος χεῖρον' ἢ πτωχοῦ πέλει.
 ὦ φίλτατ' ἀνδρῶν, ἢ σύ γ' εἰς ψεύστας τελεῖς;
 μεμνημένη σου λῆστὴς ἐστ' ἀσιτίας,
 τροφῆς δὲ πρόσθεν πᾶς' ἐτηκόμην σπάνει.
 τί τοῦτο; πρὸς τίν' ὁ στίβος φέρει στέγην;
 μὼν βαρβάρων οἴκησιν; οὐ θαρσῶ βοᾶν.
 οὐκοῦν σιωπᾶν λῶν; ἀλλ' ἀσιτία
 φύσιν θρασύνει πρὶν πανώλεθρον πεσεῖν.
 ἢ πλησμονὴ γὰρ δειλὸν εἰρήνην θ' ἅμα
 τίκτουσι· θάρσους δ' ἢ σπάνις μήτηρ ἔφυ.
 ὦή, τίς ἐν πύλαισιν; εἰ γὰρ εὔξενοι,
 λέγοιτ' ἄν· εἰ δ' ἄρ' ἄξενον φωνῶ, τροφήν
 δὸς ὡς τελούσης αὐθις ἢ χρυσὸν λαβών.
 εἴσειμ'· ἐπεὶ τοι κούδενος φωνῆς κλύω.
 καίτοι τόδ' ἔγχος πρόσθεν ἐξέλκειν θέλω·
 εἰ γὰρ δέδοικεν ἐχθρὸς ὡσαύτως ἐμοί, οὐδεὶς φόβος μοι μὴ οὐκ ἰδὼν ἀποστραφῇ.

Mon. Many a morning hath he there been seen,
With tears augmenting the fresh morning's dew,
Adding to clouds more clouds with his deep sighs ;
But all so soon as the all-cheering sun
Should in the furthest east begin to draw
The shady curtains from Aurora's bed,
Away from light steals home my heavy son,
And private in his chamber pens himself,
Shuts up his windows, locks fair daylight out
And makes himself an artificial night :
Black and portentous must this humour prove,
Unless good counsel may the cause remove.

Ben. My noble uncle, do you know the cause ?

Mon. I neither know it nor can learn of him.

Ben. Have you importuned him by any means ?

Mon. Both by myself and many other friends :
But he, his own affections' counsellor,
Is to himself—I will not say how true—
But to himself so secret and so close,
So far from sounding and discovery,
As is the bud bit with an envious worm,
Ere he can spread his sweet leaves to the air,
Or dedicate his beauty to the sun.
Could we but learn from whence his sorrows grow,
We would as willingly give cure as know.

Should we be silent and not speak, our raiment
And state of bodies would bewray what life
We have led since thy exile. Think with thyself
How more unfortunate than all living women
Are we come hither: since that thy sight, which should Make our eyes flow with joy, hearts dance with comforts,
Constrains them weep and shake with fear and sorrow;
Making the mother, wife and child to see
The son, the husband and the father tearing
His country's bowels out. And to poor we Thine enmity's most capital: thou barr'st us
Our prayers to the gods, which is a comfort
That all but we enjoy; for how can we,
Alas, how can we for our country pray,
Whereto we are bound, together with thy victory,
Whereto we are bound? alack, or we must lose
The country, our dear nurse, or else thy person,
Our comfort in the country. We must find
An evident calamity, though we had
Our wish, which side should win: for either thou Must, as a foreign recreant, be led
With manacles thorough our streets, or else
Triumphantly tread on thy country's ruin,
And bear the palm for having bravely shed
Thy wife and children's blood.

SHAKESPEARE.

Εἰ καὶ σιωπήσαιμεν ἄφθεγκτοι λόγων,

Leonatus. You are pleased to interpret well ;
Yet give me leave to say, in my own justice,
I have but express'd the promptness of my soul
To save you all ; but 'tis not empty wishes
Can satisfy our mighty charge, a weight
Would make an Atlas double. A king's name
Doth sound harmoniously to men at distance,
And those who cannot penetrate beyond
The bark and out-skin of a commonwealth,
Or state, have eyes but ravish'd with the ceremony
That must attend a prince, and understand not
What cares alloy the glories of a crown ;
But good kings find and feel the contrary.—
You have tried, my lord, the burden, and can tell
It would require a pilot of more years
To steer this kingdom, now impos'd on me,
By justice of my birth.

Cassander. I wish not life,
But to partake those happy days, which must
Succeed these fair proceedings ; we are blest.
But, sir, be sparing to yourself : we shall Hazard our joys in you too soon. The burden
Of state affairs impose upon your counsel ;
'Tis fitter that we waste our lives, than you
Call age too soon upon you with the trouble
And cares that threaten such an undertaking.

I left no ring with her : what means this lady ?
Fortune forbid my outside have not charm'd her !
She made good view of me ; indeed, so much,
That sure methought her eyes had lost her tongue,
For she did speak in starts distractedly.
She loves me, sure ; the cunning of her passion
Invites me in this churlish messenger.
None of my lord's ring ! why, he sent her none.
I am the man : if it be so, as 'tis,
Poor lady, she were better love a dream.
Disguise, I see, thou art a wickedness,
Wherein the pregnant enemy does much.
How easy is it for the proper-false
In women's waxen hearts to set their forms !
Alas, our frailty is the cause, not we !
For such as we are made of, such we be.
How will this fadge ? my master loves her dearly ;
And I, poor monster, fond as much on him ;
And she, mistaken, seems to dote on me.
What will become of this ? As I am man,
My state is desperate for my master's love ;
As I am woman,—now alas the day !—
What thriftless sighs shall poor Olivia breathe !
O time, thou must untangle this, not I ;
It is too hard a knot for me to untie.

SHAKESPEARE.

Τίν' ἡ κόρη σφαγίδα λειφθῆναι λέγει;

Look, nymphs and shepherds, look,
What sudden blaze of majesty
Is that which we from hence descry,
Too divine to be mistook ?

 This, this is she
To whom our vows and wishes bend :
Here our solemn search hath end.

Fame, that her high worth to raise
Seem'd erst so lavish and profuse,
We may justly now accuse
Of detraction from her praise :

 Less than half we find express'd ;
 Envy bid conceal the rest.

Mark, what radiant state she spreads,
In circle round her shining throne,
Shooting her beams like silver threads :
This, this is she alone,

 Sitting, like a goddess bright,
 In the centre of her light.

Might she the wise Latona be,
Or the towered Cybele,
Mother of a hundred gods ?
Juno dares not give her odds :

 Who had thought this clime had held
 A deity so unparallel'd ?

Drusilla. You new-create me. To conceal from you
My virgin fondness were to hide my sickness
From my physician. O dear aunt, I languish
For want of Diocles' sight! he is the sun
That keeps my blood in a perpetual spring;
But, in his absence, cold benumbing winter
Seizes on all my faculties. Would you bind me
That am your slave already in more fetters,
And in the place of service to adore you?
O bear me then (but 'tis impossible,
I fear, to be effected) where I may
See how my Diocles breaks through his dangers,
And in what heaps his honours flow upon him,
That I may meet him in the height and pride
Of all his glories, and there (as your gift)
Challenge him as mine own.

Delphia. Enjoy thy wishes.

This is an easy boon, which, at thy years,
I could have given to any; but, now grown
Perfect in all the hidden mysteries
Of that inimitable art, which makes us
Equal even to the gods and nature's wonders,
It shall be done, as fits my skill and glory.

My fault being nothing—as I have told you oft—
But that two villains, whose false oaths prevail'd
Before my perfect honour, swore to Cymbeline
I was confederate with the Romans: so
Follow'd my banishment, and this twenty years
This rock and these demesnes have been my world;
Where I have lived at honest freedom, paid
More pious debts to heaven than in all
The fore-end of my time. But up to the mountains!
This is not hunters' language: he that strikes
The venison first shall be the lord o' the feast;
To him the other two shall minister;
And we will fear no poison, which attends
In place of greater state. I'll meet you in the valleys.
How hard it is to hide the sparks of nature!
These boys know little they are sons to the king;
Nor Cymbeline dreams that they are alive.
They think they are mine; and though train'd up thus meanly
I' the cave wherein they bow, their thoughts do hit
The roofs of palaces, and nature prompts them
In simple and low things to prince it much
Beyond the trick of others.

SHAKESPEARE.

Οὐδὲν γὰρ αὐτὸς ἀμπλακὼν—ὥς πολλάκις

Well, though it torture me, 'tis but the same;
My pang shall find a voice. From my youth upwards
My spirit walked not with the souls of men,
Nor looked upon the earth with human eyes;
The thirst of their ambition was not mine,
The aim of their existence was not mine;
My joys, my griefs, my passions, and my powers,
Made me a stranger; though I wore the form,
I had not sympathy with breathing flesh.
Nor midst the creatures of clay that girded me
Was there but one who—but of her anon.
I said, with men, and with the thoughts of men,
I held but slight communion; but instead,
My joy was in the wilderness, to breathe
The difficult air of the iced mountain's top,
Where the birds dare not build, nor insect's wing
Flit o'er the herbless granite; or to plunge
Into the torrent, and to roll along
On the swift whirl of the new breaking wave
Of river, stream, or ocean, in their flow.
In these my early strength exulted; or
To follow through the night the moving moon,
The stars and their development; or catch
The dazzling lightnings till my eyes grew dim;
Or to look, listening, on the scattered leaves,
While Autumn winds were at their evening song.

King. You all look strangely on me : and you most ;
You are, I think, assured I love you not.

Ch. J. I am assured, if I be measured rightly,
Your majesty hath no just cause to hate me.

King. No !

How might a prince of my great hopes forget
So great indignities you laid upon me ?
What ! rate, rebuke, and roughly send to prison
The immediate heir of England ! Was this easy ?
May this be wash'd in Lethe, and forgotten ?

Ch. J. I then did use the person of your father ;
The image of his power lay then in me :
And, in the administration of his law,
Whiles I was busy for the commonwealth,
Your highness pleased to forget my place,
The majesty and power of law and justice,
The image of the king whom I presented,
And struck me in my very seat of judgement ;
Whereon, as an offender to your father,
I gave bold way to my authority
And did commit you. If the deed were ill,
Be you contented, wearing now the garland,
To have a son set your decrees at nought,
To pluck down justice from your awful bench,
To trip the course of law and blunt the sword
That guards the peace and safety of your person.

When last the young Orlando parted from you
He left a promise to return again
Within an hour, and pacing through the forest,
Chewing the food of sweet and bitter fancy,
Lo, what befel! he threw his eye aside,
And mark what object did present itself:
Under an oak, whose boughs were moss'd with age
And high top bald with dry antiquity,
A wretched ragged man, o'ergrown with hair,
Lay sleeping on his back: about his neck
A green and gilded snake had wreathed itself,
Who with her head nimble in threats approach'd
The opening of his mouth; but suddenly,
Seeing Orlando, it unlink'd itself,
And with indented glides did slip away
Into a bush: under which bush's shade
A lioness, with udders all drawn dry,
Lay couching, head on ground, with catlike watch,
When that the sleeping man should stir; for 'tis
The royal disposition of that beast
To prey on nothing that doth seem as dead:
This seen, Orlando did approach the man
And found it was his brother, his elder brother.

My name is Caius Marcius, who hath done
To thee particularly and to all the Volscies
Great hurt and mischief; thereto witness may
My surname, Coriolanus: the painful service,
The extreme dangers and the drops of blood
Shed for my thankless country are requited
But with that surname; a good memory,
And witness of the malice and displeasure
Which thou shouldst bear me: only that name remains;
The cruelty and envy of the people,
Permitted by our dastard nobles, who
Have all forsook me, hath devour'd the rest;
And suffer'd me by the voice of slaves to be Whoop'd out of Rome. Now this extremity
Hath brought me to thy hearth; not out of hope—Mistake me not—to save my life, for if
I had fear'd death, of all the men i' the world
I would have 'voided thee, but in mere spite,
To be full quit of those my banishers,
Stand I before thee here. Then if thou hast
A heart of wreak in thee, that wilt revenge
Thine own particular wrongs and stop those maims
Of shame seen through thy country, speed thee straight,
And make my misery serve thy turn: so use it
That my revengeful services may prove
As benefits to thee, for I will fight
Against my canker'd country with the spleen
Of all the under fiends. But if so be

Thou darest not this and that to prove more fortunes
Thou'rt tired, then, in a word, I also am
Longer to live most weary, and present
My throat to thee and to thy ancient malice ;
Which not to cut would show thee but a fool,
Since I have ever follow'd thee with hate,
Drawn tuns of blood out of thy country's breast,
And cannot live but to thy shame, unless
It be to do thee service.

SHAKESPEARE.

King. Most subject is the fattest soil to weeds ;
And he, the noble image of my youth,
Is overspread with them : therefore my grief
Stretches itself beyond the hour of death :
The blood weeps from my heart when I do shape
In forms imaginary the unguided days
And rotten times that you shall look upon
When I am sleeping with my ancestors.
For when his headstrong riot hath no curb,
When rage and hot blood are his counsellors,
When means and lavish manners meet together,
O, with what wings shall his affections fly
Towards fronting peril and opposed decay !

War. My gracious lord, you look beyond him quite :
The prince but studies his companions
Like a strange tongue, wherein, to gain the language,
'Tis needful that the most immodest word
Be look'd upon and learn'd ; which once attain'd,
Your highness knows, comes to no further use
But to be known and hated. So, like gross terms,
The prince will in the perfectness of time
Cast off his followers ; and their memory
Shall as a pattern or a measure live,
By which his grace must mete the lives of others,
Turning past evils to advantages.

King.

I muse my Lord of Gloucester is not come :
'Tis not his wont to be the hindmost man,
Whate'er occasion keeps him from us now.

Queen.

Can you not see? or will ye not observe
The strangeness of his alter'd countenance?
With what a majesty he bears himself,
How insolent of late he is become,
How proud, how peremptory, and unlike himself?
We know the time since he was mild and affable,
And if we did but glance a far-off look,
Immediately he was upon his knee,
'That all the court admired him for submission :
But meet him now, and, be it in the morn,
When every one will give the time of day,
He knits his brow and shows an angry eye
And passeth by with stiff unbowed knee,
Disdaining duty that to us belongs.
Small curs are not regarded when they grin ;
But great men tremble when the lion roars ;
And Humphrey is no little man in England.
First note that he is near you in descent,
And should you fall, he as the next will mount.
Me seemeth then it is no policy,
Respecting what a rancorous mind he bears
And his advantage following your decease,
'That he should come about your royal person
Or be admitted to your highness' council.

Welcome, good Robin. See'st thou this sweet sight?
Her dotage now I do begin to pity:
For, meeting her of late behind the wood,
Seeking sweet favours for this hateful fool,
I did upbraid her and fall out with her;
For she his hairy temples then had rounded
With coronet of fresh and fragrant flowers;
And that same dew, which sometime on the buds
Was wont to swell like round and orient pearls,
Stood now within the pretty flowerets' eyes
Like tears that did their own disgrace bewail.
When I had at my pleasure taunted her
And she in mild terms begg'd my patience,
I then did ask of her her changeling child;
Which straight she gave me, and her fairy sent
To bear him to my bower in fairy land.
And now I have the boy, I will undo
This hateful imperfection of her eyes:
And, gentle Puck, take this transformed scalp
From off the head of this Athenian swain;
That, he awaking when the other do,
May all to Athens back again repair,
And think no more of this night's accidents
But as the fierce vexation of a dream.
But first I will release the fairy queen.

Be as thou wast wont to be;
See as thou wast wont to see:
Dian's bud o'er Cupid's flower
Hath such force and blessed power.

Cesario. I must acknowledge,
Vittori has deserved, for many services,
The love and honour of his country ; fought
Her battles and brought conquest home, made tame
The seas that threatened us, secured the land ;
And Rome allowed some consuls, for less victories,
Triumphs and statues.

Fabio. Most excellent prince !
How just he is !

Cesario. But when opinion
Of their own merit swells them into pride,
Which sets a price on that which modesty
Should count an act of their obedience,
They forfeit the reward of thanks and honour,
And betray poor and most vainglorious souls.
Scipio and Antony and other Romans
Deserved well of the Senate and were honoured ;
But when they ran to faction, and pursued
Ambitious ends to undo their country's peace,
They were no longer patriots, but declared
Rome's poison, and like gangrenes to the state,
To be cut off, lest they corrupt the body.

Hip. 'Tis strange, my Theseus, that these lovers speak of.
The. More strange than true: I never may believe
These antique fables, nor these fairy toys.
Lovers and madmen have such seething brains,
Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend
More than cool reason ever comprehends.
The lunatic, the lover and the poet
Are of imagination all compact:
One sees more devils than vast hell can hold,
That is, the madman: the lover, all as frantic,
Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt:
The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling,
Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven;
And as imagination bodies forth
The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes and gives to airy nothing
A local habitation and a name.
Such tricks hath strong imagination,
That, if it would but apprehend some joy,
It comprehends some bringer of that joy;
Or in the night, imagining some fear,
How easy is a bush supposed a bear!

If it be true,
Dread sir, as 'tis affirm'd, that every soil,
Where he is well, is to a valiant man
His natural country, reason may assure me
I should fix here, where blessings beyond hope,
From you, the spring, like rivers flow unto me.
If wealth were my ambition, by the queen
I am made rich already, to the amazement
Of all that see, or shall hereafter read
The story of her bounty : if to spend
The remnant of my life in deeds of arms,
No region is more fertile of good knights,
From whom my knowledge that way may be better'd,
Than this your warlike Hungary ; if favour,
Or grace in court could take me, by your grant,
Far, far beyond my merit, I may make
In yours a free election ; but, alas ! sir,
I am not mine own, but by my destiny
(Which I cannot resist) forced to prefer
My country's smoke before the glorious fire
With which your bounties warm me. All I ask, sir,
Though I cannot be ignorant it must relish
Of foul ingratitude, is your gracious license
For my departure.

The night grows on, and you are for your meeting;
I'll therefore end in few. Be resolute,
And put your enterprise in act. The more
Actions of depth and danger are consider'd,
The less assuredly they are perform'd.
And thence it happ'neth, that the bravest plots
(Not executed straight) have been discover'd.
Say, you are constant, or another, a third,
Or more; there may be yet some wretched spirit,
With whom the fear of punishment shall work
'Bove all the thoughts of honour and revenge.
You are not now to think what's best to do
As in beginnings; but what must be done,
Being thus enter'd: and slip no advantage
That may secure you. Let 'em call it mischief:
When it is past, and prosper'd, 'twill be virtue.
Th' are petty crimes are punish'd, great rewarded.

What angel shall
Bless this unworthy husband? he cannot thrive,
Unless her prayers, whom heaven delights to hear
And loves to grant, reprieve him from the wrath
Of greatest justice. Write, write, Rinaldo,
To this unworthy husband of his wife;
Let every word weigh heavy of her worth
That he does weigh too light: my greatest grief,
Though little he do feel it, set down sharply.
Dispatch the most convenient messenger:
When haply he shall hear that she is gone,
He will return; and hope I may that she,
Hearing so much, will speed her foot again,
Led hither by pure love: which of them both
Is dearest to me, I have no skill in sense
To make distinction: provide this messenger:
My heart is heavy and mine age is weak;
Grief would have tears, and sorrow bids me speak.

I know you all, and will awhile uphold
The unyoked humour of your idleness :
Yet herein will I imitate the sun,
Who doth permit the base contagious clouds
To smother up his beauty from the world,
That, when he please again to be himself,
Being wanted, he may be more wonder'd at,
By breaking through the foul and ugly mists
Of vapours that did seem to strangle him.
If all the year were playing holidays,
To sport would be as tedious as to work ;
But when they seldom come, they wish'd for come,
And nothing pleaseth but rare accidents.
So, when this loose behaviour I throw off
And pay the debt I never promised,
By how much better than my word I am,
By so much shall I falsify men's hopes ;
And like bright metal on a sullen ground,
My reformation, glittering o'er my fault,
Shall show more goodly and attract more eyes
Than that which hath no foil to set it off.
I'll so offend, to make offence a skill ;
Redeeming time when men think least I will.

Age.

Welcome to the morn !

The eastern gates unfold, the priest approaches ;
And lo ! the sun is struggling with the gloom,
Whose masses fill the eastern sky, and tints
Its edges with dull red :—but he will triumph ;
Bless'd be the omen !

Med.

God of light and joy

Once more refresh us with thy healing beams !
If I may trace thy language in the clouds
That wait upon thy rising, help is nigh—
But help achieved in blood.

Ion.

Say'st thou in blood ?

Med.

Yes, Ion !—why, he sickens at the word,
Spite of his new-born strength ;—the sights of woe
That he will seek have shed their paleness on him.
Has this night's walk shown more than common sorrow ?

Ion.

I passed the palace where the frantic king
Yet holds his crimson revel, whence the roar
Of desperate mirth comes mingling with the sigh
Of death-subdued robustness, and the gleam
Of festal lamps 'mid spectral columns hung Flaunting o'er shapes of anguish made them ghastlier.

How can I cease to tremble for the sad ones
He mocks—and him the wretchedest of all ?

When I have said, make answer to us both.
Lo, in this right hand, whose protection
Is most divinely vow'd upon the right
Of him it holds, stands young Plantagenet,
Son to the elder brother of this man,
And king o'er him and all that he enjoys :
For this down-trodden equity, we tread
In warlike march these greens before your town,
Being no further enemy to you
Than the constraint of hospitable zeal
In the relief of this oppressed child
Religiously provokes. Be pleased then
To pay that duty which you truly owe
To him that owes it, namely this young prince :
And then our arms, like to a muzzled bear,
Save in aspect, hath all offence seal'd up ;
Our cannons' malice vainly shall be spent
Against the invulnerable clouds of heaven ;
And with a blessed and unvex'd retire,
With unhack'd swords and helmets all unbruised,
We will bear home that lusty blood again
Which here we came to spout against your town,
And leave your children, wives and you in peace.

Weep no more, nor sigh, nor groan ;
 Sorrow calls no time that's gone :
 Violets plucked the sweetest rain
 Makes not fresh nor grow again :
 Trim thy locks, look cheerfully ;
 Fate's hid ends eyes cannot see :
 Joys as winged dreams fly fast ;
 Why should sadness longer last ?
 Grief is but a wound to woe :
 Gentlest fair, mourn, mourn no moe.

INTO GREEK PROSE

And therefore it was great injustice in Plato, though springing out of a just hatred of the rhetoricians of his time, to esteem of rhetoric but as a voluptuary art, resembling it to cookery, that did mar wholesome meats, and help unwholesome by variety of sauces to the pleasure of the taste. For we see that speech is much more conversant in adorning that which is good than in colouring that which is evil ; for there is no man but speaketh more honestly than he can do or think ; and it was excellently noted by Thucydides in Cleon, that because he used to hold on the bad side in causes of estate, therefore he was ever inveighing against eloquence and good speech, knowing that no man can speak fair of courses sordid and base. And therefore, as Plato said elegantly, ‘That virtue, if she could be seen, would move great love and affection’ : so, seeing that she cannot be showed to the sense by corporal shape, the next degree is to show her to the imagination in lively representation : for to show her to reason only in subtilty of argument was a thing ever derided in Chrysippus, and many of the Stoics, who thought to thrust virtue upon men by sharp disputations and conclusions, which have no sympathy with the will of man.

BACON.

Διὸ καὶ μεγάλην τινὰ ἀδικίαν ἡδίκησε Πλάτων, καίπερ ἀπὸ δικαίας πάνυ ἔχθρας τῶν τότε ῥητόρων ὀρμωμένην, τὸ ἀποκαλεῖν ὥσπερ ἀπολαυστικὴν παρασκευὴν τὴν ῥητορικὴν, ἀπεικάζων τῇ ὀψοποιικῇ, ἥπερ ἄρα σιτία τὰ μὲν ὑγιεινὰ λυμαίνοιτο τοῖς δὲ μὴ βοηθοίῃ διὰ ποικιλίας ὄψων ὡς δὴ τῇ γεύσει χαριουμένη. σύνοισμεν γὰρ τῷ λόγῳ πολὺ μᾶλλον κοσμητικῷ ὄντι τοῦ ἀγαθοῦ ἢ τοῦ κακοῦ κομμωτικῷ, ἐπεὶ οὐδεὶς ὅστις οὐ κάλλιον λέγει ἢ καθ' ἃ ποιεῖ ἢ καὶ οἶεται· ὥστε μετρίως εἴρηται περὶ Κλέωνος τῷ Θουκυδίδῃ, ὅτι ἐν τῷ πολιτεύεσθαι ἀεὶ εἶχετο τοῦ χείρονος, διὰ ταῦτα ἀεὶ λοιδοροῦντος τὴν δεινότητα καὶ ῥητορικὴν, εἰδότος ἄρα ὅτι οὐδεὶς εὖ ἂν λέγοι περὶ τῶν φανλοτέρων καὶ αἰσχιόνων. ὅθεν καὶ συμβαίνει, καθάπερ ὁ Πλάτων κομψῶς εἶπε περὶ τῆς ἀρετῆς, ὅτι δεινούς ἂν παρῆχεν ἔρωτας αὐτῆς, εἰ εἰς ὄψιν ἦει, οὕτως, ἅτε οὐ καταληπτὴν οὔσαν οὐδεμιᾷ τῶν διὰ τοῦ σώματος αἰσθήσεων, τὸ ἐπὶ τούτοις ἐμφαίνεσθαι δεῖν τῇ φαντασίᾳ στίλβουσιν ὡς ἐναργέστατα. ἐπεὶ τὸ τῇ γε διανοίᾳ ἐμφανίζειν αὐτὴν διὰ λόγου ποικιλίας οὐδεὶς ὅστις οὐ καταγελαῖ τῶν τε ἄλλων πολλῶν Στωϊκῶν καὶ δὴ καὶ Χρυσίππου, οἰομένου δεῖν διὰ τῶν ἀκριβῶν μεθόδων καὶ συλλογισμῶν ἄκουσιν ἐπεμβάλλειν τὴν ἀρετὴν, ὧν οὐδὲν μετέχουσιν αἱ γε ἀνθρώπιναι ὀρέξεις.

I need not recall the events of that and of the precedent years of the war. Not only the arms of France had been defeated on every side, but the inward state of that kingdom was already more exhausted than it had ever been. She went on indeed, but she staggered and reeled under the burden of the war. Our condition, I speak of Great Britain, was not quite so bad : but the charge of the war increased annually upon us. It was evident that this charge must continue to increase, and it was no less evident that our nation was unable to bear it without falling soon into such distress, and contracting such debts, as we have seen and felt, and still feel. The Dutch neither restrained their trade, nor overloaded it with taxes. They soon altered the proportion of their quotas, and were deficient even after this alteration in them. But, however, it must be allowed that they exerted their whole strength ; and they and we paid the whole charge of the war. Since therefore by such efforts as could not be continued any longer, without oppressing and impoverishing these nations to a degree that no interest except that of their very being, nor any engagement of assisting an alliance totis viribus could require, France was reduced, and all the ends of the war were become attainable ; it will be worth your lordship's while to consider why the true use was not made of the success of the confederates against France and Spain, and why a peace was not concluded in the fifth year of the war.

Τὰ δὲ πεπολεμημένα καὶ τότε καὶ ἐν τοῖς ἔτι πρότερον ἔτεσιν οὐδὲν δεῖ ὑπομνῆσαι εἰδότας. ἡ μὲν γὰρ Γαλατία οὐχ ὅτι τὰ ὄπλα πανταχόθεν ἤδη ἡσσήτο, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὰ οἰκοθεν τότε δὴ ὥσπερ οὐδεπώποτε καταναλωμένα ἦν. οὐ μὲν ἀλλὰ ἔτι ὀρθομένη διετέλει, σφαλλομένη μέντοι καὶ ὅσον οὐ πταίονσα διὰ τὸ ἄχθος τὸ τοῦ πολέμου· τὰ δὲ ἡμέτερα πράγματα, τὰ τῆς Βρεταννίας λέγω, οὐ μὰ Δί' οὐχί πω κακῶς οὕτω διέκειτο, τὰ δὲ ἀναλώματα τὰ κατ' ἐνιαυτὸν ἐπὶ τὸ μείζον ηὐξάνετο. οὐδέ γε ἄδηλα ἦν οὔτε ταῦτα ἂν ἔτι μᾶλλον ἐπιδιδόντα, οὔτε ἡ πόλις αὐτῇ ἀδύνατος ἐσομένη ὑπενεγκεῖν μὴ οὐκ εἰς τοσαύτην μὲν τὴν ἀπορίαν καταστᾶσα, τοσαῦτα δὲ ὀφειλήματα ὀφείλουσα, ὅσα μέχρι τοῦ δεῦρο ὀρώμεν τε καὶ αἰσθανόμεθα. οἱ δὲ Βατανοὶ τὴν ἐμπορίαν οὔτε κατεῖχον, οὔτε εἰσφορὰς πραξάμενοι ἐπίεζον· ἀλλ' ὕστερον τὸ ἐπιβάλλον μέρος μεταβαλόντες καὶ ὥς ἐνδεέστεροι ἐγένοντο. οὐ μὲν ἀλλ' ἐκεῖνό γε ὁμολογητέον, ὅτι οὐδὲν ἐκλιπὲς ἦν ὅσα γε τὸ κατ' αὐτούς· ἐκεῖνοι δὲ σὺν ἡμῖν πάντα τὰ τοῦ πολέμου ἀναλώματα ὑπήνεγκαν. ἐπειδὴ τοίνυν τὰ τοιαῦτα ταλαιπωροῦντες οἷα διακαρτερῶν τις ἐπὶ τοσοῦτον ἔμελλε τὰς πόλεις ταύτας κατατρίψειν καὶ καταναλώσειν, ὅσον οὔτε δι' οὐδὲν τῶν συμφερόντων εἰ μὴ αὐτοῦ τοῦ περιεῖναι ἔνεκα ἐνεχώρει, οὔτε συνθήκη οὐδεμία βοηθείας τοῖς συμμάχοις παντὶ σθένει κατὰ τὸ δυνατόν ἂν ἀΐαγκάζοι, παρεστησάμεθα τὴν Γαλατίαν καὶ ὅσα βουλόμενοι ἠρξάμεθα τοῦ πολέμου ἤδη καταληπτὰ ἐγένετο, ἄξιον ἂν εἴη ἐξετάσαι τί ἦν τὰ κωλύοντα τοὺς συμμάχους μὴ ἱκανῶς χρήσασθαι τοῖς κατωρθωμένοις πρὸς Γαλάτας καὶ Ἰβηρας, μηδὲ ποιήσασθαι εἰρήνην ἐν τῷ πέμπτῳ ἔτει τοῦ πολέμου.

The immediate occasion which led to Draco's legislation is not recorded, and even the motives which induced him to impress it with that character of severity to which it owes its chief celebrity, are not clearly ascertained. We know, however, that he was the author of the first written laws of Athens: and as this measure tended to limit the authority of the nobles, to which a customary law, of which they were the sole expounders, opposed a much feebler check, we may reasonably conclude that the innovation did not proceed from their wish, but was extorted from them by the growing discontent of the people. On the other hand, Draco undoubtedly framed his code as much as possible in conformity to the spirit and the interests of the ruling class, to which he himself belonged; and hence we may fairly infer that the extreme rigour of its penal enactments was designed to overawe and repress the popular movement which had produced it. Aristotle observes that Draco made no change in the constitution; and that there was nothing remarkable in his laws, except the severity of the penalties by which they were sanctioned. It must however be remembered that the substitution of law for custom, of a written code for a fluctuating and flexible tradition, was itself a step of great importance; and we also learn that he introduced some changes in the administration of criminal justice, by transferring causes of murder, or of accidental homicide, from the cognizance of the archons to the magistrates called ephetes; though it is not clear whether he instituted, or only modified or enlarged, their jurisdiction.

Τὰ δὲ πρὸς τὸ νομοθετεῖν τὸν Δράκοντα εὐθὺς προοδοποιούντα οὔτε λέγεται, ἢ τε διανοούμενος τοσαύτην τῇ νομοθεσίᾳ ἐνεσημήνατο τὴν ὁμότητα ὥστε δι' αὐτὴν ταύτην ὀνομαστοτάτην εἶναι, οὐδὲ ταῦτα διηκρίβωται ἱκανῶς. φαίνεται δ' οὖν πρῶτος γράψας νόμους Ἀθηναίοις· ἐπειδὴ δὲ τοῦτο παραιρεῖσθαι ἔμελλέ τι τῆς τῶν εὐπατρίδων ἐξουσίας, ἣ νόμος τις ἄγραφος πρότερον ὑπάρχων αὐτῶν γε ἐξηγουμένων πολὺ ἀσθενέστερον ἦν ἐμπόδιον, οὐκ ἂν ἀλόγῳ τις τεκμηρίῳ λέγοι χρώμενος ὅτι οὐ μᾶλλον βουλομένοις τούτοις ἐνεωτερίσθῃ ἢ βιαζομένοις διὰ τὸν τῶν δημοτῶν ἀεὶ ἐπιδιδόντα θόρυβον. τοῦναντίον δὲ φαίνεται Δράκων τοὺς νόμους θεῖς κατὰ νοῦν τε καὶ πρὸς τὸ συμφέρον ὅτι μάλιστα τοῖς δυνατοῖς, ὧν καὶ αὐτὸς ἦν· ὁ καὶ σημεῖον ὅτι καταπλήξαι τε καὶ κατέχειν βουλόμενος τὴν τῶν πολλῶν κίνησιν, ἣ καὶ αἰτία ἦν τοῦ νομοθετεῖν, οὕτω δὲ τὴν ἐσχάτην τῶν ἐπιτιμιῶν ἀκρίβειαν εἰκότως εἰσήνεγκε. τῆς γοῦν πολιτείας οὗ φησιν Ἀριστοτέλης οὐδὲν μεταβαλεῖν αὐτόν, οὐδ' ἐνεῖναι ἄλλο οὐδὲν ὅ τι καὶ λόγου ἄξιον τοῖς νόμοις ἀλλ' ἢ ὅτι χαλεπαῖς ταῖς ζημίαις κατειλημμένοι εἶεν. οὐ μὲν οὐδὲ ἐκεῖνο δεῖ λεληθέναι ὅτι τὸ νόμον ἀντὶ ἔθους ἀντικαταστήσαι, ἀνταλλάξαντα τῆς ἀβεβαίου καὶ εὐμεταβόλου παραδοχῆς τὰ γεγραμμένα, τοῦτο αὐτὸ προὔργου τι ἐγένετο· λέγεται δὲ καὶ ἔστιν ἃ νεωτερίσαι περὶ τοῦ τοὺς ἀδικούντας δικάζειν, τὰ περὶ φόνου τοῦ τε ἐκουσίου καὶ τοῦ ἀκουσίου μετενεγκῶν ἀπὸ τῶν ἀρχόντων εἰς τοὺς ἐφέτας καλουμένους, καίπερ ἄδηλον ὃν εἴτε καταστήσας τὸ ἀρχεῖον τοῦτο εἴτε ἐπανορθούμενος ἢ καὶ μείζω τὰ γέρα ἐγχειρίσας.

First, for the king our sovereign himself, who is the principal person you are to eye in this business ; his grace doth profess, that he truly and constantly desireth to reign in peace. But his grace saith, he will neither buy peace with dishonour nor take it up at interest of danger to ensue ; but shall think it a good change, if it please God to change the inward troubles and seditions, wherewith he hath been hitherto exercised, into an honourable foreign war. And for the other two persons in this action, the French king and the duke of Britain, his grace doth declare unto you, that they be the men unto whom he is of all other friends and allies most bounden : the one having held over him his hand of protection from the tyrant ; the other having reached forth unto him his hand of help for the recovery of his kingdom. So that his affection toward them in his natural person is upon equal terms. And whereas you may have heard that his grace was enforced to fly out of Britain into France, for doubts of being betrayed ; his grace would not in any sort have that reflect upon the duke of Britain, in defacement of his former benefits ; for that he is throughly informed that it was but the practice of some corrupt persons about him, during the time of his sickness, altogether without his consent or privity.

BACON.

Πρῶτον μὲν ὁ βασιλεὺς ὁ ἡμέτερος—τοῦτον γὰρ δὴ πρῶτον ἐνταῦθα ἐπισκεπτέον κατὰ τὸ προσήκον τοῦ ἀξιώματος—δηλοῖ ὅτι ὡς ἀληθῶς οὐδὲν ἄλλο βούλεται ἢ ὅπως εἰρηνεύων διατελεῖ. τὴν μέντοι εἰρήνην αὐτὴν οὐτ' ἂν φησι τῆς δυσκλείας ὠνεῖσθαι, οὐτ' ἐπὶ πολλῷ τῷ γένησομένῳ κινδύνῳ δανείζεσθαι· ἡγεῖται δὲ ἐπὶ τὸ βέλτιον περιστῆναι ἂν τὰ πράγματα, σὺν τοῖς θεοῖς εἰπεῖν, εἰ τῶν οἰκείων ταραχῶν καὶ στάσεων μέχρι τοῦ δεῦρο πεπειραμένος πόλεμον ἐν τῇ ἀλλοτρίᾳ οὐκ ἄδοξον ἀνταλλάξαιτο. ἔπειτα πρὸς ἐκείνους πρὸς οὓς ἐν τῇ παρόντι ἐστὶν ἡ σκέψις, λέγω δὲ τὸν Γαλάτην καὶ τὸν Ἀρμορικόν, τοσοῦτον ὁ βασιλεὺς ἀποφαίνεται ὅτι τούτοις οὐχ ἥκιστα τῶν ἄλλων φίλων καὶ ἐνσπόνδων κεῖται παρ' αὐτῷ εὐεργεσία, ὧν ὁ μὲν ὑπερέσχε τὴν χεῖρα ἵνα μὴ τι πάθῃ ὑπὸ τοῦ τυράννου, ὁ δὲ ὥρεξεν αὐτῷ βοηθοῦσαν σπεύδοντι τὴν κάθοδον· ὥστε ὅσα γε πρὸς τὴν φύσιν αὐτοῦ μηδὲ πρὸς ἕτερον μᾶλλον σπουδάζειν. εἰ δ' ἄρα καὶ ἀκηκόατε περὶ τοῦ βασιλέως, ὡς φοβούμενός ποτε μὴ τις προδῷ αὐτὸν ἐξ Ἀρμορικῆς καταφύγοι εἰς Γαλατίαν, οὐδὲ τοῦτο ἀξιοῖ οὐδαμῶς τῷ Ἀρμορικῷ καταμέμφεσθαι ὥστε μηκέτι μεμνήσθαι τῶν προτέρων εὐεργεσιῶν, τοσοῦτον εὖ κατειδὼς ὅτι τὰ τοιαῦτα ἐβουλεύσαντο τῶν παρ' αὐτῷ τινὲς σύμβουλοι καὶ μισθωταὶ λανθάνοντες αὐτὸν ἅτε χαλεπῶς ἐν τῷ τότε νοσοῦντα, καὶ οὐ συγκαταίνέσαντα ἀλλ' οὐδὲ συνειδότα.

No Grecian lawgiver ever thought of entirely abolishing ancient usage, and becoming according to the modern phrase the framer of a new constitution. In legislating they only reformed. Lycurgus, Solon, and the others, so far from abolishing what usage had established, endeavoured to preserve everything which could be preserved, adding only several new institutions and improving those already in existence. If therefore we possessed the whole of the laws of Solon, we should by no means find them to contain a perfect constitution. But to compensate for that, they embraced, not only the rights of individuals, but also morals, in a much higher degree than the latter can be embraced in the view of any modern lawgiver. The regulation of private life, and hence the education of youth, on which the prevalence and continuance of good morals depend, formed one of their leading objects. They were convinced that the state would otherwise be incapable of governing itself. To this it must be added, that in these small commonwealths, in these towns with their territories, many regulations could be made and executed which could not be put into operation in a powerful and widely extended nation. Whether these regulations were always good, and always well adapted to their purpose, is quite another question. It is our duty at present to show from what point of view those lawgivers were accustomed to regard the art of regulating the state, and the means of preserving and directing it.

Solon. Let me put to you a few questions, near to the point : you will answer them, I am confident, easily and affably. Pisistratus, have you not felt yourself the happier, when, in the fulness of your heart, you have made a large offering to the gods ?

Pisistratus. Solon, I am not impious : I have made many such offerings to them, and have always been the happier.

Sol. Did they need your sacrifice ?

Pis. They need nothing from us mortals ; but I was happy in the performance of what I have been taught is my duty.

Sol. Piously, virtuously, and reasonably said, my friend. The gods did not indeed want your sacrifice : they, who give every thing, can want nothing. The Athenians do want a sacrifice from you : they have an urgent necessity of something ; the necessity of that very thing which you have taken from them, and which it can cost you nothing to replace. You have always been happier, you confess, in giving to the gods what you could have yourself used in your own house : believe me, you will not be less so in giving back to your fellow citizens what you have taken out of theirs, and what you very well know they will seize when they can, together with your property and life.

LANDOR.

Σόλ. Φέρε δὴ, ὀλίγα ἄττα σε ἔρωμαι οὐκ ἄπο τρόπου· σὺ γὰρ ῥαδίως ἂν οἶμαι ἀποκρίναιο καὶ οὐδὲν δυσχεραίνων. μέμνησαί που, ὦ Πεισίστρατε, εὐδαιμονέστερον διακείμενος, ὅποτε ὡς χάριν ἀποδώσων ἱκανὴν τινα τοῖς θεοῖς ἐδωρήσω θυσίαν.

Πεισ. οὐ γὰρ ἀσεβής τίς εἰμι, ὦ Σόλων· πολλὰ τὰ τοιαῦτα δωρησάμενος αὐτοῖς μέμνημαι καὶ πολλάκις αἰεὶ δὲ ἥδιον διακείμενος.

Σόλ. μὴν ὡς δεομένοις τι τῆς σῆς θυσίας;

Σόλ. εὐσεβῶς γὰρ σὺ καὶ δικαίως καὶ νουνεχόντως λέγεις· ἐπεὶ οἱ μὲν θεοὶ οὐ πάνυ ἐδέοντο τῆς σῆς θυσίας. τίνος γὰρ ἂν ἐνδεεῖς εἶεν οἱ γε αὐτοὶ πάντα δωρούμενοι; οἱ δέ γε Ἀθηναῖοι ἀπαρχῆς τινὸς δέονται παρὰ σοῦ. ἔστι γὰρ οὗ χρεία τις αὐτοὺς κατεπείγει, τούτου αὐτοῦ ὃ ἀφήρησαι αὐτοὺς καὶ ἔχοις ἂν προῖκα ἀποδοῦναι· καὶ ὅτι μὲν αἰεὶ ἥδιον διάκεισαι τοῖς θεοῖς ταῦτα ἀπονέμων οἷς ἐνδον παρὰ σταντῷ χρῆσθαι ἐνεδέχετο, καὶ αὐτὸς ὁμολογεῖς· εὖ δ' ἴσθ' ὅτι οὐδὲν ἥττον ταῦτόν ἂν πάσχοις ἐὰν καὶ τοῖς πολίταις ἀποδῶς ὃ ἀφελόμενος αὐτοὺς ἀδαπάνως ἂν ἀποδοίης. εὐδαιμονέστερος γοῦν ὢν, ὡς καὶ αὐτὸς φῆς, τοῖς θεοῖς ἐκεῖνα ἀπένειμας ὅσοις οἴκοι παρὰ σεαυτῷ ἐξῆν χρῆσθαι· ταῦτα δὲ ἂν ἀφήρησαι τοὺς πολίτας οἰκοθεν παρ' αὐτῶν ἀποδιδούς οὐδὲν ἥττον ἴσθι ἐσόμενος, ὅταν δυνηθῶσιν ἄρπασομένους εὖ εἰδὼς αὐτά τε καὶ τὰ χρήματά σου καὶ δὴ καὶ τὴν ψυχὴν.

There were in the town five and twenty hundred foot, and a regiment of horse and dragoons; the line about the town was finished; yet in some places the graff was wider and deeper than in others. The castle within the town was very well prepared, and supplied with great store of provisions to endure a siege. The opinions were several: the officers of the Cornish were of opinion that it was best to proceed by way of approach; because, the ground being very good, it would in a very short time be done; and since there was no army of the enemy in a possibility to relieve it, the securest way would be the best: whereas the works were so good, that they must expect to lose very many men; and if they were beaten off all their summer hopes would be destroyed; it not being easy again to make up the spirit of the army for a new action. Besides, they alleged, the well-affected party in the city, which was believed to be very great, would, after they had been closely besieged three or four days, have a greater influence upon the soldiers, and be able to do more towards the surrender, than they could upon a storm, when they would be equally sensible of the disorder of the soldiers, and their own damage by plunder, as the other; and the too late example of the executed citizens would keep men from offering at any insurrection in the city.

CLARENDON.

Ἦσαν δὲ ἔνδον πεζοὶ μὲν πεντακόσιοι καὶ δισχίλιοι, τῶν δὲ ἱππέων καὶ ἱπποτοξοτῶν τέλος ἓν· ἐπετετέλεστο δὲ ἤδη ὁ μὲν περίβολος τῶν τειχῶν, ἡ δὲ τάφρος ἔστιν ἡ βάθους καὶ εὐρους ἱκανῶς εἶχεν, ἔστι δ' ἡ ἐνέλιπεν. ἡ δὲ ἀκρόπολις τά τε ἄλλα πάνυ εὖ παρεσκευασμένη ἦν καὶ τοῖς σιτίοις ὡς ἐπὶ πολιορκίαν. καὶ ἄλλοι μὲν ἄλλας γνώμας ἀπεφαίνοντο· τοῖς δὲ ἐν τέλει οὖσι τῶν Δαμνονίων ἐδόκει χῶμα ποιήσαντας μᾶλλον ἢ διὰ προσβολῆς πειρητέα εἶναι τὴν ἐπιχείρησιν· ἐπιτηδείας γὰρ οὔσης τῆς γῆς οὐ διὰ πολλοῦ κατορθώσεσθαι τὴν πεῖραν· καὶ ἅμα τῶν πολεμίων οὐδενὸς ἐν δυνάμει ὄντος ὥστε βοηθῆσαι τὸ ἀσφαλέστατον καὶ βέλτιστον. εἰ δὲ μή, ἰσχυρῶν ὄντων τῶν τειχισμάτων, εἰκὸς εἶναι πολλοὺς τινὰς ἂν ἀπολέσαι, ἡσσηθεῖσι δὲ ἐν ἀνελπίστω ἤδη εἶναι τὰ ἔς γε τὸ παρὸν θέρος· οὐδὲ γὰρ ῥάδιον παραθαρσύνειν τοὺς στρατιώτας ὥστε ἀναμάχεσθαι. πολλοὺς δὲ καὶ ὄντας ὡς εἰκὸς τοὺς ἐν τῇ πόλει τὰ ἑαυτῶν φρονούντας, ἐπειδὴν τρίτη ἢ τετάρτη ἡμέρα γένηται πολιορκουμένοις, μᾶλλον πείσειν τοὺς ἔνδοθεν, καὶ πολὺ μᾶλλον ξυνοίσειν ἐς τὴν ὁμολογίαν ἢ κατὰ προσβολήν, εἰ γένοιτο, ἅτε ὑπὸ τῶν στρατιωτῶν ἀτακτούντων καὶ λείαν ποιουμένων καὶ αὐτοὺς οὐδὲν ἡσσον διαφθαρησομένους· τοὺς δὲ ἄρτι ζημιωθέντας θανάτῳ τῶν ἀστῶν μεγίστην ἂν εἶναι ἀποτροπὴν τοῦ μηδένα ἔτι στασιάζειν ἐν τῇ πόλει.

Ambition is like choler, which is an humour that maketh men active, earnest, full of alacrity and stirring, if it be not stopped ; but if it be stopped and cannot have its way it becometh adust, and thereby malign and venomous : so ambitious men, if they find the way open for their rising, and if they still get forward, they are rather busy than dangerous ; but if they be checked in their desires they become secretly discontent, and look upon men and matters with an evil eye, and are best pleased when things go backward ; which is the worst property in a servant of a prince or state. Therefore it is good for princes, if they use ambitious men, to handle it so that they be still progressive, and not retrograde ; which, because it cannot be without inconvenience, it is good not to use such natures at all ; for if they rise not with their service, they will take order to make their service fall with them. But since we have said it were good not to use men of ambitious natures, except it be upon necessity, it is fit we speak in what cases they are of necessity. Good commanders in the wars must be taken, be they never so ambitious ; for the use of their service dispenseth with the rest ; and to take a soldier without ambition is to pull off his spurs. There is also great use of ambitious men in being screens to princes in matters of danger and envy ; for no man will take that part except he be like a seeled dove, that mounts and mounts because he cannot see about him. There is use also of ambitious men in pulling down the greatness of any subject that overtops ; as Tiberius used Macro in the pulling down of Sejanus.

When our ministers had once departed from the straight line of British policy, the difficulty of returning to it became every year greater, and the inclination every year less. We continued busy and bustling in every court of Europe. We negotiated against the Emperor in concert with France, and gave her thereby the means of regaining more of that credit and influence in the Empire, which she had formerly had, than she could have acquired without our assistance. We contrived to make peace abroad almost as chargeable to us as war. Abuses of every kind were suffered at home. Trade was neither eased nor encouraged; and the gradual payment of our debt was utterly neglected by a minister rather desirous to keep his country under this oppression than ignorant of the means to deliver her from it. Whilst we acted in this manner, France grew frugal, she made the debts she could not pay sit more lightly upon her, she raised her credit, and she extended her commerce. In short, her strength increased, and ours diminished. We were reduced to a state of weakness we had never felt before; and this very weakness was urged as a reason for bearing tamely the losses our merchants sustained, and all the affronts our government received, lest we should be drawn into a war by using reprisals, the common right of nations.

The English ambassadors, having repaired to Maximilian, did find his power and promise at a very great distance ; he being utterly unprovided of men, money, and arms, for any such enterprise. For Maximilian, having neither wing to fly on, for that his patrimony of Austria was not in his hands, his father being then living, and on the other side, his matrimonial territories of Flanders being partly in dowry to his mother-in-law, and partly not serviceable, in respect of the late rebellions ; was thereby destitute of means to enter into war. The ambassadors saw this well, but wisely thought fit to advertise the king thereof, rather than to return themselves, till the king's farther pleasure were known ; the rather, for that Maximilian himself spake as great as ever he did before, and entertained them with dilatory answers : so as the formal part of their ambassage might well warrant and require their farther stay. The king hereupon, who doubted as much before, and saw through his business from the beginning, wrote back to the ambassadors, commending their discretion in not returning, and willing them to keep the state wherein they found Maximilian as a secret, till they heard farther from him.

The speech which he addressed to the Assembly may be taken as one instance out of numbers of these solemn and volunteered declarations. He considered, he said, as great criminals, those who by personal ambition compromised the small amount of stability secured by the Constitution; that if the Constitution contained defects and dangers, the Assembly was competent to expose them to the eyes of the country; but that he alone, bound by his oath, restrained himself within the strict limits traced by that act. He declared that the first duty of authorities was to inspire the people with respect for the law by never deviating from it themselves; and that his anxiety was not, he assured the Assembly, to know who would govern France in 1852, but to employ the time at his disposal, so that the transition, whatever it might be, should be effected without agitation or disturbance; for, said he, the noblest object and the most worthy of an exalted mind is not to seek when in power how to perpetuate it, but to labour incessantly to fortify, for the benefit of all, those principles of authority and morality, which defy the passions of mankind and the instability of laws.

Euphranor. Tell me, Alciphron, is your genuine philosopher a wise man or a fool?

Alciphron. Without question the wisest of men.

Euph. Which is to be thought the wise man, he who acts with design, or he who acts at random?

Alc. He who acts with design.

Euph. Whoever acts with design, acts for some end : doth he not?

Alc. He doth.

Euph. And a wise man for a good end?

Alc. True.

Euph. And he showeth his wisdom in making choice of fit means to obtain his end?

Alc. I acknowledge it.

Euph. By how much therefore the end proposed is more excellent, and by how much fitter the means employed are to obtain it, so much the wiser is the agent to be esteemed.

Alc. This seems to be true.

Euph. Can a rational agent propose a more excellent end than happiness?

Alc. He cannot.

Euph. Of good things the greatest good is the most excellent.

Alc. Doubtless.

Euph. Is not the general happiness of mankind a greater good than the private happiness of one man, or of some certain man?

Alc. It is.

Euph. Is it not therefore the most excellent end?

Alc. It seems so.

Euph. Are not those men who pursue this end by the properest methods to be thought the wisest men?

Alc. I grant they are.

Euph. Which is a wise man governed by, wise or foolish notions?

Alc. By wise doubtless.

Euph. It seems then to follow, that he who promotes the general wellbeing of mankind by the proper necessary means is truly wise and acts upon wise grounds.

There he cast anchor, and, to prove the affections of the people, sent some of his men to land, making great boasts of the power that was to follow. The Kentish men, perceiving that Perkin was not followed by any English of name or account, and that his forces consisted but of strangers born, and most of them base people and freebooters, fitter to spoil a coast than to recover a kingdom; resorting unto the principal gentlemen of the country, professed their loyalty to the king, and desired to be directed and commanded for the best of the king's service. The gentlemen entering into consultation, directed some forces in good number to show themselves upon the coast; and some of them to make signs to entice Perkin's soldiers to land, as if they would join with them; and some others to appear from some other places, and to make semblance as if they fled from them, the better to encourage them to land. But Perkin, who, by playing the prince, or else taught by secretary Frion, had learned thus much, that people under command do use to consult, and after to march in order, and rebels contrariwise run upon an head together in confusion; considering the delay of time, and observing their orderly and not tumultuary arming, doubted the worst.

BACON.

Ἐνταῦθα δὲ καθορμισάμενος, καὶ βουλόμενος ἀποπειρᾶσθαι τῶν αὐτόθεν ὡς ἔχοιεν εὐνοίας, ἄνδρας τῶν σφετέρων ἀπεβίβασε τὴν μέλλουσαν ἔτι κατάγεσθαι δύναμιν μεγαλύνοντας. τοὺς δὲ Καντίους, οὔτε γὰρ ἔλαθεν αὐτοὺς ὅτι οὐδεὶς ὅστις καὶ λόγου ἄξιος τῶν ἐπιχωρίων μετὰ Περκίνου εἴη, ὁρῶντές τε τὴν στρατιὰν ἀλλόφυλον οὔσαν, ἀνθρώπους μοχθηροὺς καὶ ληστὰς οἷους τῆς παραθαλασσίας μᾶλλον τέμνειν ἢ τὴν βασιλείαν ἀναλαβεῖν, ὡς τοὺς ἐκεῖ αὐτοῦ δυνατωτάτους ἐτράποντο, ἅμα μὲν ἐπαγγελλόμενοι τὴν εὐνοίαν, ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ δὲ ἐδέοντο ὅπως τις ἄρξει καὶ ἐξηγήσεται ὡς ἂν μάλιστα συμφέρῃ τῷ βασιλεῖ. οἱ δὲ διαβουλευσάμενοι ἐκέλευον μέρος τι οὐκ ὀλίγον φανεροὺς εἶναι ἐν τῷ αἰγιαλῷ, καὶ τοὺς μὲν σημεία ἄραντας ἐπισπάσασθαι τοὺς μετὰ Περκίνου ἐς ἀπόβασιν ὡς προσχωρησομένους δῆ, τοὺς δὲ ἔδει ἄλλους ἄλλοθεν ἀναφανῆναι φυγὴν προσποιουμένους, ἐάν πως θαρσαλεώτερον ἀποβῆναι προθυμῶνται. ὁ δὲ Πέρκινος, ἥτοι αὐτὸς ὑποκρινόμενος βασιλεὺς εἶναι ἢ Φρίωνος διδάσκοντος τοῦ γραμματέως, τοσοῦτον δ' οὖν εὖ ᾔδει τοὺς μὲν πειθαρχοῦντας ὅτι βουλευσάμενοι οὕτως ὡς ἂν τις προστάσῃ πορεύεσθαι φιλοῦσι, οἱ δὲ ἐπαναστάντες τὸνναντίον ἀξυντάκτως αὐτοὶ ἑαυτοῖς ἐμπαλάσσονται· ἀναλογισάμενος δὲ τὴν διατριβὴν καὶ τὴν ὅπλισιν αἰσθόμενος ἐν κόσμῳ οὔσαν καὶ ἐν οὐδενὶ θορύβῳ ἤδη ὑπώπτευε μὴ πάθῃ τὰ ἔσχατα.

As to the abuses of anger, which it is to be observed may be in all different degrees, the first which occurs is what is commonly called passion ; to which some men are liable, in the same way as others are to the epilepsy, or any sudden particular disorder. This distemper of the mind seizes them upon the least occasion in the world, and perpetually without any real occasion at all : and by means of it they are plainly, every day, every waking hour of their lives, liable and in danger of running into the most extravagant outrages. Of a less boisterous, but not of a less innocent kind, is peevishness ; which I mention with pity, with real pity to the unhappy creatures, who, from their inferior station, or other circumstances and relations, are obliged to be in the way of, and to serve for a supply to it. Both these, for aught that I can see, are one and the same principle : but as it takes root in minds of different makes, it appears differently, and so is come to be distinguished by different names. That which in a more feeble temper is peevishness, and languidly discharges itself upon everything which comes in its way ; the same principle in a temper of greater force and stronger passions, becomes rage and fury. In one, the humour discharges itself at once ; in the other, it is continually discharging. This is the account of passion and peevishness, as distinct from each other, and appearing in different persons. It is no objection against the truth of it, that they are both to be seen sometimes in one and the same person.

BUTLER.

“Ὅσα δὲ ἁμαρτάνουσι περὶ ὀργάς, ἃ ἐνδέχεται κατὰ πάντα γίγνεσθαι διαφέροντα τῷ μᾶλλον καὶ ἥττον, πρῶτον ἐπέρχεται τὴν ὀργιλότητα καλουμένην ἐπισκέψασθαι, ἣ εἰσὶν οἱ πεφύκασιν ἔνοχοι, καθάπερ καὶ ἄλλοι ἐπιληπτικοὶ ἢ καὶ πρὸς ἄλλην τινὰ ἀποκεκριμένην νόσον τῶν ἐξ αἰφνιδίου. ἣ δὲ καταβολὴ αὕτη τῆς ψυχῆς ἐφ’ ὁποιαοῦν προφάσει καταλαμβάνει τοὺς τοιούτους, ἣ καὶ πολλάκις ἐπ’ οὐδεμιᾷ, ὥστε διὰ ταύτην δῆλον ὅτι ὅσημέραι καὶ δὴ καὶ πλειστάκις τῆς ἡμέρας μὴ καθεύδοντες κινδυνεύουσιν εἰς τὰ ἀτοπώτατα προχωρεῖν. τὴν δὲ σφοδροτέραν μὲν οὐ συγγνωμονικὴν μέντοι οὐδὲν ἥττον λέγω δυσκολίαν. ἥς καὶ μεμνημένος ἐποικτεῖρω τοὺς ἀθλιωτάτους τούτους, ὅστις ἦτοι ὑποδεέστερος ὢν ἢ καὶ ἄλλως πως ἢ κατὰ τι ἢ πρὸς τι διακείμενος μήτε ἐκποδὼν στήναι δύναται τρέφειν τε τὸ πάθος ἀναγκάζεται. ἀμφοῖν δὴ, ὅσα γε ἐμοὶ δοκεῖ, μία καὶ ἡ αὐτὴ ἀρχὴ ἂν εἴη· ἄλλης μέντοι ἐν ἄλλῳ ἐμφυομένης, ἀλλοία καὶ τὰ εἶδη, ὥστε διορισθῆναι ἰδίῳ ἐκάτερον ὀνόματι. ἣ γὰρ ἀσθενεστέρας τινὸς φύσεως ἐπιτυχοῦσα, καὶ πρὸς ὃ τι ἂν ἦ ἐμποδὼν πρὸς τοῦτο ἀνειμένως ἀποδιδούσα, ἔστω δυσκολία· ἣ δὲ αὐτὴ ἐπὶ σφοδροτέρας τε καὶ βιαιοτέρας ψυχῆς εἰς μανίαν τε καὶ ἀγριότητα ἀπεκρίθη. καὶ ἐνταῦθα μὲν εἰσάπαξ ἀποδέδωκεν, ἐκεῖ δὲ οὐδέποτε παύεται. περὶ δὲ τῆς ὀργιλοτητος καὶ δυσκολίας ὡς ἐκατέρας ἀλλοίας οὔσης καὶ ἐν ἐτέρῳ ἐτέρας ἀναφαινομένης ἐπὶ τοσοῦτον εἰρήσθω· οὐδὲν δέ τι ἐλέγχει τὰ λεγόμενα ὅτι ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ ἔστιν ὅτε συνδυάζεσθον.

What were her triumphs afterwards? What was her success after she proceeded on the new plan? I shall say something on that head immediately. Here let me only say, that the glory of taking towns and winning battles is to be measured by the utility that results from those victories. Victories, that bring honour to the arms, may bring shame to the councils, of a nation. To win a battle, to take a town, is the glory of a general, and of an army. Of this glory we had a very large share in the course of the war. But the glory of a nation is to proportion the end she proposes to her interest and her strength: the means she employs to the ends she proposes, and the vigour she exerts to both. Of this glory, I apprehend, we have had very little to boast of at any time, and particularly in the great conjuncture of which I am speaking. The reasons of ambition, avarice, and private interest, which engaged the princes and states of the confederacy to depart from the principles of the grand alliance, were no reasons for Great Britain. She neither expected nor desired anything more than what she might have obtained by adhering to those principles. What hurried our nation then with so much spirit and ardour into those of the new plan?

BOLINGBROKE.

Ποία δὲ τὰ μετὰ ταῦτα ἡ πόλις τρόπαια ἔστησεν; τί δὲ προὔχωρησεν αὐτῇ τὸ καινὸν τοῦτο ἐπιτήδευμα ἐνστησαμένη; ἀλλὰ τούτων πέρι ἐρῶ τι αὐτίκα δὴ μάλα, τοῦτο αὐτὸ ἐν τῷ παρόντι ὑπειπὼν, ὅτι τοῖς τὰς πόλεις ἐκπολιορκούσι καὶ νικῶσι τὰς μάχας ὅσον τὸ τῶν ἐνθένδε ἀποβησομένων συμφέρον τοσαύτη συμβέβηκεν εἶναι καὶ ἡ εὐδοξία. ἐνδέχεται γὰρ ταῖς πόλεσι τὴν αὐτὴν νίκην καλὴν μὲν τοῖς στρατευομένοις, αἰσχίστην δὲ τοῖς πολιτευομένοις δόξαν περιάπτειν. εὐδοκιμεῖ γὰρ ὁ μὲν στρατηγὸς αὐτός τε καὶ τοῖς περὶ αὐτὸν χρώμενος νικῶν τὰς μάχας καὶ τὰς πόλεις ἐκπολιορκῶν, ἡ δέ γε πόλις μέχρι τοῦ τε συμφέροντος καὶ τῆς δυνάμεως ὀριζομένη τὸ τέλος τὸ προκείμενον, καὶ ὅσοις μὲν χρῆται ἀναφέρουσα εἰς τοῦτο, τὸ δὲ πρόθυμον εἰς ἀμφότερα. καὶ ἐκείνης μὲν τῆς εὐκλείας πλεῖστον μετὴν ἡμῖν ἐν τῷ πολέμῳ, ταύτης δέ γ', οἶμαι, μεταποιεῖσθαι οὐδέποτε εἴχομεν, ἐν δὲ τῷ τότε χρόνῳ οὐδ' ὅτιοῦν. ὅ τι γὰρ διανοούμενοι οἱ ἄλλοι, ἦτοι βασιλεύς τις ἢ πόλις, εἴτε διὰ πλεονεξίαν, εἴτε φιλοτιμίαν, εἴτε καὶ τὸ ἰδίᾳ ἕκαστοι συμφέρον θεραπεύοντες, ἀπέστησαν τῆς ὅτε ἡ ἐπὶ μεγάλοις συμμαχία συγκατέστη προαιρέσεως, τούτων οὐδὲν Βρεταννοὶ ὄντες διενεόθημεν, ἅτε οὐδὲν ἄλλο οὔτε ἀξιοῦντες οὔτε ἐφίεμενοι τῶν γενομένων ἂν ἐχομένοις ἐκείνης τῆς προαιρέσεως—τίνι οὖν ἐπαιρόμενοι προθυμότερον καὶ προπετέστερον ἐπὶ τὴν καινὴν ταύτην ὥρμήσαμεν;

Another error, that hath also some affinity with the former, is a conceit that of former opinions or sects, after variety and examination, the best hath still prevailed and suppressed the rest : so as, if a man should begin the labour of a new search, he were but like to light upon somewhat formerly rejected, and by rejection brought into oblivion ; as if the multitude, or the wisest for the multitude's sake, were not ready to give passage rather to that which is popular and superficial than to that which is substantial and profound ; for the truth is, that time seemeth to be of the nature of a river or stream, which carrieth down to us that which is light and blown up, and sinketh and drowneth that which is weighty and solid.

Another error, of a diverse nature from all the former, is the over early and peremptory reduction of knowledge into arts and methods, from which time commonly sciences receive small or no augmentation. But as young men, when they knit and shape perfectly, do seldom grow to a farther stature, so knowledge, while it is in aphorisms and observations, it is in growth ; but when once it is comprehended in exact methods, it may perchance be farther polished and illustrated, and accommodated for use and practice, but it increaseth no more in bulk and substance.

The king, without any alteration in his countenance by all that insolent provocation, told them, that he was their king, they his subjects, who owed him duty and obedience ; that no parliament had any authority to call him before them ; but that they were not the parliament, nor had any authority from the parliament to sit in that manner ; that of all the persons who sat there, and took upon them to judge him, except those persons who being officers of the army he could not but know whilst he was forced to be amongst them, there were only two faces which he had ever seen before, or whose names were known to him. And after urging their duty that was due to him, and his superiority over them, by such lively reasons and arguments as were not capable of any answer, he concluded, that he would not so much betray himself and his royal dignity, as to answer any thing they objected against him, which were to acknowledge their authority ; though he believed that every one of themselves, as well as the spectators, did in their consciences absolve him from all the material things which were objected against him.

CLARENDON.

It may be said again, that a king of France has power enough by the constitution of that government to support a minister who checks corruption, reforms abuses, and maintains a frugal management of the public revenue. But it may be asked, how a minister, who should undertake this, could be supported in a government like ours, where he would be sure to have for his enemies all those who have shared so long the public spoils or who hope to share them, and where these enemies would have the means and opportunities of supplanting him, notwithstanding the protection of his master? I answer, by the parliament. How many ministers have there been, to whom much national mischief was imputed justly, and no one national good could be ascribed, and who were long supported by the favour of the crown, and by the concurrence of the two houses, which this favour and their own management procured them? Shall these supports be sufficient for a wicked or weak minister; and shall innocence and ability, with the same favour and better management, be reckoned for nothing? I cannot think so ill even of the present age, as degenerate as it is. It is degenerate, no doubt: but I have heard men complain of this degeneracy, who promoted it first, and sought their excuse in it afterwards.

The honourable gentlemen are so ingenuous as to confess that our affairs, both abroad and at home, are at present in the utmost distress : but, say they, you ought to free yourselves from this distress, before you inquire how, or by what means, you were brought into it. Sir, according to this way of arguing, a minister that has plundered and betrayed his country, and fears being called to account in parliament, has nothing to do but to involve his country in a dangerous war, or some other great distress, in order to prevent an inquiry into his conduct, because he may be dead before that war is at an end or that distress got over. Thus, like the most villainous of all thieves, after he has plundered the house, he has nothing to do but to set it in a flame, that he may escape in the confusion. It is really astonishing to hear such an argument seriously urged in this house ; but, say these gentlemen, if you found yourself upon a precipice, would you stand to inquire how you were led there, before you considered how to get off ? No, Sir : but if a guide had led me there, I should very probably be provoked to throw him over, before I thought of anything else ; at least, I am sure I should not trust to the same guide for bringing me off, and this, Sir, is the strongest argument that can be used for an inquiry.

The proverbial truth tells us 'extremes meet,' as in this case also is verified ; whereas the mean which our Church holds will never meet with either extreme ; they parted off from it ; and, however slight the original divergence, become more and more widely separated from it, and never again join. To a careless or superficial thinker, the mean seems likely to join the extreme, because it has in it some quality which is wanting to the other extreme ; but it is not so ; it agrees with the extreme, not in essentials, but in something incidental ; the rash man appears to have one quality in common with the brave one, in that he exposes himself to danger ; the brave man's caution may readily appear like cowardice ; and so the rash thinks the brave cowardly, and the coward holds him to be rash ; whereas the exposing himself to danger or no, is but an accident ; the principle on which he does it, or refrains from it, is that which constitutes his character ; he then will neither be rash nor cowardly ; but the coward will be rash, and the rash will be cowardly, if emergencies so determine. Prodigality and avarice seem to be contraries ; yet are they continually united, as in Catiline, 'alieni appetens, sui profusus' ; he who is simply liberal will be neither, though by either extreme he will be confounded with the other. 'Extremes meet,' because they proceed on no settled principle, but on passion ; they are guided by no internal rules, but are blown about, this way or that, by the force of outward circumstances ; the mean goes on fixed principles, and therefore holds on an even course, undeviating and therefore never approximating to either extreme.

At that time came more confident advertisement, though false, not only to the lord admiral, but to the court, that the Spaniards could not possibly come forward that year ; whereupon our navy was upon the point of disbanding, and many of our men gone ashore : at which very time the Invincible Armada, for so it was called in a Spanish ostentation throughout Europe, was discovered upon the western coast. It was a kind of surprise ; for that, as was said, many of our men were gone to land, and our ships ready to depart. Nevertheless the admiral, with such ships only as could suddenly be put in readiness, made forth towards them ; insomuch as of one hundred ships there came scarce thirty to work. Howbeit, with them, and such as came daily in, we set upon them, and gave them the chase. But the Spaniards, for want of courage, which they called commission, declined the fight, casting themselves continually into roundels, their strongest ships walling in the rest, and in that manner they made a flying march towards Calais. Our men by the space of five or six days followed them close, fought with them continually, made great slaughter of their men, took two of their great ships, and gave divers others of their ships their death's wounds, whereof soon after they sank and perished ; and, in a word, distressed them almost in the nature of a defeat ; we ourselves in the mean time receiving little or no hurt.

The sophists at first embraced in their course of instruction philosophy as well as rhetoric. But that which they called philosophy was, as with the scholastic philosophers, the art of confounding an opponent by syllogisms and sophisms; and the subjects about which they were most fond of speculating were some of those metaphysical questions, respecting which we ought to learn that we never can know anything. This kind of reasoning, when disputation and speaking were taught, was very closely connected with rhetoric. Afterwards the sophists and rhetoricians formed distinct classes; but the different classes which Isocrates distinguished in his old age could hardly have been so decidedly marked in his youth.

The precepts and the very name of the sophists became odious among the ancients: and it would be vain to attempt to free them entirely from the reproaches cast on them by philosophers and by the comic poets. But yet they cannot be deprived of the glory of having made the higher classes of their nation sensible of the necessity of a liberal education. They rose rapidly and extraordinarily, because they were closely connected with the wants of the times. In states where all subjects were discussed orally, and where everything was just beginning to improve, instructors in logic and rhetoric could not but be acceptable. But in two respects, by reducing eloquence to a mere art of disputing, and by degrading or ridiculing the popular religion, they soon became injurious and even dangerous to the state.

HEEREN.

Τὸ μὲν οὖν πρῶτον ῥητορικὴν ἅμα καὶ φιλοσοφίαν ἐπηγγέλλοντο οἰοί τ' εἶναι διδάσκειν οἱ σοφισταί. ὧ μὲντοι ἐπωνόμαζον φιλοσοφίαν, καθάπερ καὶ παρὰ τοῖς ἀπὸ σχολῆς καλουμένοις, καὶ παρὰ τούτοις τέχνη τις ἐγένετο τοῦ τὸν προσδιατρίβοντα συλλογισμοῖς καὶ ἀπάτῃ λόγου χρωμένους εἰς ἀπορίαν ἐμβάλλειν. ὧν γοῦν ἀσμεναίτατα πέρι ἐσκοποῦντο νοητὰ ἅττα ἦν, περὶ ὧν τοσοῦτον δεῖ μανθάνειν ὅτι οὐδαμῶς οὐδέποτε ἐπιστητὰ ἂν εἴη. ὁ δὲ τοιοῦτος λογισμὸς διδασκόντων τῶν τότε τὸ ἀμφισβητεῖν καὶ ὅπως τις δεινὸς λέγειν ἔσται ὡς ἐγγυτάτω εἶχετο τῆς ῥητορικῆς. ὕστερον δὲ χρόνῳ οἱ σοφισταὶ καὶ ῥήτορες ἑτέραν ἐκάτεροι τάξιν εἶχον. καίτοι ἅς γε ἤδη γέρων ὧν διωρίσατο Ἰσοκράτης σχολῇ γ' ἂν εἴεν οὕτω παγίως νεωτέρου ὄντος ἀποκεχωρισμένοι. τὰ δ' οὖν δόγματα τὰ τῶν σοφιστῶν καὶ δὴ καὶ αὐτὸ τὸ ὄνομα ἐπίφθονον τοῖς πάλοι ἐγένετο, ὥστε ὁ παντάπασι μέλλων ἀπολύειν ὧν ἔψεγον οἱ τε φιλόσοφοι καὶ οἱ κωμωδοδιδάσκαλοι ὥσπερ ἂν ὕδραν τέμνοι. οὐ μὴν οὐδὲ τοῦ πείσαι τοὺς τῶν ἐπιχωρίων βελτίονας ὡς ἀναγκαῖον εἶη ἢ ὀρθὴ παιδεία δίκαιοι εἰσι τὸν ἔπαινον τοῦτον ἀφαιρεθῆναι, θαυμασίως δ' ὡς ἐν βραχεῖ χρόνῳ ἐλλόγιμοι ηὐξήθησαν ἅτε τὰς τότε χρείας ὡς μάλιστα ἀποπληροῦντες. ὅπου γὰρ οὐδὲν ὅ τι οὐκ ἀπεστοματίζετο καὶ πάντα ἤδη ἐπὶ τὸ βέλτιον ἐπεδίδου, οὐδεμία μηχανὴ ἔν γε τοσαύταις πόλεσι μὴ οὐκ εὐδοκιμεῖν τοὺς διαλεκτικὴν καὶ ῥητορικὴν διδάσκοντας. οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ δυοῖν ἕνεκα, τὸ μὲν ὅτι ἐριστικὴν τινα τέχνην τὴν τοῦ λέγειν δεινότητα ἐβιάζοντο εἶναι, τὸ δὲ τὴν περὶ τὰ θεῖα νόμισιν ἥτοι κατασμικρίζοντες ἢ εἰς γέλωτα τρέποντες δι' ὀλίγου οὐχ ὅτι βλαβεροὶ ἀλλὰ καὶ ὀλέθριοι ἐγένοντο ταῖς πόλεσιν.

But, Sir, in wishing to put an end to pernicious experiments, I do not mean to preclude the fullest enquiry. Far from it. Far from deciding on a sudden or partial view, I would patiently go round and round the subject, and survey it minutely in every possible aspect. Sir, if I were capable of engaging you to an equal attention, I would state that, as far as I am capable of discerning, there are but three ways of proceeding relative to this stubborn spirit, which prevails in your colonies, and disturbs your government. These are, to change that spirit, as inconvenient, by removing the causes, to prosecute it as criminal, or to comply with it as necessary. I would not be guilty of an imperfect enumeration ; I can think of but these three. Another has indeed been stated, that of giving up the colonies ; but it met so slight a reception, that I do not think myself obliged to dwell a great while upon it. It is nothing but a little sally of anger ; like the frowardness of peevish children ; who, when they cannot get all they would have, are resolved to take nothing.

Philonous. It seems then that by sensible things you mean those only which can be perceived immediately by sense.

Hylas. Right.

Phil. Doth it not follow from this, that though I see one part of the sky red, and another blue, and that my reason doth thence evidently conclude there must be some cause of that diversity of colours, yet that cause cannot be said to be a sensible thing, or perceived by the sense of seeing ?

Hyl. It doth.

Phil. In like manner, though I hear variety of sounds, yet I cannot be said to hear the causes of those sounds.

Hyl. You cannot.

Phil. And when by my touch I perceive a thing to be hot and heavy, I cannot say with any truth or propriety, that I feel the cause of its heat or weight.

Hyl. To prevent any more questions of this kind, I tell you once for all, that by sensible things I mean those only which are perceived by sense, and that in truth the senses perceive nothing which they do not perceive immediately : for they make no inferences. The deducing therefore of causes or occasions from effects and appearances, which alone are perceived by sense, entirely relates to reason.

Φιλ. Τὰ δὲ αἰσθητά, ὥς ἔοικας, τοιαῦτά που ὑπολαμβάνεις εἶναι οἷα ἢ αἰσθησις ἀπὸ τοῦ εὐθέος καταλαμβάνει.

Ἦλ. ὑπολαμβάνω γάρ.

Φιλ. οὐκοῦν ἐκ τούτων γε συμβαίνει ὅτι τὰ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ὁρῶν τὸ μὲν ἐρυθρὸν φαινόμενον τὸ δὲ κυανοῦν, καὶ ἐνθένδε συλλογιζομένης τῆς διανοίας ὡς ὑπάρχοντος αἰτίου τινὸς τῆς ἐναντιότητος ταύτης, ὅμως οὐ δίκαιος ἂν εἶην περὶ τοῦ αἰτίου λέγων ὡς αἰσθητοῦ ὄντος καὶ διὰ τῆς ὀψεως καταληπτοῦ;

Ἦλ. συμβαίνει μὲν οὖν.

Φιλ. ὡσαύτως δὲ ὅτι φωνὰς ἀκούων παντοδαπάς, οὐ μέντοι ἀκούω καὶ τὰς αἰτίας αὐτῶν;

Ἦλ. συμβαίνει καὶ τοῦτο.

Φιλ. καὶ δὴ καὶ ὅτι ἐφαπτόμενός του καταλαμβάνω μὲν διὰ τῆς ἐπαφῆς ὅτι θερμόν ἐστι καὶ βαρύν, τῆς δὲ αἰτίας ἐκατέροι, λέγω δὲ τῆς θερμότητος καὶ βαρύτητος, οὐκ ἐφάπτομαι, εἴπερ μέλλει τις ἀληθῶς λέγειν καὶ μετρίως;

Ἦλ. ἵνα τοίνυν μὴ ἀδολεσχῆς πλείω τοιαῦτα ἐρόμενος, συλλήβδην ἐρῶ ὅτι τὰ αἰσθητὰ δοκεῖ μοι εἶναι τοιάδε οἷα τῇ αἰσθήσει καταληπτά ἐστι. τῷ δὲ ὄντι οὐδενὸς πάνυ αἰ αἰσθήσεις αἰσθάνονται οὐ μὴ ἀπὸ τοῦ εὐθέος αἰσθάνονται· οὐδὲν γὰρ ἄρα συλλογίζονται. ὥστε τὸ συλλογίζεσθαι τὰς αἰτίας καὶ τὰς προφάσεις ἀπὸ τῶν συμβαινόντων καὶ τῶν φαινομένων, ἅπερ καὶ μόνα δὴ καταληπτά ἐστι διὰ τῆς αἰσθήσεως, τοῦτο οὐδενὸς ἄλλου ἢ τοῦ λογιστικοῦ ἂν εἴη.

Phil. This point, then, is agreed between us, that sensible things are those only which are immediately perceived by sense. You will further inform me, whether we immediately perceive by sight anything beside light and colours and figures : or by hearing, anything but sounds : by the palate, anything beside tastes : by the smell, beside odours : or by the touch, more than tangible qualities.

Hyl. We do not.

Phil. It seems, therefore, that if you take away all sensible qualities, there remains nothing sensible.

Hyl. I grant it.

Phil. Sensible things, therefore, are nothing else but so many sensible qualities, or combinations of sensible qualities.

Hyl. Nothing else.

Phil. Heat then is a sensible thing.

Hyl. Certainly.

Phil. Doth the reality of sensible things consist in being perceived ? or is it something distinct from their being perceived, and that bears no relation to the mind ?

Hyl. To exist is one thing, and to be perceived is another.

Phil. I speak with regard to sensible things only : and of these I ask, whether by their real existence you mean a subsistence exterior to the mind, and distinct from their being perceived ?

Hyl. I mean a real absolute being, distinct from and without any relation to their being perceived.

BERKELEY.

Φιλ. ταῦτα τοίνυν ὠμολογήσθω παρ' ἐμοί τε καὶ σοὶ ὅτι τοιαῦτά ἐστι τὰ αἰσθητὰ οἷα ἡ αἴσθησις ἀπὸ τοῦ εὐθέος καταλαμβάνει· ἐκεῖνο δὲ ἔτι ἀναπλήρωςόν μοι, εἰ διὰ μὲν τῆς ὄψεως ἀπὸ τοῦ εὐθέος οὐδὲν ἄλλο αἰσθανόμεθα ἀλλ' ἢ φῶς καὶ σχήματα καὶ χρώματα, διὰ δὲ τῆς ἀκοῆς φωνάς, διὰ δὲ τῆς γεύσεως χυμούς, διὰ δὲ τῆς ὀσφρήσεως ὀσμάς, διὰ δὲ τῆς ἐπαφῆς τὰ ἀπτά;

Φιλ. μέμνησο μέντοι ὅτι τὰ αἰσθητὰ μόνον λέγω· πυκνάζομαι δὲ περὶ τούτων εἰ σὺ εἶναι αὐτὰ λέγων ὥς ἀληθῶς οὐσίαν τινὰ λέγεις ἔξω τῆς διανοίας ὑπάρχουσιν πρὸς οὐδένα λόγον τοῦ αἰσθάνεσθαι τινὰ αὐτά;

"Τλ. ἀπλῶς καὶ ἄντικρυς οὐσίαν λέγω καὶ ταῦτα εἴτε τις αἰσθάνεται εἴτε μῆ.

It was never doubted but a war upon pirates may be lawfully made by any nation, though not infested or violated by them. Is it because they have not certas sedes or lares? In the piratical war, which was achieved by Pompey the great, and was his truest and greatest glory; the pirates had some cities, sundry ports, and a great part of the province of Cilicia; and the pirates now being have a receptacle and mansion in Algiers. Beasts are not the less savage because they have dens. Is it because the danger hovers as a cloud, that a man cannot tell where it will fall; and so it is every man's case? The reason is good, but it is not all, nor that which is most alleged. For the true received reason is, that pirates are communes humani generis hostes; whom all nations are to prosecute, not so much on the right of their own fears, as upon the band of human society. For as there are formal and written leagues, respective to certain enemies; so is there a natural and tacit confederation amongst all men, against the common enemy of human society. So as there needs no intimation or denunciation of the war; there needs no request from the nation grieved; but all these formalities the law of nature supplies in the case of pirates. The same is the case of rovers by land; such as yet are some cantons in Arabia, and some petty kings of the mountains, adjacent to straits and ways.

Καὶ ὅτι οὐ θέμις πρὸς τοὺς ληστὰς πόλει ἡτινιούν ποιεῖσθαι πόλεμον, καὶ ταῦτα μὴδὲν ἀδικούντας μὴδὲ βιαζομένους, οὐδεῖς πω ἡμφεσβήτησε. τί γάρ; ἢ ὅτι οὐδεμίαν οἴκησιν καὶ δίαιταν ἀφωρισμένην κέκτηνται; καίτοι ἔν τε τῷ ληστικῷ καλουμένῳ πολέμῳ, ὃν πολέμῃσας Πομπηῖος ὁ μέγας ταύτην ὡς ἀληθῶς μεγίστην δόξαν ἠνέγκατο, οἱ τότε ληστὰι πόλεις τινὰς εἶχον καὶ λιμένας ἔστιν οὓς καὶ μέρος τι οὐκ ὀλίγον Κιλικίας, καὶ τοῖς νῦν ἀποστροφῇ ὑπάρχει καὶ οἴκησις ἡ Νομαδική. οὐδὲ γὰρ ἦττον ὠμὰ ὅσα τῶν θηρίων σπηλαίοις κατῴκηται. ἢ τοῦτο αἷτιον ὅτι ὥσπερ νεφέλη τις ἐπικρέμαται ὁ κίνδυνος, ἄδηλον ὃν ὅποι καὶ κατασκήψει, ὥστε οὐδενὶ ὄτῳ οὐ μέλει τοῦτό γε; εἰκότως ἔχει καὶ αὕτη ἡ αἰτία, ἐλλείπει μέντοι τι, καὶ ἄλλην τινὰ οἱ πλείστοι αἰτιῶνται. ἢ γὰρ ἀληθὴς καὶ νενομισμένη ἦδε· οἱ γὰρ τοιοῦτοι κοινοὶ εἰσι τοῦ ἀνθρωπίνου γένους πολέμιοι, οἷς πᾶσαν πόλιν ἐπεξελθεῖν δεῖ, οὐ μᾶλλον κατὰ τὸ δίκαιον τοῦ ἰδίου ἐκάστην δέους ἔνεκα, ἢ ὡς ἐπὶ συνδέσμῳ τῆς πρὸς ἀλλήλους κοινωνίας. οὐ γὰρ μόνον πρὸς τοὺς ἀφωρισμένους πολεμίους ἐπὶ ῥητοῖς συγγραφόμεθα συμμαχίας, ἀλλὰ καὶ φύσει τις ὑπάρχει ἀγραφος συνωμοσία ὡς ἐπὶ τῷ κοινῷ συμπάντων πολέμῳ. διὸ καὶ οὐδὲν δεῖ οὔτε ἐπαγγέλλειν πόλεμον τοὺς μέλλοντας, οὔτε βοηθείας δεῖσθαι τοὺς ἀδικουμένους· τὰ τοιαῦτα γὰρ ἐκεῖ μὲν ἐπὶ ῥητοῖς κεῖται, ἐνταῦθα δὲ ὁ φυσικὸς νόμος εἴ τι ἐλλείπει ἀναπληροῖ. ἀρκεῖ δὲ καὶ τὸ αὐτὸ καὶ ἐπὶ τῶν κατὰ γῆν ληστείας ποιουμένων· οἷον ἔτι νομίζουσιν ἔστιν ἂν Ἀραβίας πολίσματα καὶ οἱ τῶν ὀρεινῶν βασιλεῖς ὁδῶν ἢ στενοπόρων καλῶς κείμενοι.

The Areopagus had repaired to the general assembly to give its opinion respecting the project of a citizen named Timarchus, who was soon after proscribed for the depravity of his manners. Autolycus addressed them in the name of the whole court. This senator, educated in the simplicity of the ancient times, and a stranger to the shameful abuse to which the most ordinary terms of conversation are now perverted, suffered a word to drop from him, which, misconstrued from its real sense, admitted of an allusion to the licentious life of Timarchus. The whole of the assembly applauded him in a transport, and Autolycus, astonished, assumed a severer countenance. After a moment's pause, he attempted to proceed ; but the people, putting an arch construction on the most innocent expressions, never ceased to interrupt him by a confused noise and immoderate bursts of laughter. A distinguished citizen now rising, exclaimed, 'Are not you ashamed, Athenians, to be guilty of such indecency in presence of the Areopagites?' The people answered that they felt all the veneration due to the majesty of that tribunal : but that there were circumstances in which it was impossible to restrain themselves within the bounds of decorum. What virtues must not this body have possessed, to have established and maintained so high an opinion of the respect due to it in the minds of the people ; and what good might it not have produced, had they known how to value it as it deserved ?

ANACHARSIS.

Τῆς δὲ βουλῆς τῆς ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου πρόσδοδόν ποτε πρὸς τὴν ἐκκλησίαν ποιησαμένης, ἔδει γὰρ ἀποφαίνεσθαι τὴν γνώμην περὶ τοῦ εἰσηγήματος τῶν πολιτῶν τινός, — Τίμαρχος ἦν αὐτῷ ὄνομα, ὃς καὶ οὐ πολλῷ ὕστερον διὰ τὴν ἀσέλγειαν ἠτιμώθη, — ὑπὲρ τῶν ἄλλων Αὐτόλυκος τις ἐδημηγόρει. ὁ δὲ βουλευτὴς οὗτος πεπαιδευμένος μὲν κατὰ τὴν ἀρχαιοπρεπῇ εὐήθειαν τῶν τρόπων, ξένος δὲ ὦν τῆς αἰσχροουργίας ἣ οἱ νῦν καταχρώμενοι τῶν ῥημάτων καὶ τὰ συνηθέστατα παραστρέφουσιν, ἔλαθεν ἑαυτὸν τι εἰπὼν ὃ εἴ τις τὴν εἰωθυῖαν ἀξιώσιν ἀνταλλάττοι ἐδόκει τὴν Τιμάρχου ἀσέλγειαν αἰνίττεσθαι. ὁ μὲν οὖν δῆμος ὑπερησθεὶς ἀνεκρότησεν· ὁ δὲ Αὐτόλυκος ἐκπεπληγμένος ἔτι μᾶλλον ἐσκυθρώπαζεν, ὀλίγον δὲ ἐπισχὼν ἤδη προῆει τοῦ λόγου. οἱ δὲ τὰ μηδὲν ἀσχήμονα τῶν ὀνομάτων πάνυ κακοήθως ἐπὶ τὸ γέλοιον ἐκλαβόντες οὐδεπώποτε ἐπαύσαντο θορυβοῦντες. ἐνταῦθα δὲ ἀναστὰς ἀνὴρ τῶν πολιτῶν οὐκ ἀδόκιμος, οὐκ αἰσχύνεσθε, ἔφη, ὦ ἄνδρες Ἀθηναῖοι, εἰ τοιαῦτα ἀσχημονεῖτε, καὶ ταῦτα παρούσης τῆς βουλῆς τῆς ἐξ Ἀρείου πάγου; οἱ δὲ ἀπεκρίναντο ὅτι τὴν μὲν βουλὴν θαυμάζοιεν κατὰ τὸ ἀξίωμα ὃ καὶ προσήκοι αὐτῇ· εἶναι μέντοι ὅτε ἀδύνατα εἶη μέχρι τοῦ πρέποντος ὀρίζεσθαι τὸν γέλωτα. οἷας τὸ συνέδριον τοῦτο εἰκὸς ἦν ἀρετὰς κεκτῆσθαι, ὃ γε τοσοῦτον παρὰ τῷ δήμῳ οὐ μόνον ἡὔδοκίμει ἀλλὰ καὶ διετέλει βεβαίαν διασῶζον τὴν εὐδοκίμησιν, οἷα δὲ ἔμελλεν ἀγαθὰ ἀπεργάσεσθαι εἰ ἐκεῖνοι ἠπίσταντο κατὰ τὸ προσήκον τῆς ἀξίας θαυμάζουσιν;

The oration which seems to have been delivered on the occasion of the embassy by which the Olynthians sought alliance with Athens, appears to have been designed to animate the Athenians to a contest from which they were disposed to shrink through fear of Philip's overwhelming power. The fears to which the orator addresses himself were in themselves very reasonable : and the less they were really felt by his hearers, the more advisable he might think it to suggest them, not of course in order to damp their spirit, but to rouse them to an effort worthy of the greatness of the struggle. There were some, as he had observed in his speech on the Rhodians, who were used to represent Philip as a despicable antagonist : this he knew would be a false and dangerous way of inspiring the people with courage. He wished that they should recognise Philip's power as truly formidable, but that they should be convinced it had become so only through their own remissness and unwise policy.

THIRLWALL.

Τῷ δὲ λόγῳ, ὃν εἰκὸς ῥηθῆναι τότε ὅτε Ὀλύνθιοι ἐπρεσβεύοντο δεόμενοι Ἀθηναίων συμμαχίας, ὅδε φαίνεται σκοπὸς εἶναι, εἴ πως τούτους παραθαρρύνει βουλομένους ἀποκνεῖν τὸν ἀγῶνα, ἅτε τὴν ὑπερβάλλουσαν Φιλίππου δύναμιν ἐκπεπληγμένους. ὁ δὲ φόβος οὗ ὁ ῥήτωρ ἅπτεται αὐτὸς μὲν καθ' αὐτὸν οὐκ ἄλογος ἦν· ὅσῳ δὲ ἦττον πρὸς οὗς ἔλεγε τούτῳ ἦσαν τῷ ὄντι ἔνοχοι, τοσούτῳ μᾶλλον τάχ' ἂν ἴσως εἰ ὑποτιθείη αὐτὸν νομίζοι συμφέρειν, οὐχ ἵνα δῆλον ὅτι προθυμouμένους καταφοβοίη, ἀλλ' ὥς εἰς ἔργον τι τοσούτου ἀγῶνος ἄξιον παρακελευσόμενος. ἦσαν γὰρ οἱ, ὥσπερ καὶ αὐτὸς ἤδη εἶπεν ἐν τῷ περὶ τῆς Ῥοδίων ἐλευθερίας, τὸν Φίλιππον κατεμέμφοντο ὥς ἄρα φαῦλος εἶη προσπολεμῆν· ὅτι δὲ λόγῳ οὗτ' ἀληθεῖ οὗτ' ἀκινδύνῳ χρώμενος ἀνδρείαν τοῖς πολίταις ἐμποιεῖν ἐπιχειρήσει εὖ ἐπιστάμενος, ἡξίου αὐτοὺς τὴν τοῦ Φιλίππου δύναμιν ὁμολογεῖν μὲν ὅτι φοβερὰ εἶη ἀναμφισβητήτως, καταμαθεῖν δὲ ὅτι τοσαύτη αὐξηθείη ῥαθυμούντων αὐτῶν καὶ ἀφρόνως πολιτευομένων.

But these reflections were not made, nor had we enough considered the example of Elizabeth, the last of our princes who had made any considerable figure abroad, and from whom we might have learned to act with vigour, but to engage with caution, and always to proportion our assistance according to our abilities, and the real necessities of our allies. The frontiers of France were now so fortified, her commerce and her naval force were so increased, her armies were grown so numerous, her troops were so disciplined, so inured to war, and so animated by a long course of successful campaigns, that they who looked on the situation of Europe could not fail to see how difficult the enterprise of reducing her power was become. Difficult as it was, we were obliged, on every account and by reasons of all kinds, to engage in it: but then we should have engaged with more forecast, and have conducted ourselves in the management of it, not with less alacrity and spirit, but with more order, more economy, and a better application of our efforts. But they who governed were glad to engage us at any rate: and we entered on this great scheme of action, as our nation is too apt to do, hurried on by the ruling passion of the day.

Ἄλλ' οὐτε γὰρ ταῦτα ἐνετεθυμήμεθα, οὐτε Ἐλίσση ἱκανῶς παραδείγματι ἐχρησάμεθα τῇ ὑστάτῃ δὴ τῶν γε τῆς ἡμετέρας βασιλέων ἀξιόλογόν τι ἐν τῇ ἀλλοτρίᾳ ἀποφνηαμένη, ἐξὸν μέντοι παρ' αὐτῆς μανθάνειν θαρραλέως μὲν δρᾶν, δεδιότας δὲ τὰς βοηθείας ἐπαγγέλλεσθαι, καὶ ταύτας μέχρι τῆς τε ἡμετέρας αὐτῶν δυνάμεως καὶ τῆς ὥς ὄντως τῶν συμμάχων χρείας αἰετορίζεσθαι. ἐπὶ τοσοῦτον γὰρ ἤδη τῇ Γαλατίᾳ τετειχισμένων μὲν τῶν μεθορίων, ἐπηυξημένης δὲ τῆς τε ἐμπορίας καὶ τοῦ ναυτικοῦ, ἔτι δὲ κεκτημένων αὐτῶν τοσαῦτα μὲν τῶν στρατοπέδων τὰ πλήθη, τοσαύτην δὲ τὴν τοῦ ὀπλιτικοῦ ἐμπειρίαν, ἀνδρῶν συγκεκροτημένων τε τὰ τοῦ πολέμου καὶ διὰ τὸ πλείστα ἐν στρατείαις εὖ φέρεσθαι ἐπαιρομένων, τούτων δὲ οὕτως ἐχόντων τίνα ἂν λάθοι τὰ τῆς Εὐρώπης σκοπούμενον τὸ καταστρέψασθαι τὴν τοιαύτην δύναμιν ὥς χαλεπὴ εἴη καὶ ἡ ἐπιχείρησις; οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ καίπερ χαλεπὸν ὃν διὰ πάντα τε καὶ ἀπὸ παντοίων αἰτιῶν πολλὴ ἀνάγκη ἦν ἅπτεσθαι τούτου. καίτοι ἔδει πολλῶ πλείονα ἔχοντας τὴν προμηθίαν, ἐν δὲ τῷ ἔργῳ οὐ μὰ Δί' οὐχὶ ἡττον προθύμως ἢ ἀπροφασίστως, ἀλλὰ καὶ εὐτακτότερόν τε καὶ φειδομένους μᾶλλον τῶν χρημάτων, ἔτι δὲ καὶ βέλτιον χρωμένους ταῖς ἐπιχειρήσεσιν. ἀλλ' οἷ τε γὰρ τότε ἐν τέλει ὄντες ἀσμένως ἡμῶν ἐφ' ὁποιοῦν προφάσει ἐπηγγέλλοντο τὴν βοήθειαν, αὐτοὶ τε τὸ μέγιστον τοῦτο ἔργον ἐνεστησάμεθα, ὅπερ καὶ φιλεῖ ἡ πόλις ἥδε τῇ αἰεὶ κρατούσῃ ὀργῇ βιάζεσθαι.

Here then is the example, not of a virtue in principle, but of a virtue in performance, with all the indispensable benefits of that performance, being sustained on the soil of selfishness. Were a profound observer of human life to take account of all the honesties of mercantile intercourse, he would find that, in the general amount of them, they were mainly due to the operation of this cause; or that they were so prevalent in society, because each man was bound to their observance by the tie of his own personal interest—insomuch that, if this particular tie were broken, it would as surely derange or break up the world of trade, as the world of matter would become an inert or turbid chaos on the repeal or suspension of the law of gravitation. Confidence, the very soul of commercial enterprise, and without which the transactions of merchandise were impossible, is the goodly result, not of that native respect which each man has for another's rights, but of that native regard which each man has for his own special advantage. This forms another example of a great and general good wrought out for society—while each component member is intently set only on a certain and specific good for himself—a great interest which could not have been entrusted to human virtue, but which has been skillfully extracted from the working of selfishness. In so far as truth and justice prevail in the world, not by the operation of principle but of policy, in so far the goodness of man has no share in it: but so beneficent a result out of such unpromising materials speaks all the more emphatically both for the wisdom and the goodness of God.

Since the soil will maintain many more than it can employ, what must be done, supposing the country to be full, with the remainder of the inhabitants? They who by the rules of partition (and some such must be established in every country) are entitled to the land, and they who by their labour upon the soil acquire a right in its produce, will not part with their property for nothing; or rather they will no longer raise from the soil what they can neither use themselves nor exchange for what they want. Or, lastly, if these were willing to distribute what they could spare of the provision which the ground yielded to others who had no share or concern in the property or cultivation of it, yet still the most enormous mischiefs would ensue from great numbers being unemployed. The idleness of one half of the community would overwhelm the whole with confusion and disorder. One only way presents itself of removing the difficulty which this question states, and which is simply this; that they whose work is not wanted nor can be employed in the raising of provision out of the ground, convert their hands and ingenuity to the fabrication of articles which may gratify and requite those who are so employed, or who by the division of lands in the country are entitled to the exclusive possession of certain parts of them. By this contrivance all things proceed well.

But the king of Scotland, though he would not formally retract his judgement of Perkin, wherein he had engaged himself so far ; yet in his private opinion, upon often speech with the Englishmen, and divers other advertisements, began to suspect him for a counterfeit. Wherefore in a noble fashion he called him unto him, and recounted the benefits and favours that he had done him in making him his ally, and in provoking a mighty and opulent king by an offensive war in his quarrel, for the space of two years together ; nay more, that he had refused an honourable peace, whereof he had a fair offer, if he would have delivered him ; and that, to keep his promise with him, he had deeply offended both his nobles and people, whom he might not hold in any long discontent : and therefore required him to think of his own fortunes, and to choose out some fitter place for his exile : telling him withal, that he could not say but the English had forsaken him before the Scottish, for that, upon two several trials, none had declared themselves on his side ; but nevertheless he would make good what he said to him at his first receiving, which was that he should not repent him for putting himself into his hands ; for that he would not cast him off, but help him with shipping and means to transport him where he should desire.

BACON.

Ὁ δὲ Καληδόνιος καίπερ οὐ βουλόμενος ἂ περὶ Περκίνου ἐγνωκὼς ἦν, ἐπὶ τοσοῦτόν γε ἤδη ὑπεσχημένος, ταῦτα φανερὸς εἶναι διαρρήδην ἀνατιθέμενος, ἰδίᾳ μέντοι ἄλλοθεν τε πολλαχόθεν τεκμαιρόμενος καὶ ἐξ ὧν πρὸς Ἕλληνας διελέχθη, ἤδη ἐν ὑποψίᾳ εἶχε μὴ ἀλαζών τις εἶη. διὸ καὶ πάννυ μεγαλοπρεπῶς μεταπεμφάμενος καὶ διεξιὼν ὅσα τε καὶ ἡλίκα εὖ πεποιηκὼς εἶη, ἅμα μὲν γράψας ξύμμαχον, ἅμα δὲ βασιλέα μέγαν καὶ εὐδαίμονα ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ ξυνεχῶς τρίτον ἔτος τουτὶ προσπολεμώμενος, ἔτι δὲ ὅτι καλῶς παρασχὼν αὐτῷ ἐπὶ μηδενὶ αἰσχυρῷ, ἐφ' ᾧτε προδοῦναι αὐτόν, εἰρήνην ποιεῖσθαι, οὔτε βούλοιο, τοῖς τε εὐπατρίδαις ἅμα καὶ τῷ δήμῳ ἵνα μηδὲν ψεύσαιτο ὧν ὑπέσχητο διαβεβλημένος εἶη, πρὸς οὓς οὐχ οἷόν τε ἔτι πλείω χρόνον ἐπιφθόνως διακείσθαι, οὕτω δὲ ἡξίου αὐτὸν τῶν ἑαυτοῦ ἐπιμελεῖσθαι ζητοῦντα ὅποι καὶ ἄλλοσε ἐπιτηδειότερον φεύγων διατελεῖ. ἅμα λέγων αὐτῷ ὅτι οὐ λόγος εἶη μὴ οὐ τοὺς Ἕλληνας πρότερον ἢ σφεῖς προδοῦναι, δις γὰρ ἀποπειρασασμένῳ οὐδὲ εἰς προσχωρήσειεν. οὐ μέντοι ἀλλὰ ἂ πρότερον ὑποδεξάμενος ὑπόσχοιτο, ἢ μὴν μηδέποτε μεταμελήσειν αὐτῷ παρὰ σφᾶς καταφυγόντι, ταῦτα καὶ ποιήσειν. οὔτε γὰρ προήσεσθαι βοηθήσειν τε ναυσί τε καὶ τοῖς ἄλλοις ὥστε ὅποι ἂν βούληται περαιωθῆναι.

When they were come before Exeter, they forbore to use any force at the first, but made continual shouts and outcries to terrify the inhabitants. They did likewise in divers places call and talk to them from under the walls, to join with them and be of their party; telling them that the king would make them another London, if they would be the first town that should acknowledge him. But they had not the wit to send to them, in any orderly fashion, agents or chosen men, to tempt them and to treat with them. The citizens on their part showed themselves stout and loyal subjects: neither was there so much as any tumult or division amongst them, but all prepared themselves for a valiant defence, and making good the town. For well they saw, that the rebels were of no such number or power, that they needed to fear them as yet; and well they hoped, that before their numbers increased, the king's succours would come in. And, howsoever, they thought it the extremest of evils, to put themselves at the mercy of those hungry and disorderly people. Wherefore setting all things in good order within the town, they nevertheless let down with cords, from several parts of the walls privily, several messengers, that if one came to mischance, another might pass on, which should advertise the king of the state of the town and implore his aid. Perkin also doubted that succours would come ere long; and therefore resolved to use his utmost force to assault the town. And for that purpose having mounted scaling-ladders in divers places upon the walls, made at the same instant an attempt to force one of the gates.

BACON.

Προσκαθεζόμενοι δὲ τὴν Ἐξωνίαν πρῶτον ἀπέσχοντο μὲν μὴ βιάζεσθαι κραυγῇ δὲ καὶ βοῇ ξυνεχῶς ἐχρῶντο, εἴ πως φοβήσεται τοὺς ἔνδοθεν. προσκαλέσαντες δὲ καὶ ἄλλοι ἄλλοθεν ὑπὸ τοῦ τείχους διελέγοντο αὐτοῖς, προσχωρήσαι κελεύοντες καὶ παρὰ σφίσι θέσθαι τὰ ὄπλα, ὡς Περκίνου ἀντὶ τοῦ δευτέρου ἀστέως προτιμῶντος εἶναι πρῶτοι προσδέξωνται αὐτόν· οὐ μέντοι νουνεχόντως προσέπεμψαν ἄνδρας ἐπιλέκτους τινὰς πρέσβεις οἵτινες πειράσαντες τρόπῳ τινὶ ἐπιτηδεῖν πράξουσιν αὐτοῖς. οἱ δὲ αὐτόθεν ἀνδρείως ἅμα καὶ πιστῶς φρονούντες τὰ τοῦ βασιλέως διεφάνησαν· οὔτε γὰρ στάσεως οὐδὲ θορύβου οὐδ' ὅτιοῦν ἦν, πάντες τε παρεσκευάσαντο ὡς προθύμως ἀμυνόμενοι καὶ βεβαίαν παρέχοντες τὴν πόλιν, ἐπιστάμενοι μὲν ὅτι οὐπω τοσοῦτον εἴη τῶν ἐπαναστάντων οὔτε πλῆθος οὔτε δύναμις ὥστε εἰκότως φοβηθῆναι αὐτούς, ἅμα δὲ ἐλπίζοντες πρὶν ἔτι μείζους αὐξήθῃναι παρέσεσθαι τὴν παρὰ τοῦ βασιλέως βοήθειαν. κακῶν δ' οὖν ἔσχατον εἶναι ἐνόμισαν τῷ πεινῶντι καὶ ἀτάκτῳ καὶ τῷ τοιούτῳ ὄχλῳ παραδοῦναι αὐτούς. κατὰ τοῦτο πάντα ἐν τῇ πόλει καλῶς θέμενοι ἀγγέλους ὅμως τινὰς ἄλλους ἄλλοθεν τοῦ τείχους σπαρτίοις κρύφα καθίμων, καὶ ἔμελλεν ὁ μὲν παθεῖν τι ὁ δὲ φθάσας διασωθῆναι καὶ ἀγγείλας τῷ βασιλεῖ τὰ τῆς πόλεως ὡς ἔχοι οὕτω δεῖσθαι ὅπως βοηθήσει· τῷ δὲ Περκίνῳ ἐδόκει, ὅς καὶ αὐτὸς ἡγεῖτο τοὺς βοηθήσοντας ὕσον οὐπω παρέσεσθαι, πάσῃ ἰσχύϊ κατὰ τὸ δυνατὸν προσβολὴν ποιήσασθαι, καὶ ταύτῃ τῇ διανοίᾳ κλίμακας προσθεὶς πολλαχόσε τοῦ τείχους ἅμα κατὰ μίαν τῶν πυλῶν ἐπειράτο βιάζεσθαι.

The Whigs impeached and attainted me. They went farther—at least in my way of thinking, that step was more cruel than all the others—by partial representation of facts, and pieces of facts put together as it best suited their purpose and published to the whole world, they did all that in them lay to expose me for a fool and to brand me for a knave. But then I had deserved this abundantly at their hands according to the notions of party justice. The Tories have not indeed impeached nor attainted me; but they have done and are still doing something very like to that which I took worse of the Whigs than the impeachment and attainder; and this after I have shown an inviolable attachment to the service and almost an implicit obedience to the will of the party—when I am actually an outlaw, deprived of my honours, stripped of my fortune, and cut off from my family and my country for their sakes.

Εἰσαγγειλάντων δὲ τῶν πολλῶν ἡτιμώθην. ὁ δ' οὖν τῶν ἄλλων ἀπάντων, ἐμοί γε δοκεῖν, δεινότατον· ὑπερβολὴν γὰρ ποιούμενοι καὶ τὰ πεπραγμένα ἢ ἀπλῶς ἢ κατὰ μόρια οὐκ ἀπ' ἴσης ἀποφαινόμενοι, ἀλλὰ συντιθέντες ὡς μάλιστα σφίσι κατὰ νοῦν, πανταχῇ τῆς οἰκουμένης διήγγελλον, οὐδὲν ἐλλείποντες τὸ ἐπὶ σφᾶς εἶναι τὰ μὲν ὡς ἀμαθῇ με γέλωτα ποιεῖν τὰ δὲ ἐστιγμένον πανοῦργον ἀποκαλεῖν. οὐ μὲν ἀλλὰ πολλῶν ἔνεκα τούτων γε αὐτοῖς ἄξιος ἦν, καθάπερ δὴ δικαιοῦσι πρὸς ἀλλήλους οἱ ἀντιπολιτευόμενοι. οἱ δ' ὀλίγοι εἰ μὴ εἰσῆγγειλάν με μὴδ' ἡτίμωσαν, παραπλήσιον ὅμως τι ἔπραξάν τε καὶ πράττουσι τοῖς παρ' ἐκείνων ἐφ' οἷς οὐχ ἥττον ἡγανάκτουν τῆς εἰσαγγελίας καὶ τῆς ἀτιμίας· καὶ ταῦτα φανεροῦ ὄντος ἐμοῦ ἀμεταβόλως θεραπεύοντας τὰ συμφέροντα ταύτῃ τῇ προαιρέσει καὶ ὡς ἐπὶ τὸ πολὺ ἀπροφασίστως ἀκολουθοῦντος ταῖς βουλήσεσιν, ἔτι δὲ ὑπὲρ ταύτης αὐτῆς φυγάδος τῷ ὄντι γεγονότος καὶ τὴν ἐπιτιμίαν ἀφηρεμένον, καὶ ἀποβεβληκότος μὲν τὴν οὐσίαν ἐκπεπτωκότος δὲ τῶν τε οἰκείων καὶ τῆς πατρίδος.

What is there, then, ye will say to me, in this third ordinance, which thou so mislikest? I will answer you in a few words: I mislike the changing of the laws of our fathers, especially when these laws have respect to the worship of the gods. Many things, I know, are ordered wisely for one generation, which notwithstanding are by another generation no less wisely ordered otherwise. There is room in human affairs for change: there is room also for unchangeableness. And where shall we seek for that which is unchangeable, but in those great laws which are the very foundation of the commonwealth; most of all in those which, having to do with the immortal gods, should be also themselves immortal? Now it belongs to these laws that the office of consul, which is as it were the shadow of the majesty of Jove himself, should be held only by men of the houses of the patricians. Ye know how that none but the patricians may take any office of priesthood for the worship of the gods of Rome, nor interpret the will of the gods by augury. For the gods, being themselves many, have set also upon earth many races of men and many orders; and one race may not take to itself the law of another race, nor one order the law of another order. Each has its own law, which was given to it from the beginning; and if we change these, the whole world will be full of confusion. These laws are not of today, nor of yesterday: we know of no time when they have not been: may neither we nor our children ever see that time when they shall have ceased to be!

ARNOLD.

Τί δὲ καταμέμφει, τάχ' ἂν εἴποι τις, τοῦ τρίτου τοῦδε ἐπιτάγματος; πρὸς τοῦτον ἀποκριναίμην ἂν ἐν βραχέσι. καταμέμφομαι γὰρ τὸ μεταβάλλεσθαι τοὺς νόμους τοὺς τῶν πατέρων, ἄλλους τε καὶ ὅσοι ἐπιμελοῦνται τῆς περὶ τὰ θεῖα νομίσεως. οἶδα μέντοι πολλὰ τῇ μὲν γενεᾷ σωφρόνως ἐπιταττόμενα, τῇ δὲ οὐδὲν ἥττον ἄλλως πως ἀποβαίνοντα· ἐπὶ γὰρ τῶν ἀνθρωπίνων ἐγχωρεῖ μὲν ἔστιν ὅτε ζητεῖν μεταβολάς, ἐγχωρεῖ δὲ καὶ ἔχεσθαι τοῦ ἀκινήτου. καὶ τίς ἂν ἄλλοθί που ἐπιζητοίῃ τὸ ἀκίνητον ἢ ἐν τοῖς νομίμοις τούτοις τοῖς μεγίστοις ἐφ' οἷς ἴδρυται αὐτὴ ἡ πολιτεία, ὅσα πλείστα πρὸς τοὺς ἀθανάτους θεοὺς συντείνοντα προσήκει δῆπου καὶ αὐτὰ ἀθάνατα εἶναι; ταῦτα δὲ πρὸς τί ἀποβλέπει; δῆλον ὅτι πρὸς τὸ τῆς ὑπατείας, ἣν ἅτε εἰκόνα οὖσαν τῆς αὐτοῦ τοῦ Διὸς ἐξουσίας μόναι αἱ τῶν εὐπατριδῶν οἰκίαι δίκαιαι ἂν εἶεν ἐπιτετράφθαι. ὅτι γὰρ οὐδενὶ ἄλλῳ ἢ τοῖς ἐκ τούτων ἔξεστι τῶν πρὸς τοὺς θεοὺς ἐπιμελείσθαι οὔτε ἱερωσύνης κληρουμένῳ οὔτε ἐξηγουμένῳ δι' οἰωνῶν καὶ αὐτοὶ ἐπίστασθε. οἱ γὰρ θεοὶ πολλοὶ ὄντες καὶ αὐτοὶ πολλὰ κατέστησαν ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς καὶ τὰ φύλα καὶ τὰ ἔθνη τῶν ἀνθρώπων, καὶ πῶς ἐνδέχεται ἄλλο ἄλλου τιμὰς οἰκειοῦσθαι ἢ φύλον φύλου ἢ καὶ ἔθνος ἔθνους; ἐπεὶ ἐκάστω ὁ οἰκεῖος νόμος ἐξ ἀρχῆς παραδέδοται, μεταβαλλομένων δὲ μεστὰ ἀπορίας πάντα ἂν εἴη. οὐδὲ γὰρ χθές τε καὶ πρόην ταῦτα κατέστη τὰ νόμιμα, μᾶλλον δὲ οὐδεὶς οἶδεν ἐξ ὅτου χρόνου ἐφάνη· μὴ τοίνυν τὸν χρόνον ἴδοιμεν μήτ' αὐτοὶ μήτε οἱ ἐσόμενοι ἐν ᾧ ὑπάρχοντα παύσεται.

And as to the judgement of Cato the censor, he was well punished for his blasphemy against learning, in the same kind wherein he offended ; for when he was past threescore years old, he was taken with an extreme desire to go to school again, and to learn the Greek tongue, to the end to peruse the Greek authors ; which doth well demonstrate, that his former censure of the Grecian learning was rather an affected gravity, than according to the inward sense of his own opinion. And as for Virgil's verses, though it pleased him to brave the world in taking to the Romans the art of empire, and leaving to others the arts of subjects ; yet so much is manifest, that the Romans never ascended to that height of empire, till the time they had ascended to the height of other arts. For in the time of the two first Cæsars, which had the art of government in greatest perfection, there lived the best poet Virgilius Maro, the best historiographer Titus Livius, the best antiquary Marcus Varro, and the best or second orator Marcus Cicero, that to the memory of man are known. As for the accusation of Socrates, the time must be remembered when it was prosecuted ; which was under the thirty tyrants, the most base, bloody and envious persons that have governed ; which revolution of state was no sooner over, but Socrates, whom they had made a person criminal, was made a person heroical, and his memory accumulate with honours divine and human : and those discourses of his which were then termed corrupting of manners, were after acknowledged for sovereign medicines of the mind and manners, and so have been received ever since till this day.

BACON.

Ὅσα μὲν γὰρ Κάτων ὁ τιμητῆς ἐπικαλούμενος ἔκρινεν εἰς τὰ μαθήματα βλασφημῶν δίκην ἔδωκε κατὰ τὰ αὐτὰ ἃ καὶ ἡμαρτήκει. ἐξηκονταέτη γὰρ γεγονότα πόθος τις κατέλαβεν αὐτὸν ὑπερφυῆς ὅσος τοῦ πάλιν ἐξ ἀρχῆς φοιτῆσαι εἰς διδασκάλου ὡς το ἑλληνίζειν μαθησόμενον καὶ ἔμπειρον γενησόμενον ὧν συνέγραψαν. ὁ καὶ τέκμηριοι ὅτι ἃ πρότερον ἐπετίμησε τῇ Ἑλλάδι προσποιήτως μᾶλλον ἐσεμνύνετο ἢ ἃ καὶ αὐτῷ ἐδόκει ἔλεγεν. εἰ δὲ καὶ ὁ Μάρων ἔπη ποιῶν πάννυ καταφρονητικῶς ἔχων πρὸς τοὺς ἄλλους τοῖς μὲν Ῥωμαίοις ὤετο δεῖν τὴν ἀρχικὴν ἐπιστήμην περιθεῖναι τοῖς δὲ λοιποῖς τὰς τῶν ὑπηκόων, τοσοῦτον μέντοι φανερόν ὅτι πορρωτάτῳ τῶν ἄλλων τεχνῶν προβεβηκότες ἐκεῖνοι οὕτως ἤδη καὶ τῆς ἀρχικῆς ἐφίκοντο. ἐπὶ γὰρ τοῖν πρώτοιν Καισάρειν, οἱ ἀκριβέστατα τὴν τοῦ ἄρχειν τέχνην ἠπίσταντο, οἱ ἀκρότατοι ὧν γε ἴσμεν ἀκοῇ καθ' ἐκάστην τὴν ἐπιστήμην ἐγένοντο τῶν μὲν ποιητῶν ὁ Μάρων, τῶν δὲ συγγραφέων Λίβιος, τῶν δὲ περὶ τὰ ἀρχαῖα πεπονημένων Βάρρων, τῶν δὲ ῥητόρων πολὺ δεύτερός γε Κικέρων. τὴν δὲ Σωκράτους κατηγορίαν οὐδ' ἐκεῖνο δεῖ λεληθέναι ἐφ' ὧντινων ἡ γραφὴ εἰσῆλθεν, ἐπὶ τῶν τριάκοντα, ἀνδρῶν εἴπερ καὶ τινες ἄλλοι ὠμοτάτων τε καὶ αἰσχίστων καὶ φθονερωτάτων. ἡ δὲ τοιαύτη κατάστασις οὐκ ἔφθη καταπαυθεῖσα, καὶ τῷ Σωκράτει, ὃν ἀλιτήριόν τινα ἀπεκάλεσαν, αὐτῷ μὲν ὡς ἡρωῖ τιμὴν εἴτε θείαν εἴτε ἀνθρωπίνην οὐδεμίαν ἦντιν' οὐ περιῆψαν, οἱ δὲ λόγοι αὐτοῦ πρότερον μὲν διαφθεῖρειν τοὺς νέους ἐδόκουν, ὕστερον δὲ ἐν φαρμάκων εἶδει ὡς μάλιστα σωτηρίων καὶ ὑγιεινῶν μέχρι τοῦ δεῦρο νομίζονται.

According to our view of this celebrated society, it is not surprising that it should have presented such a variety of aspects, as to mislead those who fixed their attention on any one of them, and withdrew it from the rest. It was at once a philosophical school, a religious brotherhood, and a political association; and all these characters appear to have been inseparably united in the founder's mind. It must be considered as a proof of upright intentions in Pythagoras, which ought to rescue him from all suspicion of selfish motives, that he chose for his coadjutors persons whom he deemed capable of grasping the highest truths which he could communicate, and was not only willing to teach them all he knew, but regarded the utmost cultivation of their intellectual faculties as a necessary preparation for the work to which he destined them. His lessons were certainly not confined to particular branches of mathematical or physical science, but were clearly meant to throw the fullest light on the greatest questions which can occupy the human mind. Those who were to govern others were first to contemplate the world, and to comprehend the place which they filled in it. The Pythagorean philosophy may indeed appear singularly foreign to the business of a statesman: but we know that some of the greatest both in ancient and modern times have been nourished in such speculations, and the effects of the exercise are not to be measured by the importance of the scientific results.

You will observe that all I was charged with, and all by consequence that I am answerable for, was to solicit this court, and to dispose them to grant us the succours necessary to make the attempt, as soon as we should know certainly from England in what it was desired that these succours should consist, and whither they should be sent. Here I found a multitude of people at work, and every one doing what seemed good in his own eyes : no subordination, no order, no concert. Persons concerned in the management of these affairs upon former occasions have assured me, this is always the case. It might be so to some degree ; but I believe never so much as now. The Jacobites had wrought one another up to look upon the success of the present designs as infallible. Every meeting-house which the populace demolished, every little drunken riot which happened, served to confirm them in these sanguine expectations ; and there was hardly one amongst them who would lose the air of contributing by his intrigues to the restoration, which, he took it for granted, would be brought about, without him, in a very few weeks.

But were the other, or at least the democratic, states in as bad a condition as Athens? Here we are deserted by history ; which has preserved little information on the subject of judicature. But though at Athens several accidental causes, partly arising from the national character, and partly from the political power of that city (for the importance of state-trials increases with the importance of the state) contributed to multiply this class of lawsuits ; it by no means follows that the number was much smaller in most of the other Grecian cities. Popular tribunals are the sources of political revolutions, and what states abounded in them more than the Grecian? The man of influence, always an object of envy, was the most exposed to accusations, where it was so easy to find a ground of accusation ; but the man of influence had also the greatest resources without the precincts of the court. Supported by his party, if conscious of possessing sufficient strength, he would have recourse to arms, and instead of suffering himself to be banished from the city, prefer to terminate the action by driving away his enemies. Were we more intimately acquainted with the history of the numberless political revolutions in Greece, how often would this same succession of events recur? But though we are not always able to establish them by historical evidence, they cannot on the whole be doubted ; and they distinctly exhibit the close connection which existed between the ancient states and their judicial institutions.

These reflections, and such as they suggest naturally to the mind, make it evident, that the future prosperity and safety of this country depend on the speedy diminution of our national debts. Nothing else can secure us effectually against contingent events that may be of fatal consequence to both. Recent experience has shown how unfit we are become in every respect, except the courage of our common seamen and soldiers, to engage in war. We shall not therefore, I suppose, provoke it easily, or soon. But war may be brought upon us, though we should not provoke it, nor go to the continent to seek it. Nay, we may be reduced to the melancholy dilemma of increasing our annual expense to assert our rights, to protect our trade, and to maintain our dignity ; or of sitting tamely down and sacrificing them all. I think, nay I hope, that we should not do the last : and yet we should have much greater difficulties to struggle with in our present situation, than we had in the former, great as they were, if we attempted to do what was then so shamefully neglected.

There is according to Plato properly no knowledge, but only opinion concerning things sensible and perishing, not because they are naturally abstrusive and involved in darkness, but because their nature and existence is uncertain, ever fleeting and changing. Or rather because they do not, in strict truth, exist at all, being always generating or in fieri, that is in a perpetual flux, without anything stable or permanent in them to constitute an object of real science. The Pythagoreans and Platonics distinguish between that which is ever generated and that which exists. Sensible things and corporeal forms are perpetually producing and perishing, appearing and disappearing, never resting in one state, but always in motion and change, and therefore in effect not one being but a succession of beings: while τὸ ὄν is understood to be something of an abstract or spiritual nature, and the proper object of intellectual knowledge. Therefore, as there can be no knowledge of things flowing and instable, the opinion of Pythagoras, and Theaetetus, that sense was science, is absurd. As understanding perceiveth not, that is, doth not hear or see or feel, so sense knoweth not; and although the mind may use both sense and fancy, as means whereby to arrive at knowledge, yet sense, or soul, so far forth as sensitive, knoweth nothing. For, as it is rightly observed, science consisteth not in the passive perceptions, but in the reasoning upon them.

Is it possible, trow you, that king Richard should damn his soul, and foul his name with so abominable a murder, and yet not mend his case? Or do you think that men of blood, that were his instruments, did turn to pity in the midst of their execution? Whereas in cruel and savage beasts, and men also, the first draught of blood doth yet make them more fierce and enraged. Do you not know that the bloody executioners of tyrants do go to such errands with an halter around their neck; so that if they perform not, they are sure to die for it? And do you think that these men would hazard their own lives, for sparing another's? Admit they should have saved him; what should they have done with him? Turn him into London streets, that the watchmen, or any other passenger that should light upon him, should carry him before a justice, and so all come to light? Or should they have kept him by them secretly? That surely would have required a great deal of care, charge, and continual fears. But, my lords, I labour too much in a clear business. The king is so wise, and hath so good friends abroad, as that he knoweth duke Perkin from his cradle. And because he is a great prince, if you have any good poet here, he can help him with notes to write his life; and to parallel him with Lambert Simnel, now the king's falconer.

BACON.

Ἡ δοκεῖτε Ῥίχαρδον, κινδυνεύοντά τε τὴν ἐν ᾿Αιδου τιμωρίαν καὶ τῷ αὐτοῦ ὀνόματι δόξαν τὴν αἰσχίστην περιάψοντα, τὸν καταρατὸν τουτονὶ φόνον ἀπεργάσασθαι ὥστε μηδὲν πλέον ἀποβῆναι; δοκοῦσι γὰρ ὑμῖν ἄνδρες μαιφόνοι, οἳ καὶ ὑπηρέτησαν αὐτῷ, μεταξὺ ἀποκτινύντες εἰς ἔλεον τραπέσθαι; τὸ δὲ ἐπὶ τῶν ἀγρίων θηρίων τε καὶ ἀνθρώπων τὸ ἅπαξ γεύσασθαι αἵματος ἔτι σκληρότερα καὶ μανικώτερα ἀπειργάσατο ἀμφότερα. ἴστε γὰρ δήπου ὅτι ὅσοι διὰ φόνου τὰ τοιαῦτα ὑπουργοῦσι τοῖς τυράννοις βρόχοις αὐχένα δεδεμένοι βαδίζουσιν εἰς τὸ ἔργον, ὡς εἰ μὴ διαπράξωσι καὶ αὐτοὶ ἀνταποθανούμενοι. καίτοι πῶς οἷόν τε τοὺς τοιούτους τῆς ἀλλοτρίας ψυχῆς φειδομένους ὑπὲρ τῆς σφετέρας κινδυνεῦσαι; καὶ δὴ ἔσωσαν αὐτόν· τί μέντοι ἐχρήσαντο; ἀλλὰ νῆ Δί' εἰς ἀγυιὰς διέφρησαν, ὅπως δὴ οἱ τοξόται ἢ καὶ τῶν παριόντων τις παρὰ τοὺς δικαστὰς ἀπαγαγὼν οὕτω δὴ εἰς φανερόν κατέστησε τὸ πρᾶγμα. ἀλλὰ κρύβδην οἳ καὶ παρ' ἑαυτοῖς ἔτρεφον· ἀλλὰ τοῦτό γε πολλῆς ἂν ἔδει τῆς ἐπιμελείας καὶ οὐκ ἄνευ δαπάνης καὶ φόβου συνεχοῦς ἂν ἐγένετο. ἀλλὰ γὰρ ἐν ὁμολογούμενῳ τῷ πράγματι λίαν ταλαιπωρῶ. ὁ γὰρ βασιλεὺς, αὐτός τε σοφὸς ὢν καὶ πολλοῖς τῶν ἔξωθεν φίλοις χρώμενος, τὸν Πέρκινον τουτονὶ οἷός ἐστιν ἤδη ἐκ παιδὸς δίδοιεν. ἅτε δὲ γενναίου ὄντος τουτουί, εἴ τις ἄρα ὑπάρχει τῶν ἐνθένδε ἀξιόλογος ποιητής, συγγράψειεν ἂν τὰ τουτῶι βεβιωμένα βοηθοῦντος ὑπομνήμασι καὶ αὐτοῦ τοῦ βασιλέως, ὥστε ἐξισοῦσθαι τῷ Λαμβέρτῳ τῷ Σιμνήλῳ ἐπικαλουμένῳ, ὃς καὶ νῦν τῶν ὀρτυγοτρόφων ἐστὶ τῶν βασιλείων.

Not that I can tax or condemn the morigeration or application of learned men to men in fortune. For the answer was good that Diogenes made to one that asked him in mockery, 'How it came to pass that philosophers were the followers of rich men, and not rich men of philosophers?' He answered soberly, and yet sharply, 'Because the one sort knew what they had need of, and the other did not.' And of the like nature was the answer which Aristippus made, when having a petition to Dionysius, and no ear given to him, he fell down at his feet; whereupon Dionysius staid, and gave him the hearing, and granted it; and afterward some person, tender on the behalf of philosophy, reproved Aristippus, 'that he would offer the profession of philosophy such an indignity, as, for a private suit, to fall at the feet of Dionysius.' But he answered, 'it was not his fault, but the fault of Dionysius, that he had his ears in his feet.' Neither was it accounted weakness, but discretion in him that would not dispute his best with Adrianus Caesar; excusing himself 'that it was reason to yield to him that commanded thirty legions.' These and the like applications, and stooping to points of necessity and convenience, cannot be disallowed: for though they may have some outward baseness, yet in a judgement truly made, they are to be accounted submissions to the occasion and not to the person.

BACON.

Οὐ μὴν οὐδὲ τοῖς φιλοσόφοις τό γε ὑποπίπτειν τοῖς πλουσίοις καὶ προστάτας ἐγγράφεσθαι αὐτοὺς οὐδὲν οὔτ' ἔχω ἐπιτιμᾶν οὔτε κατηγορῶ. κομψὸν γὰρ τὸ Διογένους, ὃς τῷ σκωπτικῶς ποτε ἐρομένῳ διότι φιλόσοφοι ἀκολουθοῖεν τοῖς ἔχουσιν ἄλλ' οὐχὶ οὗτοι ἐκείνοις, σωφρόνως μὲν ὁξέως δὲ ἀποκρινόμενος, ὅτι οἱ μὲν, ἔφη, ἴσασιν ὧν δέονται οἱ δὲ οὔ. παραπλήσιον δέ τι ἀπεκρίνατο καὶ Ἀρίστιππος· δεόμενος γάρ τι Διονυσίου οὐχ ὑπακούοντος παρὰ τοὺς πόδας αὐτῷ προσέπεσε· διὸ καὶ ὁ Διονύσιος παραμείνας καὶ προσσχὼν ἐχαρίσατο. ὕστερον δέ τις φιλοτιμούμενος ἐπὶ τῇ φιλοσοφίᾳ ἐπέπληξε τῷ Ἀριστίππῳ οἷα τὸ τοιοῦτον ἐπιτήδευμα ἀτιμάσειεν ἰδίας χρείας ἔνεκεν ἀνδρὶ τυράννῳ παρὰ τοὺς πόδας προσπεσών. ὁ δὲ οὐκ ἔφη αὐτὸς αἴτιος εἶναι ἄλλ' ἐκείνον τοῦ γε ἔχειν ἐν τοῖς ποσὶ τὰ ὦτα. οὐδέ γε ἐκείνος ἡλίθιος ἐδόκει εἶναι μᾶλλον ἢ φρόνιμος ὃς Ἀδριανῷ τῷ Καίσαρι ἀμφισβητῶν εἰρωνεύετο· ἀπελογεῖτο γὰρ ὅτι λόγον ἔχοι ὑποχωρεῖν τῷ γε τριάκοντα στρατοπέδων ἄρχοντι. ταῦτα δὴ καὶ τὰ τοιαῦτα θεραπεύειν ἔστιν ὅτε τῇ ἀνάγκῃ καὶ τῷ ὠφελίμῳ ὑπέικοντα ἐατέον. αἰσχρὰ γὰρ οὕτως μὲν σκοπεῖν τάχ' ἂν φανείη, τῷ μέντοι λόγῳ λαμβάνοντι τῷ καιρῷ δοκοῦσιν οἳ γε τοιοῦτοι ὑπέικοντες ἄλλ' οὐ τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ.

Again, since there can be no goodness desired which proceedeth not from God himself, as from the supreme cause of all things; and every effect doth after a sort contain, at leastwise resemble the cause from which it proceedeth: all things in the world are said in some sort to seek the highest, and to covet more or less the participation of God himself. Yet this doth nowhere so much appear as it doth in man, because there are so many kinds of perfections which man seeketh. The first degree of goodness is that general perfection which all things do seek, in desiring the continuance of their being. All things therefore coveting as much as may be to be like unto God in being ever, that which cannot hereunto attain personally, doth seek to continue itself another way, that is by offspring and propagation. The next degree of goodness is that which each thing coveteth by affecting resemblance with God in the constancy and excellency of those operations which belong unto their kind. The immutability of God they strive unto, by working either always or for the most part after one and the same manner: his absolute exactness they imitate, by tending unto that which is most exquisite in every particular. Hence have risen a number of axioms in philosophy, showing how 'the works of nature do always aim at that which cannot be bettered.'

HOOKE.

Ἔτι δὲ ἐπεὶ οὐδενὸς ἀγαθοῦ ἐπορεγόμεθα, ὃ μὴ ἀπὸ τοῦ θείου αὐτοῦ ἀποβαίνει· τοῦτο γὰρ κυριώτατον πάντων αἴτιον· τὸ δὲ ἀποβαῖνον τούτῳ ὅθεν καὶ ἀποβαίνει ἤτοι ὁμοίωται γε ἢ τὸν τρόπον τινὰ περιέχει αὐτό· ἅπαντα μὲν δηλονότι ἐπιζητεῖν πως λέγεται τὸ ἀκρότατον, ἐφίεμενα τὰ μὲν πλεον τὰ δὲ ἔλαττον τῆς τοῦ θείου αὐτοῦ μεθέξεως· ἐπὶ δὲ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου τοῦτο εἶπερ καὶ ἐπ' ἄλλου του τοσοῦτῳ μάλιστα ἐμφαίνεται, ὅσῳ ἂν καὶ πλείστα ἢ τὰ τέλεια ἢ ὁ τοιοῦτος ἐπιζητεῖ. τῆς δὲ ἀρετῆς πρῶτον μὲν τὸ ἀπλῶς τέλειον πάντα ἐπιζητεῖ· ἐπορέγεται γὰρ τοῦ ἀεὶ ὄντα διατελεῖν· ὥστε κατὰ δύναμιν ἐφίεμενα ὁμοιωσθαι τῷ θείῳ ἀεὶ ὄντι, τὸ μὴ αὐτὸ καθ' αὐτὸ τούτου τυχεῖν δυνάμενον ἄλλως πως διατελεῖν ὃν ἐπιζητεῖ, λέγω δὲ οἶον διὰ σπόρου καὶ τοῦ τοιοῦτον οἶον αὐτὸ καταλιπεῖν. τῆς δὲ δευτέρας ἐπορεγόμενα ἐφίεται τῆς τοῦ θείου ὁμοιώσεως τῷ ἀτρεμεῖς ἔχειν καὶ καλλίστας τὰς ἐνεργείας κατὰ τὸ οἰκεῖον ἕκαστον εἶδος. τῆς δὲ ἀμετακινήτου τούτου φύσεως ὃν μὲν τρόπον ἐπορέγεται, ἓνα τινὰ καὶ τὸν αὐτὸν ἀεὶ ἢ ὡς ἐπὶ τὸ πολὺ ἐνεργεῖ· τὴν δὲ αὐτάρκειαν τὴν τελειοτάτην μιμούμενα ὅ τι ἂν ἢ καθ' ἕκαστον εἶδος αἵρετώτατον εἰς τοῦτο ἀποβλέπει. σημεῖον δὲ τὰ πολλάκις ὑπὸ σοφῶν ἀνδρῶν θρυλούμενα, ὅτι τὰ φύσει ἀεὶ ἐπορέγεται τοῦ ἀνυπερβλήτου.

Those who believe a future state of rewards and punishments act very absurdly, if they form their opinions of a man's merit from his successes. But certainly, if I thought the whole circle of our being was concluded between our births and deaths, I should think a man's good fortune the measure and standard of his real merit, since Providence would have no opportunity of rewarding his virtue and perfections, but in the present life. A virtuous unbeliever, who lies under the pressure of misfortunes, has reason to cry out, as they say Brutus did a little before his death, O Virtue, I have worshipped thee as a substantial good, but I find thou art an empty name. But to return to our first point. Though prudence does undoubtedly in a great measure produce our good or ill fortune in the world, it is certain there are many unforeseen accidents and occurrences, which very often pervert the finest schemes that can be laid by human wisdom. Nay it very often happens that prudence, which has always in it a great mixture of caution, hinders a man from being so fortunate as he might possibly have been without it. A person who only aims at what is likely to succeed, and follows closely the dictates of human prudence, never meets with those great and unforeseen successes, which are often the effect of a sanguine temper, or a more happy rashness ; and this perhaps may be the reason that, according to the common observation, Fortune, like other females, delights rather in favouring the young than the old.

ὦ τλῆμον ἀρετῇ, λόγος ἄρ' ἦσθ'· ἐγὼ δέ σε
ὥς ἔργον ἥσκουν.

ἀνίωμεν δὲ εἰς τὰ πρότερα. πολλὰ μὲν εἰς εὐτυχίαν ἡμῶν ἔτι ζώντων ἡ φρόνησις συμβάλλεται· ἀναμφισβήτητον δὲ καὶ κεῖνο ὅτι συχνὰ ἐνδέχεται καὶ συμβαίνει ὅσων οὐδὲν προορώμεθα, ἃ πλειστάκις τῶν τοῖς γε σοφωτάτοις κάλλιστα, δοξάντων φθαρτικὰ ἂν εἴη. ἀλλὰ μὴν καὶ ἡ γε φρόνησις αὐτῇ, ἣς αἰεὶ πολὺ μετέχει ἡ εὐλάβεια, πολλάκις ἐκώλυσέ τινα μὴ τοσοῦτον εὐδαιμονῆσαι ὅσον ἐνεχώρει ἀπούσης αὐτῆς. ὁ γὰρ μηδενὸς ἄλλου ἢ τῶν κατορθοῦσθαι ἐπιδόξων ἐφιέμενος καὶ ὅσα ἐξηγεῖται ἡ φρόνησις ἡ ἀνθρωπίνη συνεχῶς ἀκολουθῶν, τῶν μεγάλων οὐδέποτε τυγχάνει κατορθωμάτων, ἃ προὔπτα μὲν οὐ, πολλάκις δὲ τοῦ ἀποβαίνειν αὐτὰ αἰτίος ἐστίν ὁ εὐέλπις ἡ καὶ ὁ ἀπερισκέπτως μὲν εὐτυχῶς δὲ κινδυνεύων. ὅπερ καὶ τάχ' ἂν ἐπαληθεύοι τὸ λεγόμενον, ὥσπερ τὸ ἄλλο θῆλυ γένος καὶ ἡ τύχη φιλεῖ μᾶλλον χαρίζεσθαι τοῖς νέοις ἢ τοῖς γεραιτέροις.

We entered a small square: it had been a market-place: the roofs of the stalls were demolished, and the stones of several columns, not one of which was standing, thrown down to supply the cramps of iron and the lead that fastened them, served for the spectators, male and female, to mount upon. Five men were nailed on crosses; two others were nailed against a wall, from scarcity, as we were told, of wood. Can seven men have murdered their parents in the same year? cried I.

No, nor had any of the seven, replied the first who had spoken. But when heavy impositions were laid upon those who were backward in voluntary contributions, these men, among the richest in our city, protested by the gods, that they had no gold or silver left. They protested truly. And they die for this! inhuman, insatiable, inexorable wretch! Their books, added he, unmoved at my reproaches, were seized by public authority and examined. It was discovered that instead of employing their riches in external or internal commerce, or in agriculture, or in manufactories, instead of reserving it for the embellishment of the city, or the utility of the citizens, instead of lending it on interest to the industrious and the needy, they had lent it to foreign kings and tyrants, some of whom were waging wars against their neighbours by these very means, and others were enslaving their own country. For so heinous a crime the laws had appointed no specific punishment.

LANDOR.

Εἰσελθόντες δὲ εἰς χωρίον τι οὐ μέγα, ὅπου ἀγορὰ πρότερον ἦν—αἱ δὲ ὀροφαὶ τῶν σκηνῶν ἤδη κατεσκαμμέναι ἦσαν, τῶν τε στηλῶν, ὧν οὐδεμία ἔτι συνειστήκει, τούτων οἱ λίθοι καθηρημένοι εἰς χρεῖαν μολυβδίνων ἢ σιδηρῶν συνδέσμων τοῖς θεωμένοις, ἀνδράσι τε ἅμα καὶ γυναιξί, βῆμα ὑπῆρχον—εἰσελθόντες δὲ ἑπτὰ ἄνδρας κατελάβομεν· ὧν οἱ μὲν πέντε ἀνεσταυρωμένοι ἦσαν, οἱ δὲ δύο προσήλυντο τῷ τοίχῳ, ἅτε σπανίζοντος ὥς ἔφασαν τοῦ ξύλου. τί δέ; ἦν δ' ἐγώ· ἑπτὰ γὰρ ἄνθρωποι τοὺς γονέας ἐν τῷ αὐτῷ ἐνιαυτῷ ἀπεκτονότες ἂν εἶεν; οὐδὲ γὰρ εἰς τῶν ἑπτὰ, ἣ δ' ὅς ὁ πρότερον διαλεχθεῖς, ἐπειδὴ δὲ μεγάλας ζημίας εἰσεπραττόμεθα τοὺς μὴ ἐκουσίως ἐπιδιδόντας, οὗτοι δὴ ἐν τοῖς πλουσιωτάτοις τῶν ἀστῶν διεμαρτύραντο τοὺς θεοὺς ἢ μὴν μήτε χρυσίου μήτε ἀργυρίου μηδὲν σφίσι περιεῖναι, ἀληθῆ γε διαμαρτυρόμενοι. εἶτα τούτων γε ἕνεκεν ἀποθνήσκουσιν, ὧ ἀναιδέστατε σύ, καὶ μάλιστ' ἀνθρώπων ἄπληστε καὶ ἀπαραίτητε; προσκαλεσάμενοι δὲ οἱ ἄρχοντες, ἣ δ' ὅς, ὀνειδίζοντός μου οὐδὲν ἐντρεπόμενος, εἰς ἐμφανῶν κατάστασιν, ἐξήταζον τὰ γραμματεῖα, φανεροὶ δ' ἐνταῦθα ἐγένοντο ἀντὶ μὲν τοῦ ἀναλῶσαι εἰς ἐμπορίαν τὰ χρήματα εἴτε ἔνδημον εἴθ' ὑπερορίαν, ἣ γεωργίαν ἢ καὶ χειρουργήματα, ἀντὶ δὲ τοῦ περιποιήσασθαι εἴτε εἰς κόσμον τοῦ ἄστεος εἴτε εἰς τὸ συμφέρον τοῖς πολίταις, ἀντὶ δὲ τοῦ τοκίσαι τοῖς φιλέργοις καὶ ἀπορωτέροις, ἀλλὰ καὶ δανείσαντες τοῖς ἄλλοφύλοις τυράννοις τε καὶ βασιλεῦσιν, ὧν οἱ μὲν ἀπ' αὐτῶν τούτων ἀδίκως τοῖς πλησιοχώροις ἐπολέμουν οἱ δὲ τὴν οἰκίαν κατεδουλοῦντο. τῇ δὲ ἀδικίᾳ ταύτῃ ἐν ὑπερβολῇ οὕσῃ οὐδεμία ἀφωρισμένη ζημία ἔκειτο.

And what signifies to me the esteem of others, if I cannot obtain my own? I sometimes carry the mean idea I entertain of my own abilities even to contempt. What advantage have I derived from them? Have I ever been able to obtain public employments, the offices of magistracy, or the applause and honours which I daily see bestowed on those base orators who betray the state? Though my panegyric on Athens made those rhetoricians blush who had before treated the same subject, and discouraged others from again attempting it, I have always spoken of my successes with modesty, or rather with humility. My intentions are pure; I have never either by writings or accusations done injury to any man; yet I have enemies. What then! must you not expect to pay the tribute of your merit by some disquietudes? Your enemies are more to be pitied than yourself. An unwelcome voice perpetually reminds them that kings, generals, statesmen, historians, and authors in every branch of literature, are numbered among your disciples; that whole colonies of learned and ingenious men from time to time issue from your school, who spread your doctrines far and wide; that you govern Greece by your pupils; and, to make use of your own expression, that you are the stone that whets the instrument.—True; but it is not the stone that cuts.

ANACHARSIS.

Τί δὲ μέλει μοι τοῦ ὑπ' ἄλλων ζηλούσθαι μηδέν γε ὑπ' ἑμαυτοῦ ζηλουμένῳ; τὴν γὰρ ἐμὴν φύσιν αἰὲν καταμεμφόμενος ἔστιν ὅτε προάγομαι καὶ πάνυ καταφρονεῖν. τί γὰρ ἐνθένδε πώποτε μοι γεγένηται ὄφελος; τίνα γὰρ ἀρχὴν ἦρξα, τίνα δὲ χειροτονίαν ἐχειροτονήθην, τίνος δὲ καὶ ἐπαίνου ἢ τίνων τιμῶν ἔτυχον οἷων τοὺς αἰσχροὺς τουτουσὶ ῥήτορας τοὺς τὴν πόλιν προπεπωκότας καθ' ἡμέραν ὁρῶ ἀξιουμένους; εἰ δὲ καὶ ἐν τῷ πανηγυρικῷ εὐλογήσας τὰς Ἀθήνας τοὺς μὲν περὶ τὰ αὐτὰ πρότερον πεπονημένους εἰς αἰσχύνην ἔτρεψα, τοὺς δὲ μηκέτι τοῦ λοιποῦ ἐπιχειρῆσαι κατέπαυσα, ὅμως δὲ περὶ τῶν κατωρθωμένων μοι μετρίως αἰὲν μᾶλλον δὲ ταπεινῶς διαλέγομαι. ἔτι δὲ τὰ δίκαια αἰὲν διανοούμενος καὶ οὐδένα πώποτε οὔτε γράφων οὔτε γραφόμενος βλάβας, ὅμως ἔστι πρὸς οὓς ἐπιφθόνως διάκειμαι. τί δαί; εἰκὸς γάρ πού σε ἀντὶ τῆς εὐδοκιμήσεως ὥσπερανεὶ ἀποφορὰν τίνα ἀποτίσαι ὀλίγ' ἅττα ἀνιώμενον· οἱ γὰρ ἐχθροὶ ἐλεεῖσθαι ἀξιώτεροι ἢ αὐτός, οἷς γε φωνή τις ἀηδὴς αἰὲν διατεθρύλῃται τοῖς ὡσὶν, ὅσοι βασιλεῖς τε καὶ ἄνδρες πολιτικοί, συγγραφεῖς ἅμα καὶ περὶ παντοίας μαθήσεις πραγματευόμενοι τῆς σῆς συνουσίας ἀπολαύουσιν. ὅτι δὲ παρὰ σοῦ ἀποικίαι ὅλαι ἀνδρῶν σοφῶν τε καὶ εὐφυῶν ἐκάστοτε ἀποπεμπόμεναι ἐκασταχόσε τὰ σὰ μαθήματα ἐκφέρουσιν, ὥστε καὶ ἤδη διὰ τῶν μαθητῶν σὲ ἄρχειν τῆς Ἑλλάδος, καί, ὥσπερ φῆς καὶ αὐτός, εἶναι ἀκόνην τὴν θήγουσαν τὸν σίδηρον. ναί· ἀλλ' οὐκ αὕτη γε τέμνει ἢ ἀκόνη.

Instead of selfishness seducing a man, which it often does, from the observations of truth and honesty, it is vastly oftener on the side of these observations. Generally speaking, it is not more his interest that he should have men of integrity to deal with than that he himself should, in his own dealings, be strictly observant of this virtue. To be abandoned by the confidence of his fellows, he would find to be not more mortifying to his pride, than ruinous to his prosperity in the world. We are aware that many an occasional harvest is made from deceit and injustice ; but, in the vast majority of cases, men would cease to thrive when they ceased to be trusted. A man's actual truth is not more beneficial to others, than the reputation of it is gainful to himself. And therefore it is that, throughout the mercantile world, men are as sensitive of an aspersion on their name, as they would be of an encroachment on their property. The one, in fact, is tantamount to the other. It is thus that, under the constraints of selfishness alone, fidelity and justice may be in copious and current observation among men ; and while perhaps the principle of these virtues is exceedingly frail and uncertain in all hearts, human society may still subsist by the literal and outward observation of them.

CHALMERS.

Τὸ δὲ φίλαυτον οὐχ ὅπως παράγει τοὺς ἀνθρώπους, καίπερ καὶ τοῦτο ἔστιν ὅτε ποιοῦν, τοῦ μὴ τό τε ἀψευδεῖν καὶ τὸ ἀληθὲς νομίσαι, ἀλλὰ καὶ συχνῶ πλεονάκεις πρὸς τῆς νομίσεως ταύτης ἂν εἴη. ὥς γὰρ ἐπὶ τὸ πολὺ οὐ μᾶλλον τι συμφέρει τῷ ἀνθρώπῳ πιστοῖς χρῆσθαι τοῖς πρὸς αὐτὸν κοινωνοῦσιν, ἢ καὶ ἀκριβῶς αὐτὸν τοιουτότροπον γενέσθαι. τὸ γὰρ μηκέτι πιστεῦεσθαι πρὸς τοὺς πλησίον καταμάθοι ἂν οὐ μόνον αὐτῷ λυπηρὸν εἶναι ἐφ' ἑαυτῷ ὥς εἰκὸς μέγα φρονοῦντι, ἢ καὶ βλαβερὸν προσκοινωνοῦντι πρὸς τοὺς ἄλλους. καίτοι σύνισμέν γε ἔστιν ὅτε πολλοῖς πολλὰ τῆς ἀδικίας καὶ φενακισμοῦ καρπωσαμένοις· πολλῷ μέντοι ἐπὶ πλείονων ἅμα τις οὐκέτι ἐπιστεύθη καὶ ἐπαύσατο εἰ πράττων. τὸ γὰρ δίκαιον εἶναι οὐ τοῖς πέλας ὠφελιμώτερον ἢ τὸ δοκεῖν ἑαυτῷ λυσιτελέστερον. διὸ καὶ συμβαίνει τοῖς χρηματιζομένοις ὅτι ταῦτὸν πάσχουσι κακῶς ἀκούοντες καὶ εἴ τις ἐπινέμοι τι τῆς οὐσίας. ταῦτὸν γὰρ δῆλον ὅτι θάτερον τῷ ἐτέρῳ. ὅθεν καὶ κρατοῦντος καὶ μόνου τοῦ φιλαύτου, ἐνδέχεται παρὰ τοῖς ἀνθρώποις πλειστάκεις νομίζεσθαι καὶ ἐπιπολάζειν τό τε πιστὸν καὶ τὸ δίκαιον, τῶν δὲ ἀρετῶν τούτων τὴν μὲν προαίρεσιν ὥς ἀστάθμητόν τι καὶ εὐμετάβολον εἴπερ τι καὶ ἄλλο ἐν τῇ διανοίᾳ καθιδρῦσθαι, τὴν μέντοι ἀνθρωπίνην κοινωνίαν συμμένειν οὕτως καὶ ἐπιπολῆς νομιζομένων αὐτῶν.

It is certain then that if ever such men as call themselves friends to the government, but are real enemies to the constitution, prevail, they will make it a capital point of their wicked policy to keep up a standing army. False appearances of reason for it will never be wanting as long as there are pretenders to the crown : though nothing can be more absurd than to employ in defence of liberty an instrument so often employed to destroy it : though nothing can be more absurd than to maintain that any government ought to make use of the same expedient to support itself as another government, on the ruins of which this government stands, was subverted for using : though nothing can be proved more manifestly by experience than these two propositions ; that Britain is enabled by her situation to support her government when the bulk of the people are for it, without employing any means inconsistent with her constitution : and that the bulk of the people are not only always for the government, when the government supports the constitution, but are even hard and slow to be detached from it, when the government attacks and undermines the constitution, and when they are by consequence justified, and even obliged in conscience to resist the government.

Φανεροὶ δ' εἰσὶν οἱ τοιοῦτοι, οἱ λόγῳ μὲν εὖνοι τοῖς πολιτευομένοις τῷ δὲ ἔργῳ δύσνοι τοῖς καθεστῶσιν, ὅτι ἂν ἄρα ποτὲ ἰσχύσωσι, τοῦτο εἶπερ καὶ τι ἄλλο ὅτι μάλιστα πονηρεύσονται ὅπως στρατιά τις ὑπάρξει αἰδῖος. οὐδὲ γὰρ ἐνδεήσει προφάσεων καίπερ ψευδῶν οὐσῶν, ἕως ἂν ὧσιν οἱ ἀντιποιοῦμενοι τῆς βασιλείας· καίτοι τί ἂν εἴη ἀλογώτερον ἢ τοῦτο, τὸ πολλάκις διαλύον τὴν ἐλευθερίαν, τοῦτο αὐτὸ τοὺς προπολεμούντας ὑπὲρ ἐλευθερίας ἐπιτηδεύειν; ἀλογώτατον δὲ καὶ ἐκείνο ὅστις ἰσχυρίζεται ὡς ἄρα οἱ μὲν τῇ τοιαύτῃ πολιτείᾳ χρώμενοι κατεπαύθησαν, τοὺς δέ, οἳ καὶ ἐκείνων ἐκπεσόντων οὕτως ἤδη καὶ αὐτοὶ ἀντικαθεστᾶσι, τούτους δὲ τῇ αὐτῇ προσήκει χρῆσθαι τῆς σφετέρας αὐτῶν σωτηρίας ἕνεκεν. ἔτι δὲ τί πεπειραμένοις σαφέστερον δεδήλωται ἢ ταῦτα; τοῦτο μὲν ὅτι ἡ Βρεταννία, ἅτε αὐτάρκη θέσιν κειμένη, ἱκανή ἐστι βοηθεῖν τοῖς πολιτευομένοις ἔχουσί γε τὸ πλῆθος σύμμαχον, καὶ ταῦτα μηδὲν ἀλλότριον τῶν καθεστώτων ἐργαζομένη· τοῦτο δὲ ὅτι τὸ πλῆθος αὐτὸ ἀεὶ πρὸς τῶν πολιτευομένων ἂν εἴη βοηθούντων γε τοῖς καθεστῶσιν, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἥτοι λάθρα γε ἢ βίᾳ ἐπιβουλευόντων αὐτοῖς σχολῇ καὶ μόλις ἀφίστανται καίπερ ἐνταῦθά γε δίκαιον ὄν ἀλλ' οὐδ' ὅσιον μὴ οὐ πάσῃ μηχανῇ ἀντιστῆναι.

Euphranor. Tell me, Alciphron, are there not diseases of the soul, as well as of the body ?

Alciphron. Without doubt.

Euph. And are not those diseases vicious habits ?

Alc. They are.

Euph. And, as bodily distempers are cured by physic, those of the mind are cured by philosophy ; are they not ?

Alc. I acknowledge it.

Euph. It seems therefore that philosophy is a medicine for the soul of man.

Alc. It is.

Euph. How shall we be able to judge of medicines, or know which to prefer ? Is it not from the effects wrought by them ?

Alc. Doubtless.

Euph. Where an epidemical distemper rages, suppose a new physician should condemn the known established practice, and recommend another method of cure, would you not, in proportion as the bills of mortality increased, be tempted to suspect this new method, notwithstanding all the plausible discourse of its abettors ?

Alc. This serves only to amuse and lead us from the question.

Crito. It puts me in mind of my friend Lamprocles, who needed but one argument against infidels. I observed, said he, that as infidelity grew, there grew corruption of every kind, and new vices. This simple observation on matter of fact was sufficient to make him, notwithstanding the remonstrance of several ingenious men, imbue and season the minds of his children betimes with the principles of religion. The new theories, which our acute moderns have endeavoured to substitute in place of religion, have had their full course in the present age, and produced their effect on the minds and manners of men.

BERKELEY.

Εὐφ. Εἰπέ μοι, ὦ Ἀλκίφρον, ἄλλο τι ὥσπερ καὶ τοῦ σώματος καὶ τῆς ψυχῆς νόσοι ὑπάρχουσιν;

Ἀлк. δηλονότι καὶ τῆς ψυχῆς.

Εὐφ. οὐκοῦν τὰς νόσους ταύτας καχεξίας λέγεις;

Ἀлк. λέγω γάρ.

Εὐφ. καὶ τὰς καχεξίας τὰς μὲν σωματικὰς ὁ ἰατρός ἀπαλλάττει, τὰς δὲ ψυχικὰς ὁ φιλόσοφος· ἢ οὐ;

Ἀлк. πάννυ μὲν οὖν.

Εὐφ. κινδυνεύει τοίνυν φάρμακον εἶναι τῇ ψυχῇ τῇ τοῦ ἀνθρώπου ἢ φιλοσοφία.

Ἀлк. κινδυνεύει μέντοι.

Εὐφ. περὶ δὲ τῶν φαρμάκων ἔστιν ὁπόθεν τις ἂν ἄλλοθεν ἔχοι κρίνειν καὶ διειδέναι ὅποια αἰρετέα, ἢ ἀφ' οἷων ἂν ἀποτελῇ αὐτά;

Ἀлк. οὐκ ἄλλοθεν.

Εὐφ. τί δ' εἰ καινοτομῶν τις ἰατρός, ἐπινεμομένης τῶν νόσων τινὸς τῶν ἐπιπολαζουσῶν, τῇ μὲν ἰατρεύσει τῇ εἰωθυῖα καὶ νενομισμένῃ ἐπιτιμῆσειεν, ἄλλην δὲ τινα προστάττοι, οὐκ ἂν καὶ σύ, ὅσῳ ἂν πλείονες αὐξηθῶσιν οἱ ἀπογιγνόμενοι, τὴν καινὴν ταύτην δίαιταν ἐν ὑποψία ποιείσθαι ἐπαρθείης, καὶν εἰ ὡς διὰ πιθανωτάτων βοηθοίῃ τῷ προστάγματι;

Ἀлк. ἀλλ' οὗτός γε ὁ λόγος χαριεντισμὸς ὢν οὐδὲν ἄλλο ἢ παράγει τοῦ προκειμένου.

Κρίτ. καίτοι ἐμέ γε ὑπομιμνήσκει Λαμπροκλέους τῶν ἐταίρων τινός· φησὶ γὰρ τούτῳ μόνῳ ἰσχυρίζεσθαι θεοὺς εἶναι, ὅτι, ὅσῳ ἂν μειζόνως οἱ μὴ εἶναι ἀρνούμενοι ἐπιδιδῶσι, τόσῳ ἐπιδίδωσι καὶ ἁμαρτήματα παντοῖα καὶ καὶν' ἅττα εἶδη πονηριῶν. ἀρκεῖν ἄρα τοῦτ' αὐτὸ σκοπομένῳ ἀπ' αὐτοῦ τοῦ πράγματος οὕτω ποιεῖν, καίπερ πολλῶν καὶ λόγου ἀξίων ἀντιλεγόντων, προπαρασκευάζειν τὰς τῶν παίδων ψυχὰς ὡς πρωϊαίτατα ὥστε δέξασθαι ὥσπερ βαφὴν τὴν περὶ τὰ θεία νόμισιν. ἃ δ' οὖν σοφίζονται οἱ νῦν κομψοὶ ἀντὶ τῆς τοιαύτης νομίσεως τὰ νέα σπουδάζοντες ὅπως εἰσάξουσιν, ταῦτα, οὐδενὸς ἐφ' ἡμῶν ὄντος ἐμποδίου, ἤδη οἷα εἰκὸς ἐγκατέλιπεν ἐν ταῖς τε διανοίαις καὶ τοῖς ἡθεσι τοῖς τῶν ἀνθρώπων.

We are not to forget that a play is, or ought to be, a very short composition : that if one passion or disposition is to be wrought with tolerable success, I believe it is as much as can in any reason be expected. If there be scenes of distress, and scenes of humour, they must either be in a double or single plot. If there be a double plot, there are in fact two. If they be in chequered scenes of serious and comic, you are obliged continually to break both the thread of the story and the continuity of the passion : if in the same scene, it is needless to observe how absurd the mixture must be and how little adapted to answer the genuine end of any passion. It is odd to observe the progress of bad taste : for this mixed passion being universally proscribed in the regions of tragedy, it has taken refuge and shelter in comedy, where it seems firmly established ; though no reason can be assigned why we may not laugh in the one as well as weep in the other. The true reason of this mixture is to be sought for in the manners which are prevalent amongst a people. It has become very fashionable to affect delicacy, tenderness of heart, and fine feeling, and to shun all imputation of rusticity. Much mirth is very foreign to this character : they have introduced therefore a sort of neutral writing.

BURKE.

Δεῖ δὲ μὴδ' ἐκεῖνο λεληθέναι ὅτι ἐν βραχεὶ δὴ κεῖται τό γε ἀληθῶς δρᾶμα· ὥστε δοκεῖν μοι ἀγαπητὸν ἂν εἶναι, εἰ ἔν τι πάθος ἢ διάθεσιν μετρίως τις ἀπεργάζοιτο. εἰ δὲ ἐπὶ τῆς σκηνῆς τά τε σπουδαῖα καὶ τὰ γέλοια μέλλοι τις μιμήσεσθαι, ἦτοι ἀπλοῦς ἢ διπλοῦς ἂν εἴη ὁ μῦθος. εἰ δὲ ἄρα διπλοῦς δῆλον ὅτι διττῷ ἔστων. εἰ μὲν οὖν τὰ ἐπὶ τῆς σκηνῆς τὰ μὲν γέλοια τὰ δὲ σπουδαῖα ἐναλλάξ πῶς εἰσέρχεται, τό τε συνεχὲς τοῦ μύθου καὶ τὸ ἐφεξῆς τοῦ πάθους δέοι ἂν διαλύειν. εἰ δὲ ἅμα φαίνεται, αὐτὸ δηλοῖ ὥς ἄτοπον τὸ τῆς συγκράσεως καὶ ὥς ἀνεπιτήδειον εἰς τοῦτο ὅποι δεῖ τελευτῆσαι τό γε γνήσιον πάθος. χαρίεν δὲ σκέψασθαι ἐφ' ὅσον προκεχώρηκεν ἡ ἀπειροκαλία· τὸ γὰρ μικτὸν πάθος πανταχόθεν ἐκπεσὸν τῆς τραγωδίας καταπέφηνεν ἐν τῇ κωμῳδίᾳ, ἐν ᾗ δοκεῖ τελέως καθιδρῦσθαι, καίπερ ἀδύνατον ὄν διορίσασθαι διότι ἐν τῇ μὲν γελᾶν ἐν δὲ τῇ δακρύνειν οὐκ ἔξεστιν. αἴτιον δὲ τῆς συγκράσεως τὸ αἰεὶ ἐπιχώριον ἦθος· νενόμισται γὰρ μεταποιεῖσθαι μὲν τοῦ τε χρηστοθήτους καὶ τοῦ φιλανθρώπου καὶ τῆς εὐγνωμοσύνης, τῆς δ' ἀγροικίας μὴδ' αἰτίαν ἔχειν ἀποφεύγειν· τῆς δὲ ἔξεως ταύτης πάνυ ἀλλότριον τὸ γέλοιον πολὺ ὄν· διὸ καὶ λέξιν τινὰ οὐδ' εἰς ἕτερον ῥέπουσαν κατέδειξαν.

Now if we are really under any obligations of duty at all to magistrates, honour and respect in our behaviour towards them must doubtless be their due. And they who refuse to pay them this small and easy regard, who 'despise dominion and speak evil of dignities,' should seriously ask themselves, what restrains them from any other instance whatever of undutifulness. And if it be principle, why not from this? Indeed free government supposes, that the conduct of affairs may be inquired into and spoken of with freedom. Yet surely this should be done with decency for the sake of liberty itself; for its honour and security. But be it done as it will, it is a very different thing from libelling and endeavouring to vilify the persons of such as are in authority. It will be hard to find an instance in which a serious man could calmly satisfy himself in doing this. It is in no case necessary, and in every case of very pernicious tendency. But the immorality of it increases in proportion to the integrity and superior rank of the persons thus treated. It is therefore in the highest degree immoral when it extends to the supreme authority of a prince from whom our liberties are in no imaginable danger, whatever they may be from ourselves; and whose mild and strictly legal government could not but make any virtuous people happy.

BUTLER.

Εἰ δὲ ὡς ἀληθῶς κατὰ τὸ δέον τι ὀφείλομεν τοῖς ἄρχουσι καὶ ὅτιοις ἦ, ἔν γέ τι δῆπον ὀφείλομεν προσομιλοῦντες αὐτοῖς, λέγω δὲ οἶον τιμὴν καὶ θεραπείαν ἀπονέμειν. ὅσοι δὲ ταῦτα φαῦλα καὶ εὐτελεῖ ὄντα ἀποστεροῦντες τῶν μὲν κυρίων καταφρονοῦσι περὶ δὲ τῶν ἐν ἀξιώματι βλασφημοῦσι, δέοι ἂν ἀκριβῶς ἐκεῖνό γε ἐξετάσαι ἄλλην τινὰ ὁποιοιοῦν ἀθεραπευσίαν ὅ τι ἐστὶ τὸ κωλύον· εἰ γὰρ προαίρεσις, τί οὐ καὶ ταύτην; οὐ μὴν ἀλλὰ τῆς τῶν ἐλευθέρων ἀρχῆς ὑπαρχούσης εἰκὸς καὶ ἐλευθέρως ἐξετάζοντας ἐλέγχειν τὰ τῶν πολιτευομένων. καίτοι εἴπερ μέλλει κατὰ τὴν ἀξίαν συμμένειν ἢ ἐλευθερία, ὑπὲρ αὐτῆς γε ταύτης δέοι ἂν τοῦτο πρεπόντως ποιεῖν. ἕτερον δ' οὖν τοῦτο καὶ τὸ εἰς τοὺς ἐν τέλει βλασφημεῖν ὡς καταμεμψομένους τὴν ἐξουσίαν· σχολῇ γὰρ ἂν εἰς ὅστισοῦν ὅς καὶ σπουδῇ λογίζεται τοῦτό γε ποιῶν ἀγαπῶν. πότε γὰρ ἀναγκαῖον; πότε δὲ οὐ βλαβερώτατον; ἀλλὰ μὴν ὅσῳ ἀμείνονες καὶ εὐγενέστεροι οἱ βλασφημούμενοι τοσούτῳ καὶ πονηρότερον τὸ ἔθος. συμβαίνει ἄρα ὑπερβάλλειν τῇ πονηρίᾳ, εἴ τις τῆς ἐξουσίας τῆς κυριωτάτης ἐπιλαμβάνεται, ὅταν τὴν ἐλευθερίαν ὑφ' ἡμῶν μὲν ἐνδέχεται τι παθεῖν, ὑπὸ δὲ τοῦ βασιλέως μὴδ' ὅτιοις ἐπίδοξος ἦ· ἐπεὶ ὁ μετρίως καὶ κατὰ νόμους ἄρχων τίνας οὐ κατ' ἀρετὴν ἐνεργοῦντας εὐδαίμονας ἂν παρέχοι;

These men are ready, I know, to tell us that the influence they plead for is necessary to strengthen the hands of those who govern ; that corruption serves to oil the wheels of government, and to render the administration more smooth and easy ; and that it can never be of dangerous consequence under the present father of our country. Absurd and wicked triflers—according to them our excellent constitution (as one of your correspondents has observed exceedingly well) is no better than a jumble of incompatible powers, which would separate and fall to pieces of themselves, unless restrained and upheld by such honourable means as bribery and corruption.

Οἱ δὲ τοιοῦτοι δῆλον ὅτι ῥαδίως θρυλοῦσιν ὡς ἄρα ἀνάγκη ὑπάρχειν τὴν ἐξουσίαν ταύτην ὑπὲρ ἧς ἀμφισβητοῦσιν, εἴπερ μέλλει ἰσχυρὰ εἶναι τὰ τῶν πολιτευομένων. ἡ γὰρ δωροδοκία, καθάπερ τὸ ἔλαιον τοῖς τροχοῖς, οὕτω καὶ αὕτη συμφέρει τῇ πολιτείᾳ ὥστε εὐτροχώτερον καὶ λειότερον προιέναι· ἐπικίνδυνος δὲ οὐδέποτε μὴ γένηται ἐπὶ τούτου γε ὥσπερ πατρὸς ἐν παισὶ βασιλεύοντος. ἄτοπὰ γε, οἶμαι, καὶ πονηρὰ παραληροῦντες· κατὰ γὰρ δὴ τούτους ἡμῶν ἡ πολυθρύλητος πολιτεία—καθάπερ καὶ πάνυ εὖ εἴρηκέ τις τῶν σοι διαλεγομένων—οὐδὲν ἄλλο ἢ εἶναι ἢ ἀσυνθέτων ὄχλος τις δυνάμεων, αὐτῶν καθ' αὐτὰς διαλυθεισῶν ἢ καὶ συμπεσουσῶν εἰ μὴ δέοι καὶ συνέχοι τὸ δωροδοκεῖν καὶ διαφθείρειν καὶ τὰ τοιαῦτα δὴ καλὰ ἐπιτηδεύματα.

INTO LATIN VERSE

A hundred torches, flashing bright,
Dispell'd at once the gloomy night
 That lour'd along the walls,
And show'd the King's astonish'd sight
 The inmates of the halls.
Nor wizard stern, nor goblin grim,
Nor giant huge of form and limb,
 Nor heathen knight was there ;
But the cressets, which odours flung aloft,
Show'd by their yellow light and soft
 A band of damsels fair.
Onward they came like summer wave
 That dances to the shore ;
A hundred voices welcome gave,
 And welcome o'er and o'er !
A hundred lovely hands assail
The bucklers of the monarch's mail,
And busy labour'd to unhasp
Rivet of steel and iron clasp.
One wrapt him in a mantle fair,
And one flung odours on his hair ;
His short curl'd ringlets one smooth'd down,
One wreath'd them with a myrtle crown.
A bride upon her wedding-day
Was tended ne'er by troop so gay.

SCOTT.

Centum coruscae lampades ignibus caliginosam parietibus fugant repente noctem ; iam stupenti atria rex oculo incolentes

cernit ; sed illic non lemures nigri, non se minaci Porphyryon statu,
 non fronte gens torva magorum,
 opposuit : vaga luce flava

non una odores taeda iacit supra et pandit puellarum attonito manum ;
 fit obvia, haud aestiva saltans
 ipsa aliter lavit unda litus.

salvere regem plurima vox iubet,
linguae salutantum ingeminant sonos ;
 centena loricae catenas
 ecce petit studiosa virgo,

si forte solvat dextera fibulas,
hamos refigens sedula ferreos ;
 haec veste circumdat decora,
 malobathro rigat illa crines,

tortos capillos ordinat haec, caput vult illa sertis cingere myrteis :
 tam festa vix umquam chorea
 visa novam est celebrare nuptam.

If thou beest he—but Oh how fallen! how changed
From him!—who, in the happy realms of light,
Clothed with transcendent brightness didst outshine
Myriads though bright—if he whom mutual league,
United thoughts and counsels, equal hope
And hazard in the glorious enterprise,
Joined with me once, now misery hath joined
In equal ruin; into what pit thou seest
From what highth fallen; so much the stronger proved
He with his thunder: and till then who knew
The force of those dire arms? Yet not for those,
Nor what the potent Victor in his rage
Can else inflict, do I repent, or change,
Though changed in outward lustre, that fixed mind,
And high disdain from sense of injured merit,
That with the Mightiest raised me to contend,
And to the fierce contention brought along
Innumerable force of Spirits armed,
That durst dislike his reign, and, me preferring,
His utmost power with adverse power opposed
In dubious battle on the plains of Heaven,
And shook his throne.

Fallor an ille idem es? sed quantum heu! lapsus ab illo, mutatus quantum, dias per luminis oras
 qui quondam eximio indutus fulgore phalanges unus caelicolum innumeras anteire solebas!
 es, quem iuncta datae nuper mihi foedera dextrae spesque eadem eventus et consociata voluntas et par consilium magnique pericula coepti iunxerunt comitem? nunc nos commiscuit uno strages exitio—quanta delapsus ab arce in quantum sentis barathrum! tanto illius ira fortior evasit rubraeque tonitrua dextrae:
 experti quid dira queant iam novimus arma.
 non tamen haec propter, nec si quid cogitat ultra victrix ira manus, quicquam me paenitet ausi, nec frontis quamquam externos mutatus honores cetera item muto. superest mihi fastus et idem ille animus, spretae superest iniuria laudis, unde ego commotus bellum miscere Tonanti
 ausus eram, mecumque una in certamina misi milia caelicolum, qui tristia regna perosi posthabuere meis, ausique opponere summis viribus adversas vires soliumque movebant et dubio campos foedabant Marte beatos.

In yonder grave a Druid lies,
Where slowly winds the stealing wave;
The year's best sweets shall duteous rise
To deck its poet's sylvan grave.

In yon deep bed of whisp'ring reeds
His airy harp shall now be laid,
That he, whose heart in sorrow bleeds,
May love through life the soothing shade.

Then maids and youths shall linger here,
And, while its sounds at distance swell,
Shall sadly seem in Pity's ear
To hear the woodland pilgrim's knell.

Remembrance oft shall haunt the shore
When Thames in summer wreaths is drest,
And oft suspend the dashing oar
To bid his gentle spirit rest.

And oft as Ease and Health retire
To breezy lawn or forest deep,
The friend shall view yon whitening spire,
And 'mid the varied landscape weep.

But thou, who own'st that earthy bed,
Ah! what will every dirge avail?
Or tears which Love and Pity shed,
That mourn beneath the gliding sail?

Yet lives there one, whose heedless eye
Shall scorn thy pale shrine glimm'ring near?
With him, sweet bard, may Fancy die,
And Joy desert the blooming year.

Caespitem sub molli vatis sacra membra quiescunt,

 Aeoliae iaceant fila reposta lyrae;

Adam, well may we labour still to dress
This garden, still to tend plant, herb, and flower,
Our pleasant task enjoined ; but, till more hands
Aid us, the work under our labour grows,
Luxurious by restraint : what we by day
Lop overgrown, or prune, or prop, or bind,
One night or two with wanton growth derides,
Tending to wild. Thou, therefore, now advise,
Or hear what to my mind first thoughts present.
Let us divide our labours—thou where choice
Leads thee, or where most needs, whether to wind
The woodbine round this arbour, or direct
The clasping ivy where to climb ; while I
In yonder spring of roses intermixed
With myrtle find what to redress till noon.
For, while so near each other thus all day
Our task we choose, what wonder if so near Looks intervene and smiles, or objects new Casual discourse draw on, which intermits
Our day's work, brought to little, though begun
Early, and the hour of supper comes unearned !

Dulce quidem hoc opus est, hos quod curare iubemur
 semper agros, semper frutices et florea rura excoluisse manu : sed nec tamen ulla labori additur interea socium manus, omnia late vimine fulcimus posito, nox altera totum ridet opus nimioque docet silvescere ramo.

 suscipias moneo, qua te tua forte voluntas quave operis ducat ratio, seu bracchia malis nectere tu cytisi mollesque intexere frondes, sive hederæ monstrare viam lapsusque sequaces.
 at nos interea, mista qua plurima myrto insurgit rosa, quae dextrae medicamina poscant pergimus in medios usque exornare calores ;
 namque operi, totas iuxta dum tendimus horas,
 quid mirum ? iocus obstat et arridentia furtim
 lumina, et insoliti si quid miramur inanem sermonem inducit : sic intermittitur omnem cura diem, primaque labor quem accepimus hora occidit omnis et immeritæ stant vespere cenæ.

Joy the halls of Troy surrounded,
Ere the lofty city fell ;
Golden hymns of gladness sounded
From the harp's exulting swell.
All the warriors' toils are over,
Arms no more the heroes bear ;
For Pelides, royal lover,
Weds with Priam's daughter fair.

Laurel wreaths their temples pressing,
Many a festive train with joy
Throng, to supplicate a blessing
From the deities of Troy.
Sounds of mirth and gladness only
Through the streets tumultuous flow,
Save where, in its sorrow lonely,
One sole bosom beats with woe.

Joyless, joys around unheeding,
Desolate, alone to rove,
Silently, Cassandra speeding
Sought Apollo's laurel grove.
To the wood's remote recesses
The prophetic maiden fled,
And, with wildly-flowing tresses,
Thus with angry grief she said.

Ask not the cause why sullen Spring
 So long delays her flowers to bear ;
Why warbling birds forget to sing,
 And winter storms invert the year :
Chloris is gone, and Fate provides
To make it Spring where she resides.

Chloris is gone, the cruel fair !
 She cast not back a pitying eye,
But left her lover in despair,
 To sigh, to languish, and to die.
Ah, how can those fair eyes endure
To give the wounds they will not cure ?

Great God of Love, why hast thou made
 A face that can all hearts command,
That all religions can invade,
 And change the laws of every land ?
Where thou had'st placed such power before,
Thou should'st have made her mercy more.

When Chloris to the temple comes,
 Adoring crowds before her fall ;
She can restore the dead from tombs,
 And every life but mine recall.
I only am by Love designed
To be the victim for mankind.

DRYDEN.

Desine mirari cur dudum veris acerbi
durities proprias ferre recuset opes.
cur volucres cessent oblitae carminis, aut cur

nempe abiit Chloris, fatisque iubentibus unum

hinc abiit neque me miseranti Chloris oculo

Come, sweet harp, resounding Teian strains of yore,
With soft airs abounding,
Round the Lesbian shore :
Doric shell, awake thy soft themes no more.

Talk no more of maiden,
Fair with beauty's wiles,
Youth with blessings laden,
Whom new life beguiles—
Smiling as it flies, flying as it smiles.

Wisdom which ne'er wrongeth,
Born of God above,
Toils in birth and longeth
Your sweet chords to prove,
And hath bid me flee woes of earthly love.

What is strength or glory ?
Beauty, gold, or fame ?
What renown in story,
Or a kingly name,
To the thoughts of God—cares which bring no blame ?

One o'er steeds is bending,
One his bow hath strung,
One his gold is tending,
One by youth is sung,
For bright looks and locks o'er his shoulder hung.

Mine be the low portal,
Paths in silence trod,
Knowing not things mortal,
Knowing things of God,
Whilst still at my side Wisdom holds her rod.

In Ida vale (who knowes not Ida vale ?)
When harmlesse Troy yet felt not Græcian spite,
An hundred shepheards wonn'd, and in the dale,
While their faire flockes the three-leaved pastures bite,
The shepheards boyes with hundred sportings light
Gave winges unto the times too speedy hast :
Ah, foolish lads ! that strove with lavish wast
So fast to spend the time that spends your time as fast.

Emong the rest, that all the rest excel'd,
A dainty boy there wonn'd, whose harmlesse yeares
Now in their freshest budding gently sweld ;
His nimph-like face nere felt the nimble sheeres,
Youth's downy blossome through his cheeke appeares ;
His lovely limbes (but love he quite discarded)
Were made for play (but he no play regarded)
And fit love to reward and with love be rewarded.

His joy was not in musique's sweet delight,
(Though well his hand had learnt that cunning arte,)
Or dainty songs to daintier eares indite,
But through the plaines to chace the nimble hart
With well-tun'd hounds ; or with his certaine dart
The tusked boare or savage beare to wound ;
Meantime his heart with monsters doth abound.
Ah, foole ! to seeke so farre what neerer might be found.

His name (well knowne unto those woody shades,
Where unrewarded lovers oft complaine them,)
Anchises was : Anchises oft the glades
And mountains heard, Anchises had disdained them :
Not all their love one gentle looke had gain'd them.
That rocky hills, with ecchoing noyse consenting,
Anchises plain'd ; but he no whit relenting,
Harder than rocky hills, laught at their vaine lamenting.

Valle sub Idaea—quisnam est qui nesciat Idam?—
ante Pelasgiacos quam sensit Troia furores, pastores posuere casas; saltusque per imos,
gramina dum tondent pecudes herbamque trilicem,
sescentos agitat pubes pastoria ludos,
pernicemque diem levioribus instruit alis:
o nimium incautos! quis sit male prodiga cura
perdere vestram eadem perdentia tempora curam.
emicat aequales inter, cui conscia nondum
corda doli, primique tumet iam flosculus aevi integer, ambiguo vultu propiorque puellae, intonsasque genas tenera lanugine vestit.

apta quidem ludo sed et invitantia amorem;
ast amor, ast illum ludus pellexit inertem.
olli non mira dulcedine corda Thalia

ora canum iuvat et dammas agitare fugaces, seu certis aprum iaculis seu figere cervos.
ast intus puerum interea quam plurima vexant monstra! quid imprudens prope quae sunt obvia quaeris

multus amans ubi despectum sibi plorat amorem, Anchises cluet; Anchisen persaepe recessus, immemorem Anchisen (cuius fastidia nondum

He ceas'd ; for many an eager hand
Had urg'd the barges from the strand.
Their number was a score and ten,
They bore thrice threescore chosen men.
With such small force did Bruce at last
The die for death or empire cast !

Now on the darkening main afloat,
Ready and mann'd rocks every boat ;
Beneath their oars the ocean's might
Was dash'd to sparks of glimmering light.
Faint and more faint, as off they bore,
Their armour glanc'd against the shore,
And, mingled with the dashing tide,
Their murmuring voices distant died.—
'God speed them !' said the priest, as dark
On distant billows glides each bark ;
'O Heaven ! when swords for freedom shine,
And monarch's right, the cause is thine !
Edge doubly every patriot blow !
Beat down the banners of the foe !
And be it to the nations known,
That victory is from God alone !'
As up the hill his path he drew,
He turn'd his blessings to renew,
Oft turn'd, till on the darken'd coast
All traces of their course were lost ;
Then slowly bent to Brodick tower,
To shelter for the evening hour.

Desierat dux plura loqui ; nam solverat ora

 hostibus ut domitis irrita signa cadant.
 caelicolis debetur enim victoria solis,

 saepe retro versus vestigia donec euntum
 iam caliganti litore tota latent.
 inde senex lento turris petit ardua gressu ;
 hoc monet hospitio vesperis hora frui.

And fast beside there trickled softly downe
A gentle streame, whose murmuring wave did play
Emongst the pumy stones, and made a sowne,
To lull him soft asleepe that by it lay :
The wearie Traveiler, wandring that way,
Therein did often quench his thristy heat,
And then by it his wearie limbes display,
Whiles creeping slomber made him to forget
His former payne, and wypt away his toilsom sweat.

And on the other syde a pleasaunt grove
Was shott up high, full of the stately tree
That dedicated is t' Olympick Jove,
And to his sonne Alcides, whenas hee
In Nemus gayned goodly victoree :
Therein the mery birdes of every sorte
Chaunted alowd their chearefull harmonie,
And made emongst themselves a sweete consort,
And quickned the dull spright with musicall comfort.

Come, peace of mind, delightful guest !

Return and make thy downy nest

Once more in this sad heart.

Nor riches I nor power pursue,

Nor hold forbidden joys in view ;

We therefore need not part.

Where wilt thou dwell if not with me,

From avarice and ambition free,

And pleasure's fatal wiles ?

For whom alas ! dost thou prepare

The sweets that I was wont to share,

The banquet of thy smiles ?

The great, the gay, shall they partake

The Heaven that thou alone canst make ?

And wilt thou quit the stream

That murmurs through the dewy mead,

The grove and the sequestered shed,

To be a guest with them ?

For thee I panted, thee I prized,

For thee I gladly sacrificed

Whate'er I loved before ;

And shall I see thee start away,

And, helpless, hopeless, hear thee say—

'Farewell ! we meet no more' ?

As bees

In spring-time, when the Sun with Taurus rides,
Pour forth their populous youth about the hive
In clusters; they among fresh dews and flowers
Fly to and fro, or on the smoothèd plank,
The suburb of their straw-built citadel,
New rubbed with balm, expatiate, and confer
Their state-affairs: so thick the aery crowd
Swarmed and were straitened; till, the signal given,
Behold a wonder! They but now who seemed
In bigness to surpass Earth's giant sons,
Now less than smallest dwarfs, in narrow room
Throng numberless—like that pygmean race
Beyond the Indian mount; or faery elves,
Whose midnight revels, by a forest-side
Or fountain, some belated peasant sees,
Or dreams he sees, while overhead the Moon
Sits arbitress, and nearer to the Earth
Wheels her pale course; they, on their mirth and dance
Intent, with jocund music charm his ear;
At once with joy and fear his heart rebounds.

 arcis stramineae limen spatiantur, et urbis concilio res expendunt : tanta aere turba conglomerata volat, densis exercitus alis.
 tum signo certo monstrum mirum adspice ! visi

Emblem of England's ancient faith,
Full proudly may thy branches wave,
Where loyalty lies low in death,
And valour fills a timeless grave.
And thou, brave tenant of the tomb,
Repine not if our clime deny,
Above thine honour'd sod to bloom,
The flowrets of a milder sky.
These owe their birth to genial May;
Beneath a fiercer sun they pine,
Before the winter storm decay—
And can their worth be type of thine?
No! for, 'mid storms of Fate opposing,
Still higher swell'd thy dauntless heart,
And, while Despair the scene was closing,
Commenc'd thy brief but brilliant part.
'Twas then thou sought'st, on Albyn's hill,
(When England's sons the strife resign'd,)
A rugged race, resisting still,
And unsubdu'd though unrefin'd.
Thy death's hour heard no kindred wail,
No holy knell thy requiem rung;
Thy mourners were the plaided Gael,
Thy dirge the clamorous pibroch sung.

That may plucke the virgin roses

From their never-touchèd thorne ?

You labour may

To lead astray

The heart that constant shall remaine :

And I the while

Will sit and smile

To see you spend your time in vaine.

WITHER.

Nec tibi nec tali potero succumbere flammae :
 nec nivei candor pectoris iste capit :
 non mihi, qui iactant oculi nimis acriter orbes,
 non adimunt somnos aemula labra rosis.
 i nunc, et citius si quem potes urere amantem,
 pande cupidineas pande, puella, faces.
 quae passim risus, passim suspiria vendit,
 crede mihi, vanis me petit insidiis.
 scilicet alterius iuravi in verba puellae ;
 sit vultus nimium lubricus iste procul.
 este procul vos o ! pictae tectoria formae ;
 mens est fucatis inviolata dolis.
 et nitidam vestem et falsae periuria linguae
 odimus ; est aliis inde petendus amor.
 hanc ego depereo, quae denegat oscula recto lumine ; tuque operam perdis inepta tuam.
 an placeant puero marcentia sarta coronae
 unde caput quodvis se redimire queat, virgineas ipsi cui sit data copia semper
 ex illibato carpere sente rosas ?
 tu tamen in peius deflectere corda laboras,
 at superest constans intemerata fides ;
 integer interea subridens fronte sedebo,
 tuque diem, illusa paelicis arte, teres.

And wilt thou weep when I am low?

Sweet lady! speak those words again;
Yet, if they grieve thee, say not so—
I would not give that bosom pain.

My heart is sad, my hopes are gone,
My blood runs coldly through my breast;
And when I perish, thou alone
Wilt sigh above my place of rest.

And yet, methinks, a gleam of peace
Doth through my cloud of anguish shine:
And for a while my sorrows cease,
To know thy heart hath felt for mine.

Oh lady! blessed be that tear—
It falls for one who cannot weep;
Such precious drops are doubly dear
To those whose eyes no tear may steep.

Sweet lady! once my heart was warm
With every feeling soft as thine;
But beauty's self hath ceased to charm
A wretch created to repine.

Ergo favillam, Lydia, fletibus sparges? amatos dic iterum sonos;
 sin forte te vexant, recuso:
 molle nefas lacerare pectus.

mens aegra marcet, spes iacet irrita, venisque sanguis labitur horridus;
 tu sola defuncti querelis flebilibus decorabis urnam.

at pacis almae nescio quod iubar inter doloris nubila praenitet;
 et cura discedit parumper,
 te, mea lux, miserante nostri.

nam sancta cordi gutta cadit meo,
 cui flere tandem lumina nesciunt;
 sortem quod eluxi malignam,
 bis pretio valet iste fletus.

qui corde fervet, Lydia, sub tuo me fovit olim mollior impetus;
 plorare sed nato levamen ipsa negat Cytherea luctus.

The king was on his throne,
The satraps throng'd the hall :
A thousand bright lamps shone
O'er that high festival.
A thousand cups of gold,
In Judah deem'd divine—
Jehovah's vessels hold
The godless heathen's wine !
In that same hour and hall,
The fingers of a hand
Came forth against the wall,
And wrote as if on sand :
The fingers of a man,
A solitary hand
Along the letters ran,
And traced them like a wand.
The monarch saw, and shook,
And bade no more rejoice :
All bloodless wax'd his look,
And tremulous his voice.
'Let the men of lore appear,
The wisest of the earth,
And expound the words of fear
Which mar our royal mirth.'
Chaldea's seers are good,
But here they have no skill ;
And the unknown letters stood,
Untold and awful still.
And Babel's men of age
Are wise and deep in lore ;
But now they were not sage,
They saw—but knew no more.
A captive in the land,
A stranger and a youth,
He heard the king's command,
He saw that writing's truth.
The lamps around were bright,
The prophecy in view ;
He read it on that night,—
The morrow proved it true.
'Belshazzar's grave is made,
His kingdom pass'd away,
He, in the balance weigh'd,
Is light and worthless clay ;
The shroud his robe of state,
His canopy the stone ;
The Mede is at his gate !
The Persian on his throne !'

Ipse sedet solio satrapis celebrantibus aulam :
mille die festo collucent lampades, auro pocula mille nitent, Solymis sacrata Iehovae credita ; nunc vino rex imbuat impius illas barbarico pateras. eadem tamen adspicit hora, aula eadem, dextrae digitos in pariete celso
prodire in strata velut inscribentis harena, humanos dextrae digitos. percurrere visa est
una notas manus, ut magicæ vestigia virgae.
'laetitiae date finem,' hoc territus omine mandat ;
vultumque exsanguis tremula sic voce profatur :
'quicquid habet docti tellus, quem sancta magorum
educat ars, eia haec nobis edissere verba, plena metu verba et regis turbantia luxus.'
educat ars Chaldaea magos, sed lingua perita
hic silet ; haec restant non nota, interprete nullo, signa tremenda manus. se gens Babylonia doctis
iactat et ipsa viris, senibus sapientibus : ipsis deest tamen hic doctrina ; ipsi obticuere videntes.
captus adest puer ; is iussa audit regis et iras
exsul veridicas scriptorum intellegit unus.
lampades effulgent mille undique ; praescia verba
clara patent oculis. pueri nox illa legentis, crastina lux veram probat esse interpretis artem :
'iam tibi fit tumulus—iam tu diademate patrum,
Bele, cares. iam tu, suspensus lancibus aequis,
es leve vile lutum. quae vestit purpura, busto coicitur ; praebet saxum conopea. Medus ad portas fremit ; en solio sedet advena Cyrus !'

And straight a stony shower
Of monstrous hail does downwards pour,
Such as ne'er winter yet brought forth,
From all her stormy magazines of the north.
It all the beasts and men abroad did slay,
O'er the defaced corpse, like monuments, lay;
The houses and strong-body'd trees it broke,
Nor asked aid from the thunder's stroke;
The thunder but for terror through it flew,
The hail alone the work could do.
The dismal lightnings all around,
Some flying through the air, some running on the ground,
Some swimming o'er the water's face,
Filled with bright horror every place;
One would have thought, their dreadful day to have seen,
The very hail, and rain itself, had kindled been.

nam sola perfecisse munus

igniiferum iaciunt pavorem.

quod si videres terribilem diem,
posses et ipsam credere grandinem,
posses et exarsisse, mirum,
igne novo pluvias et imbres.

Beside the ungathered rice he lay,
His sickle in his hand ;
His breast was bare, his matted hair
Was buried in the sand.
Again, in the mist and shadow of sleep,
He saw his native land.

Wide through the landscape of his dreams
The lordly Niger flowed ;
Beneath the palm-trees on the plain
Once more a king he strode ;
And heard the tinkling caravans
Descend the mountain-road.

He saw once more his dark-eyed queen
Among her children stand ;
They clasped his neck, they kissed his cheeks,
They held him by the hand :
A tear burst from the sleeper's lids,
And fell upon the sand.

And then at furious speed he rode
Along the Niger's bank ;
His bridle-reins were golden chains,
And, with a martial clank,
At each leap he could feel his scabbard of steel
Smiting his stallion's flank.

LONGFELLOW.

Sic temere intonsam propter recubabat oryzam :
 vix falcem servi dextra tenebat iners.
 pectus erat nudus latum, incomptusque capillus subter harenosam semisepultus humum.
 ecce inter tenebras caligantemque soporem
 visus erat patriam rursus adire domum.
 visus et in somnis inter sua rura vaganti
 maximus ingentes volvere Nigris aquas ;
 supra palmiferos ostendit campus honores ;
 per proprias iterum rex spatiatur opes ;
 plaustra iterum crepitare novis tinnitibus audit,
 ut de clivoso tramite montis eunt.
 coniugis ille nigros oculos perlustrat amatae,
 natorum in medio stantis, ut ante, choro.
 brachia circumdant collo, dant oscula labris,

 tum subito in guttas solvunt se lumina obortas ;
 sopiti lacrima subter harena madet.
 inque vicem ad ripas insanis cursibus amnis

 aurea cornipedem constringunt frena minacem, ungula pulsat humum quadrupedante sono.
 utque gradus glomerat, velut ipso in Marte, superbos,
 ilia vaginae pulsibus icta gemunt.

As after Numa's peaceful reign
The martial Ancus did the sceptre wield,
Furbished the rusty sword again,
Resumed the long-forgotten shield,
And led the Latins to the dusty field :
So James the drowsy genius wakes
Of Britain, long entranced in charms,
Restiff, and slumbering on its arms :
'Tis roused, and with a new-strung nerve the spear already shakes.

No neighing of the warrior steeds,
No drum or louder trumpet needs
T' inspire the coward, warm the cold ;
His voice, his sole appearance, makes them bold.
Gaul and Batavia dread th' impending blow ;
Too well the vigour of that arm they know ;
They lick the dust, and crouch beneath their fatal foe.
Long may they fear this awful prince,
And not provoke his lingering sword ;
Peace is their only sure defence,
Their best security his word.
In all the changes of his doubtful state,
His truth, like Heaven's, was kept inviolate ;
For him to promise is to make it fate.
His valour can triumph o'er land and main :
With broken oaths his fame he will not stain,
With conquest basely bought, and with inglorious gain.

DRYDEN.

Quieta sicut tempora post Numae

Look once more, ere we leave this specular mount,
Westward, much nearer by south-west ; behold
Where on the Ægean shore a city stands,
Built nobly, pure the air, and light the soil—
Athens, the eye of Greece, mother of arts
And eloquence, native to famous wits
Or hospitable, in her sweet recess,
City or suburban, studious walks and shades.
See there the olive-grove of Academe,
Plato's retirement, where the Attic bird
Trills her thick-warbled notes the summer long ;
There, flowery hill, Hymettus, with the sound
Of bees' industrious murmur, oft invites
To studious musing ; there Ilissus rolls
His whispering stream. Within the walls then view
The schools of ancient sages—his who bred
Great Alexander to subdue the world,
Lyceum there ; and painted Stoa next.
There shalt thou hear and learn the secret power
Of harmony, in tones and numbers hit
By voice or hand, and various-measured verse,
Æolian charms and Dorian lyric odes,
And his who gave them breath, but higher sung,
Blind Melesigenes, thence Homer called,
Whose poem Phœbus challenged for his own.

‘A sister’s faithful love, for you
I’ll ever cherish, knight.

For other love, O do not sue—

Yours I can ne’er requite.

I would be calm when you are near,
And calm when you depart.

I cannot understand this tear,
Altho’ it rends my heart.’

He hears her words ; with grief opprest,
His heart within doth bleed :

He clasps her to his panting breast,
Then springs upon his steed :

He summons forth his vassals all,
In trusty Switzerland.

They take the Cross t’ obey his call,
And seek the Holy Land.

And soon the hero’s mighty deeds
Resound throughout the land,

Into the thickest throngs he leads
To victory his band ;

And at the Toggenburgher’s name
The frightened Moslem start—

But when could glory cure, or fame,
The pangs of love-sick heart ?

From SCHILLER.

'Fida soror fratri foveo quem debet amorem
 hunc tibi semper, eques.
 sat tibi talis amor—ne plura poposceris—istum
 quem petis haud refero.
 fronte ego te placida video prope adesse, videbo linqere te placida.
 cur fundas lacrimam fallit me causa; sed aegrum
 cor mihi dilacerat.'
 audierat voces; quantus dolor opprimit intus saucia corda viri!
 pectus amore micat trepidisque amplexitur ulnis;
 alite vectus equo
 inde vocat cunctos Helvetia fida clientes
 quos habet; illa cohors audit, avens in verba Dei iurare, vocantem, et loca sancta petit.
 nec mora longa: viri per totam ingentia terram
 undique gesta sonant.
 et comitum in spissas fertur duce freta catervas
 vincere certa manus.
 Teutonici ducis ad nomen famamque paventum
 gens Arabum trepidat:
 luctibus at quando pereuntis amore mederi
 gloria lausve valet?

The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armour against fate;
Death lays his icy hand on kings:
Sceptre and crown
Must tumble down,
And in the dust be equal made
With the poor crooked scythe and spade.
Some men with swords may reap the field
And plant fresh laurels where they kill:
But their strong nerves at last must yield;
They tame but one another still:
Early or late
They stoop to fate,
And must give up their murmuring breath
When they, pale captives, creep to death.
The garlands wither on your brow;
Then boast no more your mighty deeds;
Upon Death's purple altar now
See, where the victor-victim bleeds:
All heads must come
To the cold tomb;
Only the actions of the just
Smell sweet, and blossom in their dust.

Ergo quid umbrarum instar inanum

Part on the plain, or in the air sublime,
Upon the wing or in swift race contend,
As at the Olympian games or Pythian fields ;
Part curb their fiery steeds, or shun the goal
With rapid wheels, or fronted brigads form :
As when, to warn proud cities, war appears
Waged in the troubled sky, and armies rush
To battle in the clouds ; before each van
Prick forth the aery knights, and couch their spears,
Till thickest legions close ; with feats of arms
From either end of heaven the welkin burns.
Others, with vast Typhœan rage, more fell,
Rend up both rocks and hills, and ride the air
In whirlwind ; Hell scarce holds the wild uproar :
As when Alcides, from Œchalia crowned
With conquest, felt the envenomed robe, and tore
Through pain up by the roots Thessalian pines,
And Lichas from the top of Œta threw
Into the Euboic sea. Others, more mild,
Retreated in a silent valley, sing
With notes angelical to many a harp
Their own heroic deeds, and hapless fall
By doom of battle, and complain that Fate
Free Virtue should enthrall to Force or Chance.

Shall I tell you whom I love?

Hearken then awhile to me:

And if such a woman move

As I now shall versifie,

Be assured 'tis she or none

That I love and love alone.

Nature did her so much right

As she scorns the help of art,

In as many vertues dight

As ere yet imbraced a hart.

So much good so truely tride,

Some for less were deifide.

Wit she hath without desire

To make known how much she hath;

And her anger flames no higher

Than may fitly sweeten wrath.

Full of pittty as may be,

Though perhaps not so to me.

Such she is; and if you know

Such a one as I have sung;

Be she browne, or faire, or so,

That she be but sometime young;

Be assured 'tis she or none

That I love and love alone.

BROWNE.

Dicamne quae me torreat ignibus?
paulisper audi; carmine feminam fingamus; hac uror, sed una crede mihi, modo vivat, uror, natura quam tot dotibus instruit ut spernat artis munera. quot meam ornant venustates puellam,
 quot numeris cumulata virtus,
spectata veris testibus! ordines ipsos deorum laus minor attigit;
 quae novit at iactare passim
 eximios animi lepores
fastidit; ipsam qui decet, impetu quae fervet irae; mollis amantium votis, sed heu! frustra vocanti dura, nimis mihi dura virgo.
nosti puellam carmine quam meo

How sweet thy modest light to view,
Fair star, to love and lovers dear!
While trembling on the falling dew,
Like beauty shining through a tear;
Or, hanging o'er that mirror-stream,
To mark that image trembling there;
Thou seem'st to smile with softer gleam,
To see thy lovely face so fair.
Though, blazing o'er the arch of night,
The moon thy timid beams outshine
As far as thine each starry light,
Her rays can never vie with thine.
Thine are the soft enchanting hours
When twilight lingers on the plain,
And whispers to the closing flowers
That soon the sun will rise again.
Thine is the breeze that, murmuring bland
As music, wafts the lover's sigh;
That bids the yielding heart expand
In love's delicious ecstasy.
Fair star, though I be doomed to prove
That rapture's tears are mixed with pain,
Ah! still I feel 'tis sweet to love,
But sweeter to be loved again.

LEYDEN.

Stella micans, quam suave iubar spectare modestum,

 sidereos tua lux quantum supereminet ignes,
 luna potest radios exsuperare tuos ;
 plenior illa licet nocturno effulgeat arcu,

Then straight commands that, at the warlike sound
Of trumpets loud and clarions, be upreared
His mighty standard. That proud honour claimed
Azazel as his right, a Cherub tall :
Who forthwith from the glittering staff unfurled
The imperial ensign ; which, full high advanced,
Shone like a meteor streaming to the wind,
With gems and golden lustre rich emblazed,
Seraphic arms and trophies ; all the while
Sonorous metal blowing martial sounds :
At which the universal host up-sent
A shout that tore Hell's concave, and beyond
Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night.
All in a moment through the gloom were seen
Ten thousand banners rise into the air,
With orient colours waving : with them rose
A forest huge of spears ; and thronging helms
Appeared, and serried shields in thick array
Of depth immeasurable. Anon they move
In perfect phalanx to the Dorian mood
Of flutes and soft recorders, such as raised
To highth of noblest temper heroes old
Arming to battle.

Continuo ad sonitum litui sonitumque tubarum

O thou who bad'st thy turtles bear
Swift from his grasp thy golden hair,
And sought'st thy native skies ;
When War, by vultures drawn from far,
To Britain bent his iron car,
And bade the storms arise.

Tired of his rude tyrannic sway,
Our youths shall fix some festive day
His sullen shrines to burn :
But thou who hear'st the turning spheres,
What sounds may charm thy partial ears,
And gain thy blest return ?

O Peace ! thy injured robes upbind,
O, rise, and leave not one behind
Of all thy beamy train ;
The British Lion, Goddess sweet,
Lies stretched on earth to kiss thy feet,
And own thy holier reign.

Let others court thy transient smile ;
But come to grace thy western isle
By warlike Honour led :
And while around her ports rejoice,
While all her sons adore thy choice,
With him for ever wed.

The mountain-ash,
Decked with autumnal berries that outshine
Spring's richest blossoms, yields a goodly show
Among the leafy woods, and ye have seen
By a brookside or solitary tarn
How she her station doth adorn : the pool
Glowes at her feet, and all the gloomy rocks
Are brightened round her. In his native vale
Such, and so glorious, did this youth appear :
A sight that kindled pleasure in all hearts
By his ingenuous beauty, by the gleam
Of his fair eyes, by his capacious brow,
By all the graces with which Nature's hand
Had lavishly arrayed him. As old bards
Tell in their idle songs of wandering gods,
Pan or Apollo, veiled in human form ;
Yet, like the sweet-breathed violet of the shade,
Discovered in their own despite to sense
Of mortals (if such fables without blame
May find chance-mention on this sacred ground),
So, through a simple rustic garb's disguise,
In him revealed a scholar's genius shone ;
And so, not wholly hidden from men's sight,
In him the spirit of a hero walked
Our unpretending valley.

WORDSWORTH.

Qualis ubi autumni bacarum induta racemos

 torvum ardere oculum latamque patescere frontem, prodiga quae Natura manu sua dona profudit.
 carmine ceu vano veteres cecinere deorum

Or will you deem them amply paid in health,
Labour's fair child, that languishes with wealth?
Go, then! and see them rising with the sun,
Through a long course of daily toil to run;
See them beneath the Dog-star's raging heat,
When the knees tremble and the temples beat;
Behold them, leaning on their scythes, look o'er
The labour past, and toils to come explore;
See them alternate suns and showers engage,
And hoard up aches and anguish for their age;
Through fens and marshy moors their steps pursue,
When their warm pores imbibe the evening dew.
There may you see the youth of slender frame
Contend with weakness, weariness, and shame;
Yet, urged along, and proudly loth to yield,
He strives to join his fellows of the field;
Till long-contending nature droops at last,
Declining health rejects his poor repast,
His cheerless spouse the coming danger sees,
And mutual murmurs urge the slow disease.
Yet grant them health, 'tis not for us to tell,
Though the head droops not, that the heart is well.
Or will you praise that homely, healthy fare,
Plenteous and plain, that happy peasants share?
Oh! trifle not with wants you cannot feel,
Nor mock the misery of a stinted meal;
Homely not wholesome, plain not plenteous, such
As you who praise would never deign to touch.

At mala pensari dicis, cum nata laboris
 alma valetudo langueat inter opes.
 adspice nunc una cum Phoebo surgere, ut orbem perpetuum, nacti pensa diurna, trahant ;
 dum coquit arentes insana Canicula messes,
 quo saliant motu tempora, genua tremant.
 ut baculo innixi reputent anteacta laborum,
 et quae venturo sint subeunda die.
 adspice ut alternos soles patiantur et imbres,
 in senium ut morbos tristitiamque parent.
 stagnaque limosae per vespertina paludis
 ut gelidos rores fervida vena bibat.
 hic pueri videas macie luctantia membra,
 qui gemit invitus quem gemuisse pudet.
 interea miserum mens cedere nescia torquet,
 nititur et sociis par tamen esse suis.
 dum tandem natura malis, certamine lassa,
 fit minor et parcum respuit ore cibum.
 prospicit infelix ventura pericula coniunx,
 et morbi accelerat mixta querela moras.
 sit tamen ut valeant ; sed enim non dicere nostrum est,
 si bene sit capiti, corda vacare malo.
 at plenam laudas mensam victusque salubres munera felicitis simpliciora casae.
 ne tibi inexperto moveat penuria risum,
 quaeque parum dirae sufficit esca fami.
 mensa licet simplex neque plena neque esca salubris,
 laudatos pudeat te tetigisse cibos.

H. My dearest love, since thou wilt go,
And leave me here behind thee;
For love or pitie, let me know
The place where I may find thee.

A. In country meadowes, pearled with dew,
And set about with lillies,
There, filling maunds with cowslips, you
May find your Amarillis.

H. What have the meads to do with thee,
Or with thy youthfull houres?
Live thou at court, where thou may'st be
The queen of men, not flowers.

Let country wenches make 'em fine
With posies, since 'tis fitter
For thee with richest jemmes to shine,
And like the starres to glitter.

HERRICK.

H. Ergo, noster amor, fugis sic nos destituens? dic quibus in locis te forte inveniam, precor per te si quid amor, si pietas valet.

A. visas roscida liliis commendata suis rura; ibi lutea
 praeda florum Amaryllida complentem calathos invenies tuam.

H. tecum prata quid umida aut

 aulam, verba homines ubi iurent in tua, non flos tibi serviat.

There is a place, deep, wondrous deep, below,
Which genuine Night and Horror does o'erflow;
No bound controls th' unwearied space, but hell,
Endless as those dire pains that in it dwell.
Here no dear glimpse of the sun's lovely face
Strikes through the solid darkness of the place;
No dawning morn does her kind reds display;
One slight weak beam would here be thought the day:
No gentle stars with their fair gems of light
Offend the tyrannous and unquesti'd night.
Here Lucifer, the mighty captive, reigns;
Proud 'midst his woes, and tyrant in his chains;
Once general of a gilded host of sprites,
Like Hesper, leading forth the spangled nights;
But down like lightning, which him struck, he came;
And roar'd at his first plunge into the flame:
Myriads of spirits fell wounded round him there;
With dropping lights thick shone the singed air;
Since when, the dismal solace of their woe
Has only been weak mankind to undo;
Themselves at first against themselves they excite
(Their dearest conquest and most proud delight),
And if those mines of secret treason fail,
With open force man's virtue they assail:
Unable to corrupt, seek to destroy,
And where their poisons miss, the sword employ.

COWLEY.

Qua comes ingenitae nocti scatet additus horror
 est locus, immenso terrae mira antra recessu subdita : nec spatiis ullus nisi Tartara limes, Tartara Tartareo sedes aequata dolori.
 his adeo numquam solidis offusa tenebris exserit os roseum lampas Phoebea, nec umquam se domus in facilem Aurora nascente ruborem induit ; obscurae fuerit pro sole cavernae nescio quod vel tenue iubar. neque enim astra coruscant mitia ne liquidis lucem spirantia gemmis imminuant noctis non exsuperabile regnum :
 nimirum amissis devinctus honoribus aulae
 Lucifer exili male praesidet, ut tamen ipsis regem agat in vinclis luctusque superbiat inter.
 scilicet in superis dux olim incesserat auris agminis auricomi, qualis tu, Phosphore, noctis praevis illuces : atqui Iovis ignibus ictus ocior igne cadit, flammaque immersus et Orco continuo ingemuit : nec milia caelicolarum qui caesi caderent deerant : nempe ipse caducis actutum facibus flammans incanduit aer.
 ex quo non alia solantibus arte dolorem praeda fuere hominum gens imbecillior : ipsis comminus in se ipsos (nec carior ulla voluptas, nulla umquam tanti laurus) certamina suadent.
 sin minus occulta est grassari fraude, minaces
 irrumpunt, si fors vi debellatus aperta se dedat tecta qui non corrumpitur arte :
 prociduntque feros enses pereunte veneno.

She came—she is gone—we have met—

And meet perhaps never again.

The sun of that moment is set,

And seems to have risen in vain.

Catharina has fled like a dream,

(So vanishes pleasure, alas !)

But has left a regard and esteem

That will not so suddenly pass.

The last evening ramble we made,

Catharina, Maria and I,

Our progress was often delayed

By the nightingale warbling nigh.

We paused under many a tree,

And much was she charmed by a tone,

Less sweet to Maria and me,

Who so lately had witnessed her own.

My numbers that day she had sung

And gave them a grace so divine,

As only her musical tongue

Could infuse into numbers of mine.

The longer I heard, I esteemed

The work of my fancy the more,

And e'en to myself never seemed

So tuneful a poet before.

Visa semel rapta est. ergo convenimus, eheu !
 vix ubi nos iterum conveniamus erit.
 me miserum ! frustra sol ille videtur obortus,
 protinus hesperias sol rediturus aquas.
 siccine nos Galatea levis velut umbra reliquit ?
 sic fugiunt celeri gaudia nostra pede.
 at desiderium memor, at manet ille superstes
 non subito gressu praeteriturus amor.
 non cadit ex animo lux vespertina, Corinna
 qua fuit et nostrae pars Galatea viae.
 proxima dum deflebat Ityn Philomela peremptum,
 ut placuit segnes substituisse pedes.
 fronde sub arborea quotiens consedimus : illam illecebris quotiens detinuere modi.
 me tamen hi sociamque minus potuere morari ;
 quale suum nuper fuderat ipsa melos.
 ipsa meas paulo recitaverat ante Camenas ;
 divinis inerat gratia quanta sonis.
 vox ea dulcis erat ; quales infundere norat carminibus veneres sola puella meis.
 quo magis ausculto, magis auscultare placebat ;
 certe habuit nostrum quo caperemur opus.
 carmina tum demum, fateor, numerosa sonabant,
 ipse mihi vates denique visus eram.

The steed is vanish'd from the stall ;
No serf is seen in Hassan's hall ;
The lonely spider's thin gray pall
Waves slowly widening o'er the wall ;
The bat builds in his haram bower,
And in the fortress of his power
The owl usurps the beacon-tower ;
The wild dog howls o'er the fountain's brim,
With baffled thirst and famine grim ;
For the stream has shrunk from its marble bed,
Where the weeds and the desolate dust are spread.
'Twas sweet of yore to see it play
And chase the sultriness of day,
As springing high the silver dew
In whirls fantastically flew,
And flung luxurious coolness round
The air, and verdure o'er the ground.
'Twas sweet, when cloudless stars were bright,
To view the wave of watery light,
And hear its melody by night.
And oft had Hassan's childhood play'd
Around the verge of that cascade ;
And oft upon his mother's breast
That sound had harmonized his rest ;
And oft had Hassan's youth along
Its bank been sooth'd by beauty's song ;
And softer seem'd each melting tone
Of music mingled with its own.

Non equus in stabulis, non alta servus in aula :
 iam fugit tacitam gratia prisca domum.
 crescentes sensim suspendit aranea telas,
 solaque funerea moenia veste tegit.
 immundae thalamis nidum posuere volucres,
 et vigil in summa noctua turre gemit.
 aspera delusaque sibi rabieque fameque
 nunc ululat sicci fontis ad ora canis.
 notos namque locos undae fugere loquaces,
 gramineque et foedo pulvere sordet humus.
 atqui suave fuit ludentem cernere lympham effuso rapidum rore fugare iubar :
 dum saliens variis errabat in orbibus unda tamquam incompressos duceret ipsa choros ;
 grataque fundebat torrentes frigora in auras
 et viridi ornabat caespite semper humum.
 suave erat undarum, sine nube micantibus astris,
 luce coruscantes cernere nocte vias.
 suave audire sonos : nam mille puertia ludos
 luserat ad strepitum desilientis aquae.
 saepe susurrantis resupini in pectore matris fontana fuerat consona voce quies.
 saepe etiam Hassani fuerat se margine in illo virgineis vinci passa iuventa modis ;
 suavia qua lympham verba interfusa sonabant
 nec nihil in magico carmine fontis erat.

Look back, old Janus, and survey
From Time's birth till this new-born day,
All the successful seasons bound
With laurel wreaths, and trophies crown'd:
Turn o'er the annals past, and where
Happy auspicious days appear,
Mark'd with the whiter stone that cast
On the dark brow of th' ages past
A dazzling lustre, let them shine
In this succeeding circle's twine,
Till it be round with glories spread:
Then with it crown our Charles his head;
That we th' ensuing year may call
One great continued festival.
Circle with peaceful olive boughs
And conquering bays his regal brows:
Let his strong virtues overcome,
And bring him bloodless trophies home:
Strew all the pavements where he treads
With loyal hearts or rebel heads;
But, Byfront, open thou no more
In his blest reign the temple door.

To whom Satan, turning boldly, thus:—‘Ye Powers
And Spirits of this nethermost Abyss,
Chaos and ancient Night, I come no spy
With purpose to explore or to disturb
The secrets of your realm, but, by constraint
Wandering this darksome desert, as my way
Lies through your spacious empire up to light,
Alone and without guide, half lost, I seek,
What readiest path leads where your gloomy bounds
Confine with Heaven; or, if some other place,
From your dominion won, the Ethereal King
Possesses lately, thither to arrive
I travel this profound. Direct my course:
Directed, no mean recompense it brings
To your behoof, if I that region lost,
All usurpation thence expelled, reduce
To her original darkness and your sway
(Which is my present journey), and once more Erect the standard there of ancient Night.
Yours be the advantage all, mine the revenge!’

Lawrence, of virtuous father virtuous son,
Now that the fields are dank, and ways are mire,
Where shall we sometimes meet, and by the fire
Help waste a sullen day, what may be won
From the hard season gaining? Time will run
On smother, till Favonius reinspire
The frozen earth, and clothe in fresh attire
The lily and rose, that neither sowed nor spun.
What neat repast shall feast us, light and choice,
Of Attic taste, with wine, whence we may rise
To hear the lute well touched, or artful voice
Warble immortal notes and Tuscan air?
He who of those delights can judge, and spare
To interpose them oft, is not unwise.

The castled crag of Drachenfels
Frowns o'er the wide and winding Rhine,
Whose breast of waters broadly swells
Between the banks which bear the vine,
And hills all rich with blossom'd trees,
And fields which promise corn and wine,
And scatter'd cities crowning these,
Whose far white walls along them shine,
Have strew'd a scene, which I should see
With double joy wert thou with me.

And peasant girls, with deep blue eyes,
And hands which offer early flowers,
Walk smiling o'er this paradise;
Above, the frequent feudal towers
Through green leaves lift their walls of gray;
And many a rock which steeply lowers,
And noble arch in proud decay,
Look o'er this vale of vintage-bowers;
But one thing want these banks of Rhine,—
Thy gentle hand to clasp in mine!

I send the lilies given to me;
Though long before thy hand they touch
I know that they must withered be,
But yet reject them not as such;
For I have cherished them as dear,
Because they yet may meet thine eye,
And guide thy soul to mine even here,
When thou behold'st them drooping nigh,
And know'st them gather'd by the Rhine,
And offered from my heart to thine!

Meanwhile the tepid caves, and fens, and shores,
Their brood as numerous hatch from the egg, that soon,
Bursting with kindly rupture, forth disclosed
Their callow young ; but feathered soon and fledge
They summed their pens, and, soaring the air sublime,
With clang despised the ground, under a cloud
In prospect. There the eagle and the stork
On cliffs and cedar-tops their eyries build.
Part loosely wing the region ; part, more wise,
In common, ranged in figure, wedge their way,
Intelligent of seasons, and set forth
Their aery caravan, high over seas
Flying, and over lands, with mutual wing
Easing their flight ; so steers the prudent crane
Her annual voyage, borne on winds ; the air
Floats as they pass, fanned with unnumbered plumes.

When the British warrior queen,
Bleeding from the Roman rods,
Sought, with an indignant mien,
Counsel of her country's gods ;

Sage beneath the spreading oak
Sat the Druid, hoary chief ;
Every burning word he spoke
Full of rage and full of grief :

'Princess, if our aged eyes
Weep upon thy matchless wrongs,
'Tis because resentment ties
All the terrors of our tongues.

Rome shall perish—write that word
In the blood that she has spilt ;
Perish, hopeless and abhorred,
Deep in ruin as in guilt.

Rome, for empire far renowned,
Tramples on a thousand states :
Soon her pride shall kiss the ground—
Hark ! the Gaul is at her gates !

Other Romans shall arise,
Heedless of a soldier's name ;
Sounds, not arms, shall win the prize,
Harmony the path to fame.

Then the progeny that springs
From the forests of our land,
Armed with thunder, clad with wings,
Shall a wider world command.

Regions Caesar never knew
Thy posterity shall sway;
Where his eagles never flew,
None invincible as they.'

Such the bard's prophetic words,
Pregnant with celestial fire,
Bending as he swept the chords
Of his sweet but awful lyre.

She, with all a monarch's pride,
Felt them in her bosom glow:
Rushed to battle, fought and died;
Dying hurled them at the foe.

'Ruffians! pitiless as proud,
Heaven awards the vengeance due;
Empire is on us bestowed,
Shame and ruin wait for you.'

COWPER.

 chordis ut incumbens canorae
 fila lyrae metuenda pulsat.

ast ipsa, regum mater ovariantium, perculsa laeto ferbuit omine et tandem per obstantes catervas
 sic repetit moribunda fatum :

The swallows in their torpid state
Compose their useless wing,
And bees in hives as idly wait
The call of early spring.

The keenest frost that binds the stream,
The wildest wind that blows,
Are neither felt nor fear'd by them,
Secure of their repose.

But man, all feeling and awake,
The gloomy scene surveys ;
With present ill his heart must ache,
And pant for brighter days.

Old Winter, halting o'er the mead,
Bids me and Mary mourn ;
But lovely spring peeps o'er his head,
And whispers your return.

Then April, with her sister May,
Shall chase him from the bowers,
And weave fresh garlands every day,
To crown the smiling hours.

And if a tear, that speaks regret
Of happier times, appear,
A glimpse of joy, that we have met,
Shall shine and dry the tear.

Thence to the famous Orators repair,
Those ancient whose resistless eloquence
Wielded at will that fierce democracy,
Shook the Arsenal and fulminated over Greece
To Macedon and Artaxerxes' throne.
To sage Philosophy next lend thine ear,
From heaven descended to the low-roofed house
Of Socrates—see there his tenement—
Whom, well inspired, the oracle pronounced
Wisest of men ; from whose mouth issued forth
Mellifluous streams, that watered all the schools
Of Academics old and new, with those Surnamed Peripatetics, and the sect
Epicurean, and the Stoic severe.
These here revolve, or, as thou likest, at home,
Till time mature thee to a kingdom's weight ;
These rules will render thee a king complete
Within thyself, much more with empire joined.

MILTON.

Mox oratorum veterum admirabere celsa

impulit ut voluere : armamentaria tota indomitas sensere minas, et sensit Achaia et Macedo et Persa ipse horrenda tonitrua linguae.
inde tuam lenis sapientia mulceat aurem,
desuper in parvam caelo demissa tabernam
Socratis—ecce humiles cernas licet illius aedes—percita non falso quem numine Pythia dixit ante alios sapientem : ex quo fluxere loquenti melliti latices, quorum omnes undique sectae
sive Academiae vetus et nova fonte rigantur, seu quod Aristoteles Epicureique docebant,
Stoicus et norma vitae graviore severus.
hic mea sive domi malis praecepta revolvās,
donec onus regni tempus te praebeat aptum

The winds were laid, the air was still,
The stars they shot along the sky;
The fox was howling on the hill,
And the distant echoing glens reply.
The stream adown its hazelly path
Was rushing by the ruined wa's,
Hasting to join the sweeping Nith,
Whase distant roaring swells an' fa's.
The cauld blue north was streaming forth
Her lights wi' hissing eerie din;
Athort the lift they start an' shift,
Like fortune's favours, tint as win.
By heedless chance I turned mine eyes,
And by the moonbeam shook to see
A stern and stalwart ghaist arise,
Attired as minstrels wont to be.
Had I a statue been o' stane,
His daring look had daunted me;
And on his bonnet graved was plain
The sacred posy—Libertie.
And frae his harp sic strains did flow,
Might roused the slumbering dead to hear:
But oh! it was a tale of woe,
As ever met a Briton's ear!
He sang wi' joy his former day,
He weeping wailed his latter times.
But what he said it was nae play,
I winna venture 't in my rhymes.

ardua iam collis vulpes ululatibus implet,
silva repercussos dat procul icta sonos.
unda ruinosas lambit violentior arces
dum terit insanam per coryleta viam ;
dum properat sese fluvio immiscere rapaci,
qui strepit inque vices unda remota silet.
caerula trans caelum flammis radiaverat Arctos,
spectra suos miscent, sibila turba, sonos.
illa vibrat variatque faces ceu munera fallax
quae fors alterna datque rapitque manu.
forte pererrantem lunae sub luce salebras
terrebant oculis obvia visa meis.
torvus et humano maior citharaque decorus nescio quis media visus adesse via.
non ego, si Pario starem de marmore cautes,
non potui frontis non timuisse minas :
cernere erat sacra in medio manifesta galero
nomina quis 'patriae' scriptus inesset 'amor.'
posse putes citharam Manes excire sepulcris
quos liquidos digito reddidit icta modos.
triste tamen crepuere fides, neque nenia in aurem
Angliacam sonuit tristior ulla prius.
quos dedit exsultim saeculi de laude prioris, excipiunt laetos flebiliora modos ;
tempora culpanti mutata ; at seria fudit
carmina versiculis vix tenuanda meis.

'Tis sung in ancient minstrelsy
That Phœbus wont to wear
The leaves of any pleasant tree
Around his golden hair,
Till Daphne, desperate with pursuit
Of his imperious love,
At her own prayer transformed, took root
A laurel in the grove.

Then did the Penitent adorn
His brow with laurel green :
And 'mid his bright locks never shorn
No meaner leaf was seen :
And poets sage in every age
About their temples wound
The bay ; and conquerors thank'd the Gods
With laurel chaplets bound.

As those who pause on some delightful way,
Though bent on pleasant pilgrimage, we stood,
Looking upon the evening and the flood
Which lay between the city and the shore,
Paved with the image of the sky. The hoar
And aery Alps, toward the north, appeared,
Thro' mist, a heaven-sustaining bulwark, reared
Between the east and west; and half the sky
Was roofed with clouds of rich emblazonry,
Dark purple at the zenith, which still grew
Down the steep west into a wondrous hue
Brighter than burning gold, even to the rent
Where the swift sun yet paused in his descent.

INTO LATIN PROSE

In his private conduct he was severe, morose, inexorable ; banishing all the softer affections, as natural enemies to justice, and as suggesting false motives of acting, from favour, clemency, and compassion ; in public affairs he was the same : had but one rule of policy, to adhere to what was right ; without regard to times or circumstances, or even to a force that could control him ; for instead of managing the power of the great, so as to mitigate the ill, or extract any good from it, he was urging it always to acts of violence by a perpetual defiance ; so that with the best intentions in the world, he often did great harm to the republic. This was his general behaviour ; yet, from some particular facts explained above, it appears that his strength of mind was not always impregnable, but had its weak places of pride, ambition, and party zeal ; which, when managed and flattered to a certain point, would betray him sometimes into measures contrary to his ordinary rule of right and truth. The last act of his life was agreeable to his nature and philosophy ; when he could no longer be what he had been ; or when the ills of life overbalanced the good, which, by the principles of his sect, was a just cause for dying ; he put an end to his life, with a spirit and resolution which would make one imagine that he was glad to have found an occasion of dying in his proper character. On the whole his life was rather admirable than amiable : fit to be praised, rather than imitated.

Domi et intus tristis durus implacabilis molliores animi adfectus relegabat, tamquam a iustitia suoapte ingenio abhorrerent et falsa quaedam agendi principia gratiae clementiae misericordiae suggererent. idem erat et in re publica, qui non nisi hanc sibi regulam statuisset, quod rectum esset uti id amplecteretur, nulla neque rerum neque temporum ratione habita, ut ne vim quidem coercentium respiceret. quem enim optimatum auctoritatem ita tractare oportebat ut si quid inesset mali molliret, si quid boni eliceret, idem ad atrocissima quaeque continuis provocationibus lacessebat, ita ut optimo quidem utens animo saepe obesset rei publicae. ita se plerumque gerebat. constat tamen ex quibusdam rebus, quarum supra mentionem fecimus, non semper inexpugnabilem fuisse animi constantiam, sed aditus quosdam superbiae famae studio partium praebuisse; quem si quis adsentationibus aliquatenus tractare vellet, a solida recti et veri norma facile erat deducturus. quae novissima egit et ingenio et disciplinae satis congruebant: postquam enim is esse qui fuerat non iam poterat aut bona vitae malis compensabantur—quam isti quidem philosophi satis iustam moriendi causam esse voluerunt—mortem sibi conscivit, eo usus animo ea constantia ut occasionem sibi convenienter moriendi libentissime nactum esse credideris. quid multa? is erat quem admireris potius quam ames, quem laudandum potius quam exemplo proponendum dixeris.

Certainly the true end of visiting foreign parts is to look into their customs and policies, and observe in what particulars they excel or come short of our own; to unlearn some odd peculiarities in our manners, and wear off such awkward stiffnesses and affectations in our behaviour as may possibly have been contracted from constantly associating with one nation of men, by a more free, general, and mixed conversation.

Another end of travelling, which deserves to be considered, is the improving our taste of the best authors of antiquity, by seeing the places where they lived, and of which they wrote; to compare the natural face of the country with the descriptions they have given us, and observe how well the picture agrees with the original. This must certainly be a most charming exercise to the mind that is rightly turned for it; besides that it may in a good measure be made subservient to morality, if the person is capable of drawing just conclusions concerning the uncertainty of human things, from the ruinous alterations time and barbarity have brought upon so many palaces, cities, and whole countries, which make the most illustrious figures in history. And this hint may be not a little improved by examining every spot of ground that we find celebrated as the scene of some famous action, or retaining any footsteps of a Cato, Cicero, or Brutus, or some such great virtuous man. A nearer view of any such particular, though really little and trifling in itself, may serve the more powerfully to warm a generous mind to an emulation of their virtues, and a greater ardency of ambition to imitate their bright examples, if it comes duly tempered and prepared for the impression. But this I believe you'll hardly think those to be, who are so far from entering into the sense and spirit of the ancients, that they don't yet understand their language with any exactness.

STEELE.

Is profecto verus finis externas visentibus regiones proponitur, ut alienas consuetudines et instituta dignoscamus, quatenus nostris aut cedant aut antecellant, ut inurbanos nescio quos et nobis proprios mores dediscamus, ut si qua forte ex unius populi commercio rusticitas gestus paulo inconcinnior ac putidior se prodiderit, eam libero magis et promiscuo hominum usu exuamus. sequitur alius peregrinantium isque memoratu dignus finis, quod maior inde ex optimo quoque scriptorum veterum quasi gustus voluptatis percipitur, visitatis ipsis locis ubi quisque habitaverit de quo quisque conscripserit, quod ingenio regionum cum eorum narrationibus collato, quantum exemplaribus imagines congruant convenientque, facultas datur diiudicandi. quae exercitatio ut non dubium est quin menti ad eam rem aptae et accommodatae iucundissima sit, ita potest eadem magno opere ad bonos mores conducere, si quis porro ex tot regiis domibus tot urbibus tot nationibus denique, quas clarissimas nobis monumenta prodiderint, iisdem iam vetustate temporis aut barbarorum incursu commutatis aut prostratis, de instabili humanarum rerum fortuna facultatem nactus est colligendi. iam vero eadem cogitatio adhuc in melius promoveri potest, si quis singulorum locorum faciem contemplabitur sive praeclarum aliquod facinus, sive Catonis Ciceronis Bruti ceterorum aequae bonorum et illustrium hominum vestigia repraesentantium. res sane ipsa per se tenuis et exilis; quo autem quisque propius introspexerit, qui quidem liberali animo adfectus satis imbutus et praeparatus ad concipiendam rem accesserit, eo acrius ad aemulandas virtutes accendetur, eo ardentius exempla egregia sibi imitationi propositurus est. quamquam eos qui tantum abest ut veterum scriptorum cogitationes et sententias perceperint ut ne linguam quidem satis accurate intellegant, equidem vix credo tibi hoc in numero reponendos videri.

It may happen that a republic, in its infant state, may be supported by as few laws as a barbarous monarchy, and may entrust as unlimited an authority to its magistrates or judges. But, besides that the frequent elections by the people are a considerable check upon authority, it is impossible but in time the necessity of restraining the magistrates, in order to preserve liberty, must at last appear, and give rise to general laws and statutes. The Roman consuls, for some time, decided all causes, without being confined by any positive statutes, till the people, bearing this yoke with impatience, created the decemvirs, who promulgated the twelve tables ; a body of laws, which, though, perhaps, they were not equal in bulk to one English act of parliament, were almost the only written rules which regulated property and punishment, for some ages, in that famous republic. They were, however, sufficient, together with the forms of a free government, to secure the lives and properties of the citizens ; to exempt one man from the dominion of another ; and to protect every one against the violence or tyranny of his fellow-citizens. In such a situation the sciences may raise their heads and flourish ; but never can have being amidst such a scene of oppression and slavery as always results from barbarous monarchies, where the people alone are restrained by the authority of the magistrates, and the magistrates are not restrained by any law or statute.

HUME.

Potest sane fieri ut rem publicam cum maxime nascentem perinde ac barbarorum dominationem et perpaucae leges contineant, et in utraque iis quibus magistratus aut iudicia mandantur potestas aequae infinita deferatur. verum tamen, praeterquam quod comitiis populi mandandorum magistratuum crebro habitis magna ex parte praefiniri solet imperium, cuinam dubium est quin eos quibus mandantur coercendi ideoque leges et instituta quae in universum valeant componendi tandem aliquando necessitas oriatur? Romae quidem aliquamdiu penes consules erant rerum omnium iudicia, ipsos ne ulla quidem lege scripta coercitos; donec a populo quem iugi pertaesum erat decem viri creati XII tabulas promulgarunt, fasciculum sane legum ne uni quidem senatus consulto civitatis nostrae parem, quo tamen praeclara illa res publica unico et praediorum retinendi et poenarum sanciendo iure per aliquot saecula utebatur. quamquam id praestabant XII tabulae, si rei publicae simul liberae iura respexeris, ut et vitae et possessionibus civium consuleretur, ut neque alius alii serviret et a vi aut ab impotentia ceterorum uni cuique caveretur. quo in rerum statu posse caput erigere et florere constat doctrinas; neutiquam vero esse possunt tanto in servitio tot in iniuriis quibus obnoxiae solent esse barbarorum dominationes, in quibus populus eorum quibus mandantur magistratus imperio coercetur, ii ipsi aliqua lege aut instituto non coercentur.

Though the good fortune of Cortes interposed so seasonably on this occasion, the detection of this conspiracy filled his mind with most disquieting apprehensions, and prompted him to execute a scheme which he had long revolved. He perceived that the spirit of disaffection still lurked among the troops ; that though hitherto checked by the uniform success of his schemes, or suppressed by the hand of authority, various events might occur which would encourage and call it forth. He observed that many of his men, weary of the fatigue of service, longed to revisit their settlements in Cuba ; and that upon any appearance of extraordinary danger, or any reverse of fortune, it would be impossible to restrain them from returning thither. He was sensible that his forces, already too feeble, could bear no diminution, and that a very small defection of his followers would oblige him to abandon the enterprise. After ruminating often, and with much solicitude, upon these particulars, he saw no hope of success but in cutting off all possibility of retreat, and in reducing his men to the necessity of adopting the same resolution with which he himself was animated, either to conquer or to perish. With this view he determined to destroy his fleet : and, as he durst not venture to execute such a bold resolution by his single authority, he laboured to bring his soldiers to adopt his ideas with respect to the propriety of this measure.

Again, suppose that though the necessities of the human race continue the same as at present, yet the mind is so enlarged, and so replete with friendship and generosity, that every man has the utmost tenderness for every man, and feels no more concern for his own interest than for that of his fellows. It seems evident that the use of justice would in this case be suspended by such an extensive benevolence, nor would the divisions and barriers of property and obligation have ever been thought of. Why should I bind another by a deed or promise, to do me any good office, when I know that he is already prompted by the strongest inclination to seek my happiness, and would of himself perform the desired service; except the hurt he thereby receives be greater than the benefit accruing to me? in which case he knows that, from my innate friendship and humanity, I should be the first to oppose myself to his imprudent generosity. Why raise landmarks between my neighbour's field and mine when my heart has made no division between our interests, but shares all his joys and sorrows with the same force and vivacity as if originally my own? Every man, upon this supposition, being a second self to another would trust all his interests to the discretion of every man, without jealousy, without partition, without distinction. And the whole human race would form only one family, where all would be in common, and would be used freely without regard to property; but cautiously too, with as entire regard to the necessities of each individual as if our own interests were most intimately concerned.

HUME.

Fac autem necessitates hominum easdem quas hodie permanere, animos tamen eo usque dilatari, ea amicitia ea liberalitate diffluere, ut unus quisque in unum quemque summa caritate adficiatur neque suum potius quam alienum commodum respiciat. quae si ita se habeant, videtur constare diffusa tam late benevolentia supersederi posse usu iustitiae, ne excogitatis quidem neque limitibus agrorum neque officiorum terminis. quid enim alium ut mihi bene faciat aut stipulatione aut promisso obstringam, quem acerrimis iam sciam stimulis excitatum esse ut meis voluntatibus inserviat, ipsumque optatam operam praestitutum nisi plus ipse damni quam ego emolumenti percepturus sim. quo in genere compertum habeat me, quae mihi insita est humanitas et amicitia, tam inconsulte benevolo ultro obstitutum. quid ego meum vicinique agros terminis definiam, in quem ita animatus sim ut ne ullo quidem discrimine utriusque commoda distinguam, sed eius omnia laeta et adversa pari cura et ardore mecum communicem, ac si ad me ipsum in primis pertinerent? hoc posito, cum unus quisque uni cuique tamquam alter idem sit, sua ceterorum omnium arbitrio permittat commoda, nulla invidia, nulla partitione, nullo discrimine, totumque genus humanum in unum ita coalescat, ut omnia sint in medio posita, libere utenda, neque ulla proprii cuiusque ratione habita, caute tamen ut necessitatibus unius cuiusque consulatur perinde ac si nosmet ipsos res potissimum attingeret.

Andranadorus, whose wife's ambition would never let him rest, and who till then had covered his designs with smooth dissimulation, believing it a proper time for disclosing them, conspired with Themistus, Gelon's son-in-law, to seize the sovereignty. He communicated his views to a comedian named Ariston, from whom he kept nothing secret. That profession was not at all dishonourable among the Greeks, and was exercised by persons of no ignoble condition. Ariston, believing it his duty, as it really was, to sacrifice his friend to his country, discovered the conspiracy. Andranadorus and Themistus were immediately killed by order of the other magistrates as they entered the senate. The people rose and threatened to avenge their death, but were deterred from it by the sight of the dead bodies of the two conspirators, which were thrown out of the senate-house. They were then informed of their pernicious designs ; to which all the misfortunes of Sicily were ascribed, rather than to the wickedness of Hieronymus, who being only a youth had acted entirely by their counsels. They insinuated that his guardians and tutors had reigned in his name ; that they ought to have been cut off before Hieronymus, or at least with him ; that impunity had carried them on to commit new crimes, and induced them to aspire to the tyranny ; that not being able to succeed in their design by force they had employed dissimulation and perfidy ; that neither favours and honours had been capable of overcoming the wicked disposition of Andranadorus, nor the electing him one of the supreme magistrates amongst the deliverers of their country, him who was the declared enemy of liberty ; that as to the rest they had been inspired with their ambition of reigning by the princesses of the blood royal, whom they had married, the one Hiero's, the other Gelon's daughter.

ROLLIN.

Andranadorus, quem uxoria cupiditas numquam conquiescere pateretur, dissimulata hactenus sub blanda specie consilia ratus iam adesse proferendi tempus, cum Themisto Gelonis genero regni occupandi coniurationem iniit. is Aristoni cuidam comoedo, quem nihil celare insueverat, rem aperit. ea ars haudquaquam inhonesta apud Graecos, ultroque a quibusdam haud tenuioribus exercebatur. sed Aristo ratus officii esse, id quod erat, amicum patriae posthabere coniurationem defert. itaque Andranadorus et Themistus ceterorum iussu praetorum curiam cum maxime introeuntes interfecti. primo plebs minari se mortem ulturos: dein coniuratorum corpora extra curiam ostentui proiecta deterrebant. tum certiores facti de nefariis utriusque consiliis: quibus Siculorum mala omnia referenda potius quam ad Hieronymi nequitiam: quem vixdum pubescentem ex eorum arbitrio egisse. neque enim dubium quin tutores ac magistri eius nomine regnassent: proinde aut ante Hieronymum aut certe cum Hieronymo interfici oportuisse: impunitate ad nova scelera provectos esse, atque adeo tyrannidem ipsam adfectare: ubi vis parum provenisset dissimulatione usos esse ac perfidia: neque beneficio neque honoribus pravam Andranadori indolem vinci potuisse: ne eo quidem quod inter liberatores patriae libertatis ipse hostis manifestus cooptaretur. ceterum regios eis animos regias coniuges fecisse. alteri Hieronis alteri Gelonis nuptas filias.

The mere philosopher is a character which is commonly but little acceptable in the world, as being supposed to contribute nothing either to the advantage or pleasure of society, while he lives remote from communication with mankind, and is wrapped up in principles and notions equally remote from their comprehension. On the other hand the mere ignorant is still more despised; nor is anything deemed a surer sign of an illiberal genius, in an age and nation where the sciences flourish, than to be entirely destitute of all relish for those noble entertainments. The most perfect character is supposed to lie between these extremes; retaining an equal ability and taste for books, company, and business; preserving in conversation that discernment and delicacy which arise from polite letters, and in business that probity and accuracy which are the natural result of a just philosophy. In order to diffuse and cultivate so accomplished a character, nothing can be more useful than compositions of the easy style and manner, which draw not too much from life, require no deep application or retreat to be comprehended, and send back the student among mankind full of noble sentiments and wise precepts, applicable to every exigence of human life. By means of such compositions virtue becomes amiable, science agreeable, company instructive, and retirement entertaining.

HUME.

Ipse per se philosophus partes agit minus acceptas ceteris hominibus, nimirum quod videtur nihil conferre neque ad commodum neque ad voluptatem iis quibuscum versatur, sed abhorre omnino ab hominum commercio totusque esse in sententiis et cognitionibus non minus ab eorum captu abhorrentibus. contra ipse per se insipiens vel magis adhuc contemptui est, neque ulla alia est ingeni inficeti certior significatio quam et in saeculo et in civitate doctrinis abundante nihil quicquam ex hisce lautissimis epulis delibare. qui perfectus totis numeris et absolutus est videtur inter duas personas quas deformavimus medium locum obtinere, qui pari ingenio et studio ad libros ad convictum hominum et societatem ad negotia accedit, qui in colloquiis limatam iudici elegantiam ex litteris humanioribus ortam praestat, idem in negotiis diligentiam et probitatem quam accurata philosophia suoapte ingenio progenerat. quae persona tot dotibus exornata ut excoli et propagari possit nihil magis solet conducere quam quae facili stilo et oratione sunt conscripta; quae cum non ita multum a cotidianis rebus avocent abducantque, neque ut intellegantur nimiam assiduitatem et vacationem officiorum postulent, et eum qui legit ab umbratili studio foras regredientem cogitationibus iustis et sapientibus praeceptis praeditum efficiunt ad qualescumque vitae necessitates accommodatis. ex huius modi scriptis id usu venit, ut amabilior fiat virtus, doctrinae iucundiores, ut a convictu hominum plus utilitatis, ab otio voluptatis fructus maiores percipiantur.

His success in this scheme for reducing the power of the nobility encouraged Ximenes to attempt a diminution of their possessions, which were no less exorbitant. During the contests and disorders inseparable from the feudal government, the nobles, ever attentive to their own interests, and taking advantage of the weakness or distress of their monarchs, had seized some part of the royal demesnes, obtained grants of others, and, having gradually wrested almost the whole out of the hands of the prince, had annexed them to their own estates. The titles by which the most of the grandees held these lands were extremely defective ; it was from some successful usurpation, which the crown had been too feeble to dispute, that many derived their only claim to possession. An inquiry carried back to the origin of these encroachments, which were almost coeval with the feudal system, was impracticable ; as it would have stripped every nobleman in Spain of great part of his lands, and must have excited a general revolt. Such a step was too bold, even for the enterprising genius of Ximenes. He confined himself to the reign of Ferdinand ; and, beginning with the pensions granted during that time, refused to make any farther payment, because all right to them expired with his life. He then called to account such as had acquired crown lands under the administration of that monarch, and at once resumed whatever he had alienated. The effects of these revocations extended to many persons of high rank ; for though Ferdinand was a prince of little generosity, yet he and Isabella having been raised to the throne of Castile by a powerful faction of the nobles, they were obliged to reward the zeal of their adherents with great liberality, and the royal demesnes were their only fund for that purpose.

ROBERTSON.

Feliciter uti diximus imminuta nimia optimatium auctoritas eo Ximinem impulit ut possessiones aequae et ipsas immodicas recidere conaretur. nam inter tumultus contentionesque feudali quod vocant imperio proprias sui semper tenacissimi nobiles, regumque angustis aut imbecillitate usi, agrum regium partim vi raptum partim dono concessum universum fere principi e manibus extorserant suisque ipsi praediis continuaverant. sed plerisque parum valida possidendi auctoritas, cum complures eo demum iure niterentur, quod principem infirmiore[m] quam ut obsisteret feliciter despoliassent. quarum tamen occupationum in initium ipsi ferme imperio aequalium non potuit fieri inquisitio; cum enim nobilissimum quemque per Hispanias magna agrorum parte nudatura esset, verendum erat ne in universum conflaretur seditio. periculosius consilium quam pro audaci ipsius Ximinis ingenio. itaque intra Ferdinandi regnum stetit: orsusque a pecuniis annuis eo rege donatis negavit se quicquam in posterum soluturum, rege enim mortuo periisse etiam ius accipiendi. dein ab iis repetebat, si quis eodem tempore agrum regium usurpasset, quicquid idem alieni iuris fecisset statim revocato. ceterum ea res ad plerosque optimatium pertinebat. Ferdinandus enim ceteroqui parum liberalis, cum tamen et ipse et Isabella coniunx valida nobilium factione freti regno Castiliensi potiti essent, studia partium summa augere munificentia cogeabantur: neque aliud suppetebat nisi ager regius.

Amongst too many other instances of the great corruption and degeneracy of the age wherein we live, the great and general want of sincerity in conversation is none of the least. The world is grown so full of dissimulation and compliment, that men's words are hardly any signification of their thoughts; and if any man measure his words by his heart, and speak as he thinks, and do not express more kindness to every man than men usually have for any man, he can hardly escape the censure of want of breeding. The old English plainness and sincerity, that generous integrity of nature, and honesty of disposition, which always argues true greatness of mind and is usually accompanied with undaunted courage and resolution, is in a great measure lost amongst us: there hath been a long endeavour to transform us into foreign manners and fashions, and to bring us to a servile imitation of none of the best of our neighbours in some of the worst of their qualities. The dialect of conversation is nowadays so swelled with vanity and compliment, and so surfeited (as I may say) of expressions of kindness and respect, that if a man that lived an age or two ago should return into the world again he would really want a dictionary to help him to understand his own language, and to know the true intrinsic value of the phrase in fashion, and would hardly at first believe at what a low rate the highest strains and expressions of kindness imaginable do commonly pass in current payment; and when he should come to understand it, it would be a great while before he could bring himself with a good countenance and a good conscience to converse with men upon equal terms, and in their own way.

TILLOTSON.

Quam pravi sint et in deterius corrupti mores huiusce saeculi, ut exempla alia praetermittam quam plurima, id haudquaquam minimum arbitror quod fere in universum colloquendi veritas desideratur. referti enim eo usque iam sumus dissimulatione ac blanditiis, ut vix et ne vix quidem index interpretsque cogitationum sit oratio: quod si quis ex animi sententia verba proferat, si eadem sentiat eadem loquatur, neque in quemlibet plus benevolentiae quam qua in quemquam fere adficimur significet, vix fieri potest ut rusticitatis crimen defugiat. enimvero vetus illa atque aperta nostratium sinceritas, simplex et vere honesta naturae ingenuitas, quae ut animi sane magni indicium praebet, ita fortitudinem et constantiam fere secum solet adsciscere, magna iam ex parte interiit. diu iam in eo laboratur ut exterorum mores consuetudinesque inculcemus, ut a peregrinis neque iis optimis pessima quaedam exempla serviliter mutuemur. ita blanditiis et adsentationibus sermo cotidianus turget, ita benevolentiae et observantiae significationibus ut ita dicam saginatus est, ut si quis paucis abhinc saeculis mortuus reviviscat, ad intellegendam linguam suam interpretem desideraturus sit, ut quid valeant quae cum maxime iactentur vocabula pro comperto habeat, nec nisi invitus credat quam vili pretio verba summam caritatem prae se ferentia in cotidiano usu ac commercio aestimentur; quo perspecto ac cognito sero demum id commissurus sit ut salva fronte ac conscientia in coetu hominum pari iure et ex aequo versetur.

The protector, before he opened the campaign, published a manifesto, in which he exposed all the arguments for that measure. He said that nature seemed originally to have intended the island for one empire, and having cut it off from all communication with foreign states and guarded it by the ocean, she had pointed out to the inhabitants the road to happiness and security. That the education and customs of the people concurred with nature; and by giving them the same language and laws and manners, had invited them to a thorough union and coalition. That fortune had at length removed all obstacles, and had prepared an expedient by which they might become one people, without leaving any place for that jealousy either of honour or of interests, to which rival nations are naturally exposed. That the crown of Scotland had devolved on a female, that of England on a male; and happily the two sovereigns, as of a rank, were also of an age, the most suitable to each other. That the hostile dispositions which prevailed between the nations, and which arose from past injuries, would soon be extinguished after a long and secure peace had established confidence between them. That the memory of former miseries, which at present inflamed their mutual animosity, would then serve only to make them cherish with more passion a state of happiness and tranquillity so long unknown to their ancestors.

Sed prius quam bellum iniretur, tutor regni positus propalam libellis quae in rem essent omnia confirmavit: naturam aiebat id videri voluisse ut penes unum esset insula. interdixisse enim ei exterorum commercio et mari Oceano saepsisse tamquam ad secure inter se beateque vivendum viam praemonstrasset; neque vero a voluntate naturae disciplinam aut mores utriusque populi abhorruisse: quibus utique eadem lingua, instituta, iura, quid aliud eos quam in artissimum concordiae vinculum ultro appellitos? fortunam insuper quae impedimento essent omnia amovisse, dato aditu per quem ita in unum coalescerent, ut nullus iam invidiae gloriae aut utilitatum ergo, cui obnoxios fere semper aemulos, locus patefieret. nam Caledoniorum sceptro feminam, Anglorum masculam stirpem potiri, peropportune inter se sicut loco ita aetate pares et accommodatos. ita utriusque gentis inter se inimicitias, ex praeteritis ortas iniuriis, brevi extinctum iri, postea quam pax firma et diutina mutuam fidem conciliasset. sane veterum infortuniorum memoria mutuas invicem accendi adhuc simultates; eandem mox praestituram ut felicitatem et otium diu a proavis desideratum vehementius foverent.

He illustrates this by the example of Tully's son Marcus. Cicero, in order to accomplish his son in that sort of learning which he designed him for, sent him to Athens, the most celebrated academy at that time in the world, and where a vast concourse, out of the most polite nations, could not but furnish a young gentleman with a multitude of great examples and accidents that might insensibly have instructed him in his designed studies. He placed him under the care of Cratippus, who was one of the greatest philosophers of the age, and, as if all the books which were at that time written had not been sufficient for his use, he composed others on purpose for him. Notwithstanding all this, history informs us that Marcus proved a mere blockhead, and that nature (who it seems was even with the son for her prodigality to the father) rendered him incapable of improving by all the rules of eloquence, the precepts of philosophy, his own endeavours and the most refined conversation in Athens. This author therefore proposes that there should be certain triers or examiners appointed by the state to inspect the genius of every particular boy, and to allot him the part that is most suitable to his natural talents.

Plato in one of his dialogues tells us that Socrates, who was the son of a midwife, used to say that as his mother, though she was very skilful in her profession, could not deliver a woman unless she was first with child, so neither could he himself raise knowledge out of a mind where nature had not planted it.

BUDGELL.

Quam rationem ut patefaciat et illustret, exemplum ponit M. Tullium M. filium, quem cum pater doctrinis quas ei proposuisset excoli vellet, Athenas misit. ea tunc altrix scientiarum praestantissima habebatur; cumque eo magnus coetus ex humanioribus populis conveniret, non potuit fieri quin multis et praeclaris exemplis uteretur liberali ingenio praeditus, alia porro ei contingerent destinatis studiis sensim imbutura. ibi Cratippum principem eius aetatis philosophum puer audiebat; et tamquam si omnes libri hactenus conscripti parum sufficerent, pater ipse de industria fili in usum alios composuit. traditur tamen a scriptoribus Marcum filium germanum stipitem evasisse: naturamque, quo largiora patri donavisset, eo minora, ut videretur, compensaturam filio, id fecisse ut neque ex eloquentiae normis, neque ex praeceptis philosophorum, neque ex sua industria, ne ex Atheniensium quidem politissimo commercio, omnino quicquam emolumenti adsequeretur. itaque scriptor libri existimatores quosdam rei publicae cuivis seligendos esse statuit qui, singulis singulorum puerorum ingeniis perpensis et quasi examinatis, suas cuique partes proprias accommodent. iam Plato in dialogo quodam tradit Socratem, matre obstetrice natum, solitum esse dicere neque illam, artis sane suae peritissimam, prius operam parturienti dare potuisse, nisi quae praegnas facta esset, neque se e cuiusquam animo in lucem protrahere scientiam quam non ipsa natura ingenerasset.

But after all, it must needs be owned that Pompey had a very difficult part to act, and much less liberty of executing what he himself approved than in all the other wars in which he had been engaged. In his wars against foreign enemies his power was absolute, and all his motions depended on his own will; but in this, besides several kings and princes of the East, who attended him in person, he had with him in his camp almost all the chief magistrates and senators of Rome; men of equal dignity with himself, who had commanded armies and obtained triumphs, and expected a share in all his counsels, and that, in their common danger, no step should be taken but by their common advice: and, as they were under no engagement to his cause but what was voluntary, so they were necessarily to be humoured, lest through disgust they should desert it. Now these were all uneasy in their present situation, and longed to be at home in the enjoyment of their estates and honours; and having a confidence of victory from the number of their troops and the reputation of their leader, were perpetually teasing Pompey to the resolution of a battle; charging him with a design to protract the war for the sake of perpetuating his authority; and calling him another Agamemnon, who was so proud of holding so many kings and generals under his command; till, being unable to withstand their reproaches any longer, he was driven, by a kind of shame and against his judgement, to the experiment of a decisive action.

MIDDLETON.

Neque tamen dubitandum est quin durissimae partes agendae essent Pompeio, multoque minor quam in ceteris bellis omnibus quae sibi probarentur gerendi potestas praeberetur. quae enim cum externis hostibus bella administrasset, penes ipsum summa imperi fuerat, suo ex arbitrio omnia peregerat. tunc autem, praeterquam quod plurimi et duces et reges Asiatici ipsi in castris merebant, aderant etiam plerique omnes populi Romani magistratus ac senatores, pares et ipsi dignitate, imperatores, triumphales, flagitantes uti consiliis omnibus interessent, neve in communi periculo nisi communi consensu quicquam coeptaretur: cum autem partibus eius non nisi suapte sponte addicti essent, mos gerendus erat ne ob invidiam transgrederentur. simul praesentium taedio honores agrosque domesticos respicere. itaque et copiarum vi et virtute ducis confisi perpetuo Pompeium lacessebant ut certa spe victoriae rem in discrimen daret; belli moras imperi prorogandi ergo imputantes, alterumque Agamemnona tot ducibus sibi parentibus, tot regibus subnixum appellantes, donec postremo impar conviciis pudore quodam et invitus in aleam belli impelleretur.

I am equally sensible of your affliction, and of your kindness, that made you think of me at such a moment ; would to God I could lessen the one, or requite the other with that consolation which I have often received from you when I most wanted it ! but your grief is too just, and the cause of it too fresh, to admit of any such endeavour. What, indeed, is all human consolation ? Can it efface every little amiable word or action of an object we loved from our memory ? Can it convince us that all the hopes we had entertained, the plans of future satisfaction we had formed, were ill-grounded and vain, only because we have lost them ? The only comfort, I am afraid, that belongs to our condition, is to reflect—when time has given us leisure for reflection—that others have suffered worse ; or that we ourselves might have suffered the same misfortune at times and in circumstances that would probably have aggravated our sorrow. You might have seen this poor child arrived at an age to fulfil all your hopes, to attach you more strongly to him by long habit, by esteem, as well as natural affection, and that towards the decline of your life, when we most stand in need of support, and when he might chance to have been your only support ; and then by some unforeseen and deplorable accident, or some painful lingering distemper you might have lost him. Such has been the fate of many an unhappy father ! I know there is a sort of tenderness which infancy and innocence alone produce ; but I think you must own the other to be a stronger and a more overwhelming sorrow.

Luctum perinde tuum atque amicitiam qui me in istis temporibus nolueris praetermittere, scito me perspexisse. ac medius fidius utinam possem et illum minuere et huic solaci vicem rependere quod saepe numero ubi maxime opus erat mihi tu attulisti. causa tamen doloris recens et ipse dolor satis iustus prohibebant quo minus tale aliquid conari auderem. nam hominum quidem solacia quantuli sunt! eorumne quos amavimus iucundissimi cuiusque dicti factive vel tenuissimi id efficiunt ut memoria dilabatur? cuinam probare possunt, quas quisque spes foverit, quae consilia in posterum fructus sibi proposuerit, propterea quod amiserit, ideo fluxa esse et instabilia? equidem vereor ne ad humanam sortem illud unicum solacium pertineat, si cogitaverimus—ut vacemus cogitationi dies curabit—et peiora alios expertos esse, et pati eadem nosmet ipsos potuisse tum rebus tum temporibus intercedentibus quae dolorem fortasse incendissent. quid si puer iste parvulus ad adulescentiam provectus spei suae quantaecumque respondisset? si cum diuturna consuetudine tum existimatione quadam, nec solum ipsius naturae commendatione, devinctiorem te sibi habuisset, cum praesertim vergentibus iam annis tuis tibi subsidio potissimum opus esset, is si fors ferret tibi unico futurus esset subsidio? si qui improvisus et acerbus casus aut malignior et cunctantior morbi vis eum talem tibi eripuisset? atqui huius modi miseriae quot iam patribus acciderunt! equidem scio esse aliquid caritatis quo pueri infantis sola innocentia animum adficiat. idem credo eam quam posui miseriam posse vehementiorem in modum cor adfligere ne ipsum quidem te infitiatum.

The reception which he met with at Worms was such as he might have reckoned a full reward of all his labours, if vanity and the love of applause had been the principles by which he was influenced. Greater crowds assembled to behold him than had appeared at the emperor's public entry; his apartments were daily filled with princes and personages of the highest rank, and he was treated with all the respect paid to those who possess the power of directing the understanding and sentiments of other men—an homage more sincere, as well as more flattering, than any which pre-eminence in birth or condition can command. At his appearance before the diet he behaved with great decency, and with equal firmness. He readily acknowledged an excess of vehemence and acrimony in his controversial writings, but refused to retract his opinions, unless he were convinced of their falsehood, or to consent to their being tried by any other rule than the word of God. When neither threats nor entreaties could prevail on him to depart from this resolution, some of the ecclesiastics proposed to imitate the example of the council of Constance, and by punishing the author of this pestilent heresy, who was now in their power, to deliver the Church at once from such an evil. But the members of the diet refusing to expose the German integrity to fresh reproach by a second violation of public faith, and Charles being no less unwilling to bring a stain upon the beginning of his administration by such an ignominious action, Luther was permitted to depart in safety.

Honestissime ibi exceptus satis ampla nactus esse laborum omnium praemia videbatur, si ad gloriae normam et aviditatem laudis vitae officia direxisset. nam maior spectantium quam quae ipsum imperatorem publice introeuntem celebraverat obvia facta est frequentia. cotidie eum conveniebant coetus principum quique summi ordinis erant salutantium et plenissimo honore prosequentium, tamquam qui animos hominum atque intellegentiam quo vellet flectere ac dirigere calleret; quo obsequio nihil sincerius neque honorificentius praestare potest generis aut loci dignitas. ceterum productus in concilium parem modestiam prae se ferebat ac constantiam. sane in controversiis quae scripsisset acrius aequo et iracundius disputata esse; nolle tamen aut opiniones immutare nisi quis falsas esse evicisset, aut ad aliam normam quam scripturas sacras perpendendas eas tradere. quae pervicacia cum neque minis neque precibus flecteretur, sacerdotibus aliquot censentibus concilium Constantinum imitarentur, ut animadverso in auctorem pestilentis sectae tandem sibi in manus traditum tanto in posterum malo ecclesiam liberarent, haud visum est iis qui concilio interessent iterum violatam fidem publicam Germanico nomini imputare. Carolo quoque, qui initia principatus tanto flagitio et ipse nollet foedare, placuit pactam fidem Luthero servari oportere.

Latin Prose

First of all, a man should always consider how much he has more than he wants. I am wonderfully pleased with the reply which Aristippus made to one who condoled him upon the loss of a farm: 'Why,' said he, 'I have three farms still, and you have but one; so that I ought rather to be afflicted for you than you for me.' On the contrary, foolish men are more apt to consider what they have lost than what they possess; and to fix their eyes upon those who are richer than themselves, rather than on those who are under greater difficulties. All the real pleasures and conveniences of life lie in a narrow compass; but it is the humour of mankind to be always looking forward, and straining after one who has got the start of them in wealth and honour. For this reason, as there are none can be properly called rich who have not more than they want, there are few rich men in any of the politer nations but among the middle sort of people, who keep their wishes within their fortunes, and have more wealth than they know how to enjoy. Persons of a higher rank live in a kind of splendid poverty, and are perpetually wanting, because, instead of acquiescing in the solid pleasures of life, they endeavour to outvie one another in shadows and appearances. Men of sense have at all times beheld with a great deal of mirth this silly game that is playing over their heads, and by contracting their desires enjoy all that secret satisfaction which others are always in quest of.

ADDISON.

Id in primis velim secum quisque reputet, quanto plura quam pro necessitatibus possideat. quo in genere mihi quidem valde placet illud Aristippi responsum, qui amico cuidam ob amissum fundum consolanti, 'tune me,' inquit, 'tribus etiam nunc praediis abundantem, qui ipse unicum tantum habeas? ut me tui potius quam te mei misereri oporteat.' contra insipientium est desiderata magis quam retenta recensere; et in ditiores malle quam qui maioribus rerum angustiis laborant oculos intendere. arto quidem spatio concluduntur vitae oblectationes commoditatesque verae; at humanum est semper prospicere, et cum iis qui se divitiis aut honoribus antecellant totis viribus contendere. qua de causa cum neminem recte divitem appellaveris nisi cui plura suppetant quam pro necessitatibus, constat in excultioribus populis perpaucos esse divites nisi inter eos qui mediocris ordinis intra fortunas cupiditates contineant et plura quam quibus uti possint possideant. nam editiore quidem loco orti, splendidam quasi paupertatem agentes, semper egent, quippe qui tantum abest ut oblectamentis vitae solidis contenti sint ut vana specie et inanibus rerum antecellere alter alteri nitantur. quod ineptissimum ordinum superiorum certamen semper fit ut sapientes magno opere derideant, suaeque ipsi vota in artum contrahentes, quam ceteri voluptatem numquam non aucupantur, eam secum ipsi percipiant.

From this era (260 years from the foundation of Rome) we date the commencement of the popular constitution of the Roman republic, a change operated by the unwise policy of the patricians themselves, who by yielding to just complaints, and humanely redressing flagrant abuses, might have easily anticipated every ground of dissatisfaction. The first wish of the people was not power, but relief from tyranny and oppression ; and, had this been readily granted them, if not by abolishing the debts, at least by repressing enormous usury, and putting an end to the inhuman right of corporal punishment and the bondage of debtors, the people would have cheerfully returned to order and submission, and the Roman constitution have long remained, what we have seen it was at the commencement of the consular government, aristocratical. But the plebeians now obtaining magistrates of their own order with those high powers, we shall see it become the object of the magistrates to increase their authority by continual demands and bold encroachments. The people, regarding them as the champions of their rights, are delighted to find themselves gradually approaching to a level with the higher order ; and no longer bounding their desires to ease and security are soon equally influenced by ambition as their superiors.

TYTLER.

Ducentessimum sexagesimum annum urbs agebat, cum populariter constitui coepta est respublica. initium penes ipsos patres inconsulto agentes: qui si iusta querentibus concessissent et flagitiis comiter subvenissent, facile omnes invidiae causas erant praeventuri. neque enim a principio potestatem adfectabat plebes, sed ut servitium atque iniurias dominantium exuerent: quae si patres facile condonassent, si non concessis novis tabulis, at saltem faenebri malo coercito, vetitoque in posterum ne quis ius immane verberum trahendique addictos exerceret, et plebes libenter in ordinem atque obsequium redacta esset, et civitas Romana, id quod consulari potestate recens constituta fuisse constat, penes optimates diu permansisset. sed impetrati iam plebeiis sui ordinis magistratus iique plena potestate ornati continuo id agebant (id quod brevi patebit) ut assiduis efflagitationibus et aliena audacter invadendo suam auctoritatem promoverent. quos ipsa plebs, tamquam sui iuris propugnatores rata, superiori ordini libentissime paulatim adaequatur: nec iam intra otium et securitatem cupiditatibus contentis, pari et ipsi haud multo post ambitione adficiuntur.

— But as the Stoics exalted human nature too high, so the Epicureans depressed it too low; as those raised it to the heroic, these debased it to the brutal state; they held 'pleasure to be the chief good of man: death the extinction of his being'; and placed their happiness consequently in the secure enjoyment of a pleasurable life; esteeming virtue on no other account, than as it was a handmaid to pleasure, and helped to ensure the possession of it, by preserving health and conciliating friends. Their wise man, therefore, had no other duty but to provide for his own ease; to decline all struggles; to retire from public affairs; and to imitate the life of their gods, by passing his days in a calm, contemplative, undisturbed repose, in the midst of rural shades and pleasant gardens. This was the scheme that Atticus followed; he had all the talents that could qualify a man to be useful to society; great parts, learning, judgement, candour, benevolence, generosity; the same love of his country, and the same sentiments in politics with Cicero, whom he was always advising and urging to act, yet determined never to act himself; or never, at least, so far as to disturb his ease, or endanger his safety. — For though he was so strictly united with Cicero, and valued him above all men, yet he managed an interest all the while with the opposite faction, and a friendship even with his mortal enemies, Clodius and Antony; that he might secure, against all events, the grand point which he had in view, the peace and tranquillity of his life. Thus two excellent men, by their mistaken notions of virtue, drawn from the principles of their philosophy, were made useless in a manner to their country, each in a different extreme of life; the one always acting and exposing himself to dangers, without the prospect of doing good; the other, without attempting to do any, resolving never to act at all.

MIDDLETON.

Sed ut Stoici de natura hominum altiora disputabant ad heroicū quendam ordinem extollentes, ita Epicurei in humiliter detrudebant, ut qui pecudum naturae exaequarent. nam volebant summum bonum esse voluptatem, morte animum exstingui; ita in voluptaria vita secure fruenda positam esse beatam; virtutem non nisi eo aestimandam quod ancillula quaedam esset voluptati, ad eamque confirmandam servata bona valetudine conciliatisque amicis potissimum conducere. itaque sapientis nihil aliud interesse quam ut suum ipse otium respiceret, contentiones omnes devitaret, a re publica recederet, deorumque vitam imitatus inter nemorum umbracula hortorumque amoenitates placidam et tranquillam in cognitione rerum aetatem degeret. quam rationem vitae sibi Atticus proposuerat. quo in homine erant illa omnia quae ad civilem vitam idonea videntur, ingenium doctrina iudicium ingenuitas benevolentia liberalitas; idem amor patriae, eadem voluntas, quae et ipsi Ciceroni; quem cum semper hortaretur atque adeo lacesseret ut aliquid ageret, ita tamen ipse sibi agendum statuebat ut et otio et saluti consuleret. cum enim esset Ciceroni coniunctissimus, cui ceteros omnes posthaberet, id tamen agebat ut diversis partibus gratus esset atque etiam inimicissimis Clodio et Antonio familiariter uteretur—ut, qualiscumque fortuna intercessisset, id unicum praestaret, quod semper sibi proposuisset, vitae otium et securitatem. ita duo optimi sane homines, uterque philosophiam suam secuti dum aberrant a via virtutis, inutiles propemodum patriae evadebant: cum alter semper aliquid ageret et periculis se obnoxium redderet nulla spe bene faciendi proposita, alter ne conaretur quidem, nedum quicquam ageret.

Cortes, receiving his commission with the warmest expressions of respect and gratitude to the governor, immediately erected his standard before his own house, appeared in a military dress, and assumed all the ensigns of his new dignity. His utmost influence and activity were exerted in persuading many of his friends to engage in the service, and in urging forward the preparations for the voyage. All his own funds, together with what money he could raise by mortgaging his lands and Indians, were expended in purchasing military stores and provisions, or in supplying the wants of such of his officers as were unable to equip themselves in a manner suited to their rank. Inoffensive and even laudable as this conduct was, his disappointed competitors were malicious enough to give it a turn to his disadvantage. They represented him as aiming already with little disguise at establishing an independent authority over his troops, and endeavouring to secure their respect or love by his ostentatious and interested liberality. They reminded Velasquez of his former dissensions with the man in whom he now reposed so much confidence, and foretold that Cortes would be more apt to avail himself of the power which the governor was inconsiderately putting in his hands, to avenge past injuries, than to requite recent obligations.

ROBERTSON.

Cortesius, accepto munere plenissimamque observantiae gratique in praefectum animi significationem professus, statim pro domo vexillum erigere, paludatus palam incedere, omnia novi honoris insignia induere. dein summa qua potuit gratia nitebatur et industria si amicis pluribus profiterentur nomina suaderet quaeque ad iter necessaria forent maturarent. nam quod praesto erat pecuniae, quod auri praediis servitiisque pignori oppositis corradebat, in impedimentis commeatuque comparando sive subveniando sociis, si quibus sui pro ordine instruendi facultates deessent, id omne insumpsit. quam rationem innocentem atque adeo laudabilem ii tamen qui posthabiti sunt eo invidiae exarserunt ut in deterius interpretarentur. moliri enim eum, neque id iam occulto, sui iuris imperium in milites usurpare, suorumque observantiam aut amorem speciosa ac parum simplici munificentia conciliare. cogitaret praefectus quantae sibi adversus hominem cui tanto opere confideret olim intercessissent simultates. an Cortesium imperio prorsus inconsulte in manus tradito ad recentia potius usurum beneficia rependenda quam ad pristinas ulciscendas iniurias?

We have before observed that there is generally in nature something more grand and august than what we meet with in the curiosities of art. When, therefore, we see this imitated in any measure, it gives us a nobler and more exalted kind of pleasure than what we receive from the nicer and more accurate productions of art. On this account our English gardens are not so entertaining to the fancy as those in France and Italy, where we see a large extent of ground covered over with an agreeable mixture of garden and forest, which represent everywhere an artificial rudeness, much more charming than that neatness and elegance which we meet with in those of our own country. It might, indeed, be of ill consequence to the public, as well as unprofitable to private persons, to alienate so much ground from pasturage, and the plough, in many parts of a country that is so well peopled, and cultivated to a far greater advantage. But why may not a whole estate be thrown into a kind of garden by frequent plantations, that may turn as much to the profit as the pleasure of the owner? A marsh overgrown with willows, or a mountain shaded with oaks, are not only more beautiful, but more beneficial, than when they lie bare and unadorned. Fields of corn make a pleasant prospect, and if the walks were a little taken care of that lie between them, if the natural embroidery of the meadows were helped and improved by some small additions of art, and the several rows of hedges set off by trees and flowers, that the soil was capable of receiving, a man might make a pretty landscape of his own possessions.

Id iam supra memoravimus, inesse in natura aliquid amplius et excelsius quam quod ex artium subtilitatibus exquisitoribus fere percipitur. quam amplitudinem quotiens aliquatenus adumbratam videmus, suboritur nescio quae voluptas maior et sublimior, quae in artificiis limatioribus sane et politioribus desiderari solet. qua de causa nostratium horti haud perinde sensum alliciunt ac Gallorum aut Italorum ; apud quos magnus agri ambitus observatur alterna hortorum ac nemorum varietate distinctus et quasi rude quoddam artificium imitatus, cuius amoenitati in concinna illa nostrorum elegantia vix quicquam simile reppereris. potest sane fieri ut perinde bono publico detrimento sit ac privatorum incommodo tot pastiones tot arationes a suis usibus abalienare, praesertim ut in regione et frequentissima et longe melius exulta. quid autem obstat quo minus ex universo praedio crebris consitionibus quasi hortus fiat, qui domino usui pariter pariter voluptati inserviat ? palus quidem salictis obsita aut mons quercetis opacatus nonne plus et in speciem et in utilitatem valent, quam si eadem nuda et inornata iaceant ? suavis ipse per se segetum prospectus : quod si intervallis limitum non nihil curae adhibeatur, si pratis suapte natura pictis aliquid adiumenti ornamentique accedat, si variis saepium ordinibus flores arboresque uti fert soli ingenium commendationem quandam adiciant, potest utique ex suis quisque praediis amoenae regionis speciem praestare.

But notwithstanding the fortunate dexterity with which he had eluded this danger, Cortes was so sensible of the precarious tenure by which he held his power, that he despatched deputies to Spain with a pompous account of the success of his arms, with further specimens of the productions of the country, and with rich presents to the emperor, as the earnest of future contributions from his new conquests; requesting in recompense for all his services the approbation of his proceedings, and that he might be entrusted with the government of those dominions which his conduct and the valour of his followers had added to the crown of Castile. The juncture in which his deputies reached the court was favourable. The internal commotions in Spain, which had disquieted the beginning of Charles' reign, were just appeased. The ministers had leisure to turn their attention towards foreign affairs. The account of Cortes' victories filled his countrymen with admiration. The extent and value of his conquests became the object of vast and interesting hopes. Whatever stain he might have contracted by the irregularity of the steps which he took in order to attain power was so fully effaced by the splendour and merit of the great actions which they had enabled him to perform, that every heart revolted at even the thought of inflicting any censure on a man whose services entitled him to the highest marks of distinction.

Quod periculum callide ac feliciter eluctatus, gnarus tamen quam lubrico iure staret auctoritas Cortesius, missis in Hispanias legatis qui, auctis in magnificum proeliis, nova rerum quas fert regio exempla adderent, simul dona imperatori deferrent, spem ex recens debellatis populis fructus redituri, postulavit ut pro rebus gestis sua omnia principi probarentur, sibique provinciarum quas suo ductu suorumque virtute regno Castiliensi adiecisset imperium traderetur. ceterum adeundi regis opportunum tempus nacti sunt legati, sedatis iam per Hispanias intestinis tumultibus qui novum adhuc principem turbaverant. itaque ii qui a consiliis erant externis iam rebus vacabant. porro civium animos auditaе victoriae, quas ex tantis hostibus tamque locupletibus reportaverat, ea admiratione adfecere ut ingentes exitus spe iam praesumerent. ita si quid labis suscepisset adfectato per illicita imperio, splendore rerum ac gloria inde profectarum eo usque obscurata est ut nemo esset cui ne cogitatio quidem carpendi hominis propter res gestas nullos non honores adsecuturi plane abhorrens videretur.

If the Italians have a genius for music above the English, the English have a genius for other performances of a much higher nature, and capable of giving the mind a much nobler entertainment. Would one think it was possible (at a time when an author lived that was able to write the Phaedra and Hippolitus) for a people to be so stupidly fond of the Italian opera, as scarce to give a third day's hearing to that admirable tragedy? Music is certainly a very agreeable entertainment, but if it would take the entire possession of our ears, if it would make us incapable of hearing sense, if it would exclude arts that have a much greater tendency to the refinement of human nature; I must confess I would allow it no better quarter than Plato has done, who banishes it out of his Commonwealth.

At present our notions of music are so very uncertain, that we do not know what it is we like; only, in general, we are transported with anything that is not English; so it be of a foreign growth, let it be Italian, French, or High-Dutch, it is the same thing. In short, our English music is quite rooted out, and nothing yet planted in its stead.

ADDISON.

Si Britannis Itali ingenio praestant quod ad musicam attinet, nobis tamen ad alia quaedam et quidem longe altiora quaeque animo cibum multo praeclariorem suppeditare possint facultas non deficit. ecquis ergo crediderit, praesertim incolumi eo qui Phaeram et Hippolytum docere noverit, populum aliquem posse in Italorum mimis tam perditae amantem haerere, ut admirabilem illam tragoediam tertium recitatam tantum non omnino neglexerit? pulcherrimum sane oblectamentum est musica; quod si aures nostras totas sibi arrogare, si rationi parum dicto audientes nos efficere, si artes alias et ad naturam nostram in humanitatem molliendam multo magis idoneas penitus vult excludere, fateor equidem me nihilo lenius quam Platonem ipsum in eam animadversurum, qui e Re publica sua ablegavit. hodie autem tam varia tamque incerta de musica sentimus ut nesciamus quidnam sit quod nobismet ipsis placeat, ita tamen ut in omnibus fere, modo nostra ne sint, stupeamus; dum apud exteros orta sint, nihil moramur utrum Itala an Gallica an Germanica. nostra denique musica penitus exolevit, nec quicquam adhuc in locum eius coeptum est inolescere.

The partisans of the confederates reasoned very differently. It is evident, said they, that Mary either previously gave consent to the king's murder, or did afterwards approve of that horrid action. Her attachment to Bothwell, the power and honours which she has conferred upon him, the manner in which she suffered his trial to be carried on, and the indecent speed with which she married a man stained with so many crimes, raise strong suspicions of the former, and put the latter beyond all doubt. To have suffered the supreme power to continue in the hands of an ambitious man, capable of the most atrocious and desperate actions, would have been disgraceful to the nation, dishonourable to the queen, and dangerous to the prince. Recourse was therefore had to arms. The queen had been compelled to abandon a husband so unworthy of herself. But her affection toward him still continuing unabated; her indignation against the authors of this separation being visible, and often expressed in the strongest terms; they, by restoring her to her ancient authority, would have armed her with power to destroy themselves, have enabled her to recall Bothwell, and have afforded her an opportunity of pursuing schemes fatal to the nation with greater eagerness, and with more success. Nothing therefore remained, but by one bold action to deliver themselves and their country from all future fears. The expedient they had chosen was no less respectful to the royal blood, than necessary for the public safety. While one prince was set aside as incapable of governing, the crown was placed on his head who was the undoubted representative of their ancient kings.

If there be but one body of legislators, it is no better than a tyranny; if there are only two, there will want a casting voice, and one of them must at length be swallowed up by disputes and contentions that will necessarily arise between them. Four would have the same inconvenience as two, and a greater number would cause too much confusion. I could never read a passage in Polybius, and another in Cicero, to this purpose, without a secret pleasure in applying it to the English constitution, which it suits much better than the Roman. Both these great authors give the pre-eminence to a mixed government, consisting of three branches, the regal, the noble, and the popular. They had doubtless in their thoughts the constitution of the Roman commonwealth, in which the consul represented the king, the senate the nobles, and the tribunes the people. This division of the three powers in the Roman constitution was by no means so distinct and natural, as it is in the English form of government. Among several objections that might be made to it, I think the chief are those that affect the consular power, which had only the ornaments without the force of the regal authority. Their number had not a casting voice in it; for which reason, if one did not chance to be employed abroad, while the other sat at home, the public business was sometimes at a stand, while the consuls pulled two different ways in it. Besides, I do not find that the consuls had ever a negative voice in the passing of a law, or decree of senate; so that indeed they were rather the chief body of the nobility, or the first ministers of state, than a distinct branch of the sovereignty, in which none can be looked upon as a part, who are not a part of the legislature. Had the consuls been invested with the regal authority to as great a degree as our monarchs, there would never have been any occasions for a dictatorship, which had in it the power of all the three orders, and ended in the subversion of the whole constitution.

But while Lorenzo seemed to be sunk in luxury, and affected such an appearance of indolence and effeminacy that he would not wear a sword and trembled at the sight of blood, he concealed under that disguise a dark, designing, audacious spirit. Prompted either by the love of liberty, or allured by the hope of attaining the supreme power, he determined to assassinate Alexander, his benefactor and friend. Though he long revolved this design in his mind, his reserved and suspicious temper prevented him from communicating it to any person whatever, and continuing to live with Alexander in their usual familiarity, he one night, under pretence of having secured him an assignation with a lady of high rank whom he had often solicited, drew that unwary prince into a secret apartment of his house, and there stabbed him, while he lay carelessly on a couch expecting the arrival of the lady whose company he had been promised. But no sooner was the deed done than, standing astonished and struck with horror at its atrocity, he forgot in a moment all the motives which had induced him to commit it. Instead of rousing the people to recover their liberty by publishing the death of the tyrant, instead of taking any step towards opening his own way to the dignity now vacant, he locked the door of the apartment, and, like a man bereaved of reason and presence of mind, fled with the utmost precipitation out of the Florentine territories. It was late next morning before the fate of the unfortunate prince was known, as his attendants, accustomed to his irregularities, never entered his apartment early.

The first thing every one looks after, is to provide himself with necessaries. This point will engross our thoughts till it be satisfied. If this is taken care of to our hands, we look out for pleasures and amusements ; and among a great number of idle people there will be many whose pleasures will lie in reading and contemplation. These are the two great sources of knowledge, and as men grow wise they naturally love to communicate their discoveries ; and others seeing the happiness of such a learned life, and improving by their conversation, emulate, imitate, and surpass one another, till a nation is filled with races of wise and understanding persons. Ease and plenty are therefore the great cherishers of knowledge : and as most of the despotic governments of the world have neither of them, they are naturally overrun with ignorance and barbarity. In Europe, indeed, notwithstanding several of its princes are absolute, there are men famous for knowledge and learning ; but the reason is because the subjects are many of them rich and wealthy, the prince not thinking fit to exert himself in his full tyranny like the princes of the eastern nations, lest his subjects should be invited to new-mould their constitution, having so many prospects of liberty within their view. But in all despotic governments, though a particular prince may favour arts and letters, there is a natural degeneracy of mankind, as you may observe from Augustus' reign, how the Romans lost themselves by degrees till they fell to an equality with the most barbarous nations that surrounded them. Look upon Greece under its free states, and you would think its inhabitants lived in different climates, and under different heavens, from those at present ; so different are the geniuses which are formed under Turkish slavery and Grecian liberty.

He felt that it would be madness in him to imitate the example of Monmouth, to cross the sea with a few British adventurers, and to trust to a general rising of the population. It was necessary, and it was pronounced necessary by all those who invited him over, that he should carry an army with him. Yet who could answer for the effect which the appearance of an army might produce? The government was indeed justly odious. But would the English people, (altogether unaccustomed to the interference of continental powers in English disputes), be inclined to look with favour on a deliverer who was surrounded by foreign soldiers? If any part of the royal forces resolutely withstood the invaders, would not that part soon have on its side the patriotic sympathy of millions? A defeat would be fatal to the undertaking. A bloody victory gained in the heart of the island by the mercenaries of the States General over the Coldstream Guards and the Buffs would be almost as great a calamity as a defeat. No severer wound could be inflicted on the national pride of one of the proudest of nations. The crown so won would never be worn in peace or security. Many, who had hitherto contemplated the power of France with dread and loathing, would say that if a foreign yoke must be borne, there was less ignominy in submitting to France than in submitting to Holland.

Another consideration, that may check our presumption in putting such a construction upon a misfortune, is this, that it is impossible for us to know what are calamities, and what are blessings. How many accidents have passed for misfortunes, which have turned to the welfare and prosperity of the persons in whose lot they have fallen? How many disappointments have, in their consequences, saved a man from ruin? If we could look into the effects of everything, we might be allowed to pronounce boldly upon blessings and judgements; but for a man to give his opinion of what he sees but in part, and in its beginnings, is an unjustifiable piece of rashness and folly. The story of Biton and Clitobus, (which was in great reputation among the heathens (for we see it quoted by all the ancient authors, both Greek and Latin, who have written upon the immortality of the soul),) may teach us a caution in this matter. These two brothers, being the sons of a lady who was priestess to Juno, drew their mother's chariot to the temple at the time of a great solemnity, the persons being absent who by their office were to have drawn her chariot on that occasion. The mother was so transported with this instance of filial duty, that she petitioned her goddess to bestow upon them the greatest gift that could be given to men; upon which they were both cast into a deep sleep, and the next morning found dead in the temple. This was such an event, as would have been construed into a judgement, had it happened to the two brothers after an act of disobedience, and would doubtless have been represented as such by any ancient historian who had given us an account of it.

By authorizing the right of appeal from the courts of the baron to those of the king, and subjecting the decisions of the former to the review of the latter, a new step, not less considerable than those which I have already mentioned, was taken towards establishing the regular, consistent, and vigorous administration of justice. Among all the encroachments of the feudal nobles on the prerogative of their monarchs, their usurping the administration of justice with supreme authority, both in civil and criminal causes, within the precincts of their own estates, was the most singular. In other nations subjects have contended with their sovereigns, and have endeavoured to extend their own power and privileges ; but in the history of their struggles and pretensions we discover nothing similar to this right which the feudal barons claimed and obtained. It must have been something peculiar in their genius and manners that suggested this idea, and prompted them to insist on such a claim. Among the rude people who conquered the various provinces of the Roman empire, and established new kingdoms there, the passion of resentment, too impetuous to bear control, was permitted to remain almost unrestrained by the authority of laws. The person offended, as has been observed, retained the right not only of prosecuting, but of punishing his adversary. To him it belonged to inflict such vengeance as satiated his rage, or to accept of such satisfaction as appeased it. But while fierce barbarians continued to be the sole judges in their own cause, their enmities were implacable and immortal ; they set no bounds either to the degree of their vengeance, or to the duration of their resentment.

It is hard to personate and act a part long; for where truth is not at the bottom, nature will always be endeavouring to return, and will peep out and betray herself one time or other. Therefore if any man think it convenient to seem good, let him be so indeed, and then his goodness will appear to everybody's satisfaction; so that upon all accounts sincerity is true wisdom. Particularly as to the affairs of this world, integrity hath many advantages over all the fine and artificial ways of dissimulation and deceit; it is much the plainer and easier, much the safer and more secure way of dealing in the world; it has less of trouble and difficulty, of entanglement and perplexity, of danger and hazard in it; it is the shortest and nearest way to our end, carrying us thither in a straight line, and will hold out and last longest. The arts of deceit and cunning do continually grow weaker and less effectual and serviceable to them that use them; whereas integrity gains strength by use, and the more and longer any man practiseth it, the greater service it does him, by confirming his reputation, and encouraging those with whom he hath to do to repose the greatest trust and confidence in him, which is an unspeakable advantage in the business and affairs of life.

Immediately after the conclusion of the peace the French forces left Scotland, as much to their own satisfaction as to that of the nation. The Scots soon found that the calling to their assistance a people more powerful than themselves was a dangerous experiment. They beheld, with the utmost impatience, those who had come over to protect the kingdom taking upon them to command in it; and on many occasions they repented the rash invitation which they had given. The peculiar genius of the French nation heightened this disgust, and prepared the Scots to throw off the yoke before they had well begun to feel it. The French were in that age what they are in the present, one of the most polished nations in Europe. But it is to be observed, in all their expeditions into foreign countries, whether towards the south or north, that their manners have been remarkably incompatible with the manners of every other people. Barbarians are tenacious of their own customs, because they want knowledge and taste to discover the reasonableness and propriety of customs which differ from them. Nations, which hold the first rank in politeness, are frequently no less tenacious out of pride. The Greeks were so in the ancient world; and the French are the same in the modern. Full of themselves, flattered by the imitation of their neighbours, and accustomed to consider their own modes as the standard of elegance; they scorn to disguise, or to lay aside, the distinguishing manners of their own nation, or to make any allowance for what may differ from them among others. For this reason, the behaviour of their armies has on every occasion been insupportable to strangers, and has always exposed them to hatred, and often to destruction.

Nor need we fear that men, by losing their ferocity, will lose their martial spirit, or become less undaunted and vigorous in defence of their country or their liberty. The arts have no such effect in enervating either the mind or the body. On the contrary, industry, their inseparable attendant, adds new force to both. And if anger, which is said to be the whetstone of courage, loses somewhat of its asperity by politeness and refinement; a sense of honour, which is a stronger, more constant, and more governable principle, acquires fresh vigour by that elevation of genius which arises from knowledge and a good education. Add to this, that courage can neither have any duration, nor be of any use, when not accompanied with discipline and martial skill, which are seldom found among a barbarous people. The ancients remarked that Datames was the only barbarian that ever knew the art of war. And Pyrrhus, seeing the Romans marshal their army with some art and skill, said with surprise, 'These barbarians have nothing barbarous in their discipline!' It is observable that, as the old Romans, by applying themselves solely to war, were almost the only uncivilized people that ever possessed military discipline, so the modern Italians are the only civilized people, among Europeans, that ever wanted courage and a martial spirit.

Meanwhile Charles, satisfied with the easy and almost bloodless victory which he had gained, and advancing slowly with the precaution necessary in an enemy's country, did not yet know the whole extent of his good fortune. But at last a messenger despatched by the slaves acquainted him with the success of their noble effort for the recovery of their liberty; and at the same time deputies arrived from the town, in order to present him with the keys of their gates, and to implore his protection from military violence. While he was deliberating concerning the proper measures for this purpose, the soldiers, fearing that they should be deprived of the booty which they had expected, rushed suddenly and without orders into the town, and began to kill and plunder without distinction. It was then too late to restrain their cruelty, their avarice or licentiousness. All the outrages of which soldiers are capable in the fury of a storm, all the excesses of which men can be guilty when their passions are heightened by the contempt and hatred which difference in manners and religion inspires, were committed. Above thirty thousand of the innocent inhabitants perished on that unhappy day, and ten thousand were carried away as slaves. Muley Hassan took possession of a throne surrounded with carnage, abhorred by his subjects, on whom he had brought such calamities, and pitied even by those whose rashness had been the occasion of them. The emperor lamented the fatal accident which had stained the lustre of his victory; and amidst such a scene of horror there was but one spectacle that afforded him any satisfaction. Ten thousand Christian slaves, among whom were several persons of distinction, met him as he entered the town, and falling on their knees thanked and blessed him as their deliverer.

I am perfectly sensible of the very flattering distinction I have received in your thinking me worthy of so noble a present as that of your History of America. I have however suffered my gratitude to lie under some suspicion, by delaying my acknowledgement of so great a favour. But my delay was only to render my obligation to you more complete, and my thanks, if possible, more merited. The close of the session brought a great deal of very troublesome, though not important, business on me at once. I could not go through your work at one breath at that time, though I have done it since. I am now enabled to thank you not only for the honour you have done me, but for the great satisfaction and the infinite variety and compass of instruction I have received from your incomparable work. Everything has been done which was so naturally to be expected from the author of the History of Scotland and of the age of Charles the Fifth. I believe few books have done more than this towards clearing up dark points, correcting errors, and removing prejudices. You have too the rare secret of rekindling an interest on subjects that had so often been treated, and in which everything that could feed a vital flame appeared to have been consumed. I am sure I read many parts of your History with that fresh concern and anxiety which attend those who are not previously apprized of the event. You have besides thrown quite a new light on the present state of the Spanish provinces, and furnished us with materials and hints for a rational theory of what may be expected from them in future.

In far different plight and with far other feelings than they had entered the pass of Caudium, did the Roman army issue out from it again upon the plain of Campania. Defeated and disarmed, they knew not what reception they might meet with from their Campanian allies: it was possible that Capua might shut her gates against them and go over to the victorious enemy. But the Campanians behaved faithfully and generously: they sent supplies of arms, of clothing, and of provisions to meet the Romans even before they arrived at Capua: they sent new cloaks, and the lictors and fasces of their own magistrates, to enable the consuls to resume their fitting state; and when the army approached their city the senate and people went out to meet them, and welcomed them both individually and publicly with the greatest kindness. No attentions, however, could soothe the wounded pride of the Romans: they could not bear to raise their eyes from the ground, nor to speak to any one: full of shame they continued their march to Rome: when they came near to it all those soldiers who had a home in the country dispersed and escaped to their several houses singly and silently: whilst those who lived in Rome lingered without the walls till the sun was set, and stole to their homes under cover of the darkness. The consuls were obliged to enter the city publicly and in the light of day, but they looked upon themselves as no longer worthy to be the chief magistrates of Rome, and they shut themselves up at home in privacy.

Longe aliter adfecti et animo et corpore qui nuper Furculas Caudinas intraverant in Campanum agrum evaserunt. devictos et dearmatos quanam fide se recepturi essent Campani socii anquirebant: posse et oppidanos occlusis portis ultro in victoris partes transire. sed Campanis nec fides nec benignitas defuit: arma vestimenta commeatus exercitui nondum appropinquanti mittunt: consulibus nova paludamenta, suorum magistratuum fasces prout dignitas postulabat suppeditant: et venientibus Capuam cunctus senatus populusque obviam egressi iustis omnibus hospitalibus privatisque et publicis funguntur officiis. nulla tamen comitate Romanorum ignominia et indignitas leniri: neque oculos attollere, nec quemquam alloqui: pudor omnium implere animos ad urbem profici-scentium: ubi iam propius moenia adventum est, quibus ruri praedia erant suam quisque in domum singuli ac silentes dilabebantur: qui in urbe habitabant diu extra ^{munus} morati sero demum post obortas tenebras intra tecta sese abdiderunt. consules autem quibus palam intranda erat urbs et interdiu rati se haudquaquam dignos qui primi populi Romani magistratus haberentur domi se tamquam privati clauserunt.

Plutarch tells us that Caius Gracchus, the Roman, was frequently hurried by his passion into so loud and tumultuous a way of speaking, and so strained his voice as not to be able to proceed. To remedy this excess, he had an ingenious servant, by name Licinius, always attending him with a pitch-pipe or instrument to regulate the voice; who, whenever he heard his master begin to be high, immediately touched a soft note; at which, it is said, Caius would presently abate and grow calm.

Upon recollecting this story, I have frequently wondered that this useful instrument should have been so long discontinued; especially since we find that this good office of Licinius has preserved his memory for many hundred years, which, methinks, should have encouraged some one to have revived it, if not for the public good, yet for his own credit. It may be objected, that our loud talkers are so fond of their own noise, that they would not take it well to be checked by their servants: but granting this to be true, surely any of their hearers have a very good title to play a soft note in their own defence. To be short, no Licinius appearing and the noise increasing, I was resolved to give this late long vacation to the good of my country; and I have at length, by the assistance of an ingenious artist (who works to the Royal Society), almost completed my design, and shall be ready in a short time to furnish the public with what number of these instruments they please, either to lodge at coffee-houses, or carry for their own private use. In the mean time I shall pay that respect to several gentlemen, who I know will be in danger of offending against this instrument, to give them notice of it by private letters, in which I shall only write, Get a Licinius.

Auctor est Plutarchus C. Gracchum saepe numero contentionantem ardore et ira in tantum impetum et vehementiam prorupisse, ut ea dicendi contentio vocem obtunderet. cui nimio studio ut mederetur, Licinium quendam, phonascum haud imperitum, solitum esse adstare qui vocem moderaretur, et quotiens excitatior esset pronuntiatio domini, subito remissius fistula caneret; inde illum statim vim minuere et requiescere. huius narrationis recordatus, soleo admirari tam utile organum diu iam factum esse cum cessaverit, cum praesertim Licinio hoc ministerium praestiterit ut in tot saecula nominis memoria supersit; quae res, opinor, stimularet quempiam si non in utilitatem publicam saltem ut suae famae consuleret, huius modi tibiam ad repraesentandam. at enim iis qui loquendi contentione utuntur clamor suus ita placet, ut aegro animo ferant parere servis cohibentibus. verum id esto: at utique auditoribus causa satis iusta est, cur ipsi suum in commodum remissius aliquid canant tibia. ut brevi rem absolvam, cum neque iam Licinius exstet et clamor augeatur, recens prolatis rebus bono publico mihi inserviendum statui, et, ingenio usus artificis qui operas dat philosophorum societati, opus propositum cum paene exegerim, brevi curabo ut popularibus quot velint tibias huius modi suppeditem, quas aut in tonstrinis deponant aut suum quisque in usum circumportent. interim quibusdam, qui scio periculum esse ne hanc in tibiam peccent, dabo singulis singulas epistolas, hoc unum scripturus, 'fac emas Licinium.'

There is no person in that age about whom historians have been more divided, or whose character has been drawn with such opposite colours. Personal intrepidity, military skill, sagacity and vigour in the administration of civil affairs, are virtues which even his enemies allow him to have possessed in an eminent degree. His moral qualities are more dubious, and ought neither to be praised nor censured without great reserve and many distinctions. In a fierce age he was capable of using victory with humanity, and of treating the vanquished with moderation. A patron of learning, which among martial nobles was either unknown or despised. Zealous for religion to a degree which distinguished him, even at a time when professions of that kind were not uncommon. His confidence in his friends was extreme, and inferior only to his liberality towards them, which knew no bounds. A disinterested passion for the liberty of his country prompted him to oppose the pernicious system which the princes of Lorraine had obliged the queen-mother to pursue. On Mary's return into Scotland, he served her with a zeal and affection to which he sacrificed the friendship of those who were most attached to his person. But, on the other hand, his ambition was immoderate ; and events happened that opened to him vast projects, which allured his enterprising genius, and led him to actions inconsistent with the duty of a subject. His treatment of the queen, to whose bounty he was so much indebted, was unbrotherly and ungrateful. The dependence on Elizabeth under which he brought Scotland was disgraceful to the nation. He deceived and betrayed Norfolk with a baseness unworthy of a man of honour.

The next and higher use of history is to improve the understanding and strengthen the judgement, and thereby fit us for entering upon life with advantage. 'By contemplating' (as Lord Bolingbroke well observes) 'the vast variety of particular characters and events, by examining the strange combination of causes—different, remote, and seemingly opposite—that often concur in producing one effect, a man of parts may improve the study of history to its proper and principal use: he may sharpen the penetration, fix the attention of his mind, and strengthen his judgement: he may acquire the faculty and the habit of discerning quicker and looking further, and of exerting that flexibility and steadiness which are necessary to be joined in the conduct of all affairs that depend on the concurrence or opposition of other men.' Judgement as well as other powers must improve by exercise. Now history presents us with the same objects which we meet with in the business of life. They must consequently excite the same kind of reflections and give the same exercise to our thoughts, and thus produce the same turn of mind. History therefore may be called anticipated experience. By this means we begin our acquaintance with mankind sooner, and bring into the world and the business of it such a cast of thought and temper of mind as is acquired by passing through it, which will make us to appear to more advantage in it, and not such novices upon our introduction to it as we should otherwise be.

There is a sort of delight, which is alternately mixed with terror and sorrow, in the contemplation of death. The soul has its curiosity more than ordinarily awakened, when it turns its thoughts upon the conduct of such who have behaved themselves with an equal, a resigned, a cheerful, a generous or heroic temper in that extremity. We are affected with these respective manners of behaviour, as we secretly believe the part of the dying person imitable by ourselves, or such as we imagine ourselves more particularly capable of. Men of exalted minds march before us like princes, and are, to the ordinary race of mankind, rather subjects for their admiration than example. However, there are no ideas strike more forcibly upon our imaginations, than those which are raised from reflections upon the exits of great and excellent men. Innocent men who have suffered as criminals, though they were benefactors to human society, seem to be persons of the highest distinction, among the vastly greater number of human race, the dead. When the iniquity of the times brought Socrates to his execution, how great and wonderful is it to behold him, unsupported by anything but the testimony of his own conscience and conjectures of hereafter, receive the poison with an air of mirth and good humour, and as if going on an agreeable journey bespeak some deity to make it fortunate.

The contrast between Charles' conduct and that of the Pope at this juncture was so obvious, that it struck even the most careless observers ; nor was the comparison which they made to the advantage of Paul. The former, a conqueror, born to reign, long accustomed to the splendour which accompanies supreme power, and to those busy and interesting scenes in which an active ambition had engaged him, quitted the world at a period of life not far advanced, that he might close the evening of his days in tranquillity, and secure some interval for sober thought and serious recollection. The latter, a priest, who had passed the early part of his life in the shade of the schools, and in the study of the speculative sciences, who was seemingly so detached from the world, that he had shut himself up for many years in the solitude of a cloister, and who was not raised to the papal throne until he had reached the extremity of old age, discovered at once all the impetuosity of youthful ambition, and formed extensive schemes, in order to accomplish which he scrupled not to scatter the seeds of discord, and to kindle the flames of war, in every corner of Europe. But Paul, regardless of the opinion or censures of mankind, held on his own course with his wonted arrogance and violence. These, although they seemed already to have exceeded all bounds, rose to a still greater height upon the arrival of the Duke of Guise in Italy.

Inter Carolum id temporis et pontificem tanta erat morum discrepantia ut vel maxime incuriosos adverteret, et Paulo erat deterior comparatio. alterum enim triumphalem, regiis incunabulis, summae fortunae splendori diu adsuefactum devinctumque negotiis quae aviditatem famae paulo acriorem illexissent, potuisse eundem non ita multum provecta aetate e rebus publicis recedere ut occidentem vitam tranquille finiret, et ad sobrie secum serioque meditandum aliquid otii seponeret. alterum, sacerdotem, adolescentia in umbratili studio ac rerum cognitione peracta, adeo, ut videretur, semotum ab hominum commercio ut multos annos intra solitudinem sese abderet, et vergente demum aetate pontificatu ornatus esset, subito tamen impetu iuvenili et cupiditate exarsisse vastosque conatus molitum esse, quos ut patraret non dubitasse semina discordiae bellicae incendia per Europam spargere. ceterum Paullus, validus spernendis vituperantium rumoribus, solita superbia et vehementia cursum tenuit, quae ut adhuc videbantur terminos exiisse ita in altius elatae sunt duce Guisiano iam in Italiam advecto.

Clive was in a painfully anxious situation. He could place no confidence in the sincerity or in the courage of his confederate; and, whatever confidence he might place in his own military talents, and in the valour and discipline of his troops, it was no light thing to engage an army twenty times as numerous as his own. Before him lay a river over which it was easy to advance, but over which, if things went ill, not one of his little band would ever return. On this occasion, for the first and for the last time, his dauntless spirit, during a few hours, shrank from the fearful responsibility of making a decision. He called a council of war. The majority pronounced against fighting; and Clive declared his concurrence with the majority. Long afterwards, he said that he had never called but one council of war, and that, if he had taken the advice of that council, the British army would never have been masters of Bengal. But scarcely had the meeting broken up when he was himself again. He retired alone under the shade of some trees, and passed near an hour there in thought. He came back determined to put everything to the hazard, and gave orders that all should be in readiness for passing the river on the morrow.

Self-satisfaction, at least in some degree, is an advantage which equally attends the fool and the wise man ; but it is the only one, nor is there any other circumstance in the conduct of life where they are on an equal footing. Business, books, conversation ; for all of these a fool is totally incapacitated, and except condemned by his station to the coarsest drudgery remains a useless burden upon the earth. Accordingly it is found that men are extremely jealous of their character in this particular ; and many instances are seen of profligacy and treachery, the most avowed and unreserved, none of bearing patiently the imputation of ignorance and stupidity. Dicaearchus, the Macedonian general, who, as Polybius tells us, openly erected one altar to impiety, another to injustice, in order to bid defiance to mankind : even he, I am well assured, would have started at the epithet fool, and have meditated revenge for so injurious an appellation. Except the affection of parents—the strongest and most indissoluble bond in nature—no connexion has strength sufficient to support the disgust arising from this character. Love itself, which can subsist under treachery, ingratitude, malice, and infidelity, is immediately extinguished by it, when perceived and acknowledged ; nor are deformity and old age more fatal to the dominion of that passion. So dreadful are the ideas of an utter incapacity for any purpose or undertaking, and of continued error and misconduct in life.

HUME.

Stulto et sapienti, ceteroque plane inter se dissimilibus, id quadam saltem tenuis commune est commodum ut uterque sibi placeat; neque enim ulla in re alia pari iure vivitur. quid dicam libros? quid colloquia? quid negotia? quibus omnibus plane ineptus est insipiens; quem nisi ad sordidissima ministeria sors sua detruserit non nisi 'onus minus utile terris' maneat necesse est. quocirca hoc in genere tenacissimos existimationis suae constat esse homines; ut multos videas qui flagitia ac perfidias apertissime prae se ferant, qui stultitiae crimen aequo animo patiatur neminem. velut Dicaearchus dux ille Macedonum, quem auctor est Polybius duas aras alteram iniustitiae impietati alteram posuisse, tamquam communi omnium sensui in offensionem cadere non dubitaverit, ne is quidem, uti mihi persuadeo, si quis stultum appellasset, non calcitrasset poenasque statim probri a male dicentibus sumpsisset. nam remota parentium caritate, qua haud scio an nullum firmitus vinculum natura homini ingeneraverit, nullam vim tantam habet necessitudo alia quae hac in re non fastidiat. quin ipse amor, quem neque dolus malus, neque immemor beneficiorum animus, neque malevolentia, ne laesa quidem coniugia solent extinguere, hoc uno vitio cognito perspectoque statim opprimitur; ut ne turpitudine quidem formae aut senectus ipsa ad hanc animi adfectionem evellendam maiorem vim habeat. tantum ab iis reformidat animus, in quibus nullus omnino labor nulla industria, qui nec sibi nec alteri ut dicitur sed in perpetuo errore ac tenebris versantur.

Peter Alexiwitz of Russia, when he came to years of manhood, though he found himself emperor of a vast and numerous people, master of an endless territory, absolute commander of the lives and fortunes of his subjects, in the midst of this unbounded power and greatness turned his thoughts upon himself and people with sorrow. Sordid ignorance and a brute manner of life this generous prince beheld and contemned from the light of his own genius. His judgement suggested this to him, and his courage prompted him to amend it. In order to this he did not send to the nation from whence the rest of the world has borrowed its politeness, but himself left his diadem to learn the true way to glory and honour, and application to useful arts, wherein to employ the laborious, the simple, the honest part of his people. Mechanic employments and operations were very justly the first objects of his favour and observation. With this glorious intention he travelled into foreign nations in an obscure manner, above receiving little honours where he sojourned, but prying into what was of more consequence, their arts of peace and of war. By this means has this great prince laid the foundation of a great and lasting fame, by personal labour, personal knowledge, personal valour. It would be injury to any of antiquity to name them with him. Who, but himself, ever left a throne to learn to sit in it with more grace? Who ever thought himself mean in absolute power, till he had learned to use it?

Petrus Alexandri filius Sarmatarum rex, cum in suam iam tutelam venisset, videretque sibi permissam regionem nationum et latissime patentium et hominibus abundantium, penes se in capita fortunasque civium esse sui iuris arbitrium, ita infinitis opibus et dignitate fruebatur ut se suosque non sine dolore respiceret ; erat enim vir singularis sollers ingenio et si quid barbarae inscitiae et immanitatis dominaretur aptus ad discernendum despiciendumque, aequè callidus iudicio ac gnavus remediorum. cum huc incumberet, ad eam nationem unde ceteris humanitas sua derivata est noluit legatos mittere, sed ipse ultro exuta dignitate viam gloriae ac famae appetivit adfectato artium utilium studio quibus si quid popularium esset frugi simplex et industrium adsuefaceret. fabrum artificia, id quod aequum erat, potissimum animum et curam advertebant. itaque haec praeclara meditatus, externas regiones tamquam privatus visitare, ubi commoraretur validus spernendo honorum inania, sed, unde maior utilitas ostendebatur, belli pacisque artes rimari. his rationibus celeberrimus sibi princeps gloriae solidae et permansurae fundamenta iecit suo labore usus sua experientia sua fortitudine. itaque neminem ita cum Petro veterum contenderis ut ei non deterior sit comparatio. quis enim est alius qui principali loco se abdicaverit ut meliore cum dignitate implere disceret? quis alius, cui infinita contigerat potestas, doctus demum sapienter uti, se contemnere dedidicit?

It will seem strange to some that Cicero, when he had certain information of Catiline's treason, instead of seizing him in the city, not only suffered but urged his escape, and forced him as it were to begin the war. But there was good reason for what he did, as he frequently intimates in his speeches ; he had many enemies among the nobility, and Catiline many secret friends ; and though he was perfectly informed of the whole progress and extent of the plot, yet the proofs being not ready to be laid before the public, Catiline's dissimulation still prevailed, and persuaded great numbers of his innocence ; so that if he had imprisoned and punished him at this time, as he deserved, the whole faction were prepared to raise a general clamour against him, by representing his administration as a tyranny, and the plot as a forgery contrived to support it ; whereas by driving Catiline into rebellion, he made all men see the reality of their danger ; while from an exact account of his troops, he knew them to be so unequal to those of the republic, that there was no doubt of his being destroyed, if he could be pushed to the necessity of declaring himself, before his other projects were ripe for execution. He knew also, that if Catiline was once driven out of the city, and separated from his accomplices, who were a lazy, drunken, thoughtless crew, they would ruin themselves by their own rashness, and be easily drawn into any trap which he should lay for them : the event showed that he judged right ; and by what happened afterwards both to Catiline and to himself, it appeared, that, as far as human caution could reach, he acted with the utmost prudence in regard as well to his own, as to the public safety.

Erunt sane qui demirentur Ciceronem, cuius de coniuratione certior factus esset, Catilinae non solum non in urbe vincula iniecisse, verum etiam in fugam se recipere sivilisse atque adeo hortatum esse, tamquam ad inferenda ultro arma exstimulasset. sed agendi satis iustas fuisse causas testis et ipse multis in orationibus: esse enim inter optimates sibi complures invidos, multos Catilinae clam favere. sane exploratum sibi quanta iam facta esset quamque in latum spargeretur coniuratio; at nondum ita maturatis testimoniis ut vulgarentur, illum etiam tum dissimulare, suamque multis innocentiam probasse. itaque si statim comprehensum supplicio merito adfecisset, totum coniuratorum corpus clamoribus se insectaturos, regnum consularis appellantes ipsamque coniurationem in subsidium sui commenticiam. si contra ad inferenda arma eum adegisset, fore ut periculi magnitudo omnibus innotesceret. simul satis comperto quot armatos quamque contemnendos prae rei publicae copiis eduxisset, ei fore exitium si ad necessitatem belli aperte gerendi maturatis nondum consiliis coegisset. gnarum quoque, Catilina urbe semel eiecto nudatoque consciis, desides illos ebriosos improvidos greges ipsos se temeritate sua pessumdaturus, et in insidiis quascumque opposuisset facile posse intercludi. quod iudicium rei exitus comprobavit. nam ex iis quae et ipsi et Catilinae brevi evenerunt, satis constat caute eum ac sapienter, quoad homini datur, et suae et rei publicae saluti consuluisse.

For these reasons, even if it could be believed that the court was sincere, a dissenter might reasonably have determined to cast in his lot with the church. But what guarantee was there for the sincerity of the court? All men knew what the conduct of James had been up to that very time. It was not impossible, indeed, that a persecutor might be convinced by argument and by experience of the advantages of toleration. But James did not pretend to have been recently convinced. On the contrary, he omitted no opportunity of protesting that he had, during many years, been, on principle, adverse to all intolerance. Yet, within a few months, he had persecuted men, women, young girls, to the death for their religion. Had he been acting against light and against the convictions of his conscience then? Or was he uttering a deliberate falsehood now? From this dilemma there was no escape; and either of the two suppositions was fatal to the king's character for honesty. It was notorious also that he had been completely subjugated by the Jesuits. Whatever praises those fathers might justly claim, flattery itself could not ascribe to them either wide liberality or strict veracity.

MACAULAY.

His cogitationibus, etiam si probari posset fides regia, par erat dissentientem a religione patriae suam alteri sectae causam consociare. at fidem regiam quemnam praestitutum? patere omnibus quae ad illum ipsum diem rex egisset. sane posse homini immisericordi quantum inesset boni clementiae argumentatione aut usu persuaderi. at regem ne fingere quidem recens sibi id persuasum. praetermisisset ultro nihil occasionis quo minus testaretur multos iam annos suo apte ingenio qualicumque intolerantiae obstitisse. eundem intra paucos menses in viros, in mulieres, in puellas, religionis ergo usque ad mortem saeviisse. illudne contra veritatis lumen, contra quae sibi ipsi probarentur fecisse, an hoc de industria mentiri? hoc aut illud pro certo esse, neque ullum perfugium; aut hoc aut illo gladio fidem et probitatem regiam confici. porro iis qui se societatem Iesu appellitarent esse eum obnoxium cui non liquere? at quantumcumque laudis iis sacerdotibus iure deberetur, satis liberale ingenium aut veritatis constantiam ne adulescentes quidem ipsos imputaturos.

After his departure, everything tended fast to the wildest anarchy. Faction and discontent had often risen so high among the old settlers, that they could hardly be kept within bounds. The spirit of the new comers was too ungovernable to bear any restraint. Several among them of better rank were such dissipated hopeless young men, as their friends were glad to send out in quest of whatever fortune might betide them in a foreign land. Of the lower order, many were so profligate or desperate that their country was happy to throw them out as nuisances in society. Such persons were little capable of the general subordination, the strict economy, and persevering industry, which their situation required. The Indians observing their misconduct, and that every precaution for sustenance or safety was neglected, not only withheld the supplies of provisions which they were accustomed to furnish, but harassed them with continual hostilities. All their subsistence was derived from the stores which they had brought from England; these were soon consumed; then the domestic animals sent out to breed in the country were devoured; and by this inconsiderate waste they were reduced to such extremity of famine, as not only to eat the most nauseous and unwholesome roots and berries, but to feed on the bodies of the Indians whom they slew, and even on those of their companions who sunk under the oppression of such complicated distress. In less than six months, of five hundred persons whom Smith left in Virginia, only sixty remained; and these so feeble and dejected that they could not have survived for ten days, if succour had not arrived from a quarter whence they did not expect it.

ROBERTSON.

Simul decessum est colonia et omnia in effrenatam licentiam retro ruere. nam et antiquis colonis pravitas et discordia saepe eo usque flagraverat ut sisti non posset ; et qui proxime adscripti sunt iis animus impotentior et coercitum impatiens ? quorum qui loco meliore nati sunt, perditos plerosque adulescentes et nulla spe boni propinqui qualemcumque fortunam in alieno experturos haud inviti relegaverant. vulgus autem improbissimum genus et flagitiosissimum libenter patria tamquam communem hominum pestem evomuerat. hi parum idonei videbantur qui pro necessitate loci aut apte parerent imperio aut parsimoniae consulerent aut graviter et strenue agerent. quos cum Indi male rem gerere neque salutis neque cibariorum rationem iam habere animadverterent, non modo solitos commeatus intercipere sed continuis proeliis lacessere. utensilia suppetebant nulla praeter quae secum ex Anglia apportaverant. quibus brevi absumptis carne bestiarum mansuetarum quae procreandi fetus causa domo emissae erant vescebantur ; donec inconsulte prodigi eo famis reducti sunt, ut non solum bacae et radices teterrimae et maximae pestiferae, sed Indorum quoque caesorum cadavera et ipsorum comitum quos tam multiplex calamitas confecerat victum necessarium praeberent. intra sex menses ex quingentis hominibus, is enim numerus ante legati discessum Virginiensium fuerat, vix sexaginta supererant, fessi et fracti animo neque in diem decimum vitam sustentaturi, ni ex inopinato subventum esset laborantibus.
